

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

TUESDAY, AUGUST 18, 1885

A MONUMENT will be erected in New York by American Hebrews to commemorate the memory and virtues of Sir Moses Montefiore.

PROF. BELL proposes to improve upon the telephone by enabling a picture to be taken of the person at the other end of the wire. That will be nice.

THE fact that there is an ex-Confederate colony in Brazil has almost been forgotten, even in the south. The exiles have doubtless learned by this time that the war is over, and perhaps they will soon come flocking back.

NEXT month the Kentucky distillers will have taxes amounting to $4,500,000 to pay on 5,000,000 gallons of whisky in bond. This whisky has been mortgaged to its full value. If the government orders the whisky seized for the taxes, the distillers propose to bring suit against the collectors for damages.

THE president seems to have committed an unpardonable sin, in the estimation of the Democrats of MeConnellsburg, Pa., because he appointed as postmaster, an Ohio clergyman who supported St. John in 1884. They are very indignant, and are taking active steps to demonstrate that the new postmaster is an "offensive partisan."

ACCORDING to the statistics collected by the Baltimore Sun, out of 3,377 murders committed last year in the United States, the perpetrators were punished with death in only 313 cases, and 210 of these perished by lynch law. Only one murderer in 33, therefore, is hung according to law in this great country, and one in about fifteen by irregular methods. Ten out of 11 escape the gallows altogether.

THIS country paid a large price for the privilege of catching fish in Canadian waters for a term of years. The privilege was not worth the price, and the United States, being now clear of the bad bargain, will never pay it again. Besides this compensation to Canada, we admitted her fish free of duty to the United States. The fishery agreement being no longer operative, the tariff on this particular product of Canada is in force. As the case now stands Canada is courteously allowing Americans to fish as much as they please in her waters, and we are taxing her fish when landed in American ports.

ONE of the last acts of Minister Kasson before he gave place to Minister Pendleton at Berlin, was to send to the state department a debt statement of the various nations of Europe as recently published there. It makes a very interesting showing when compared with the debt of this country which some people suppose to be very large. Our debt, as everybody knows, is a trifle less than $1,500,000,000. According to Minister Kasson's statement, Austria's debt is $750,000,000, Italy's $2,250,000,000, Russia's a little over 3,000,000,000, England's over $3,500,000,000, and that of France more than $5,250,000,000, making her debt per head $123, or more than five times as much for each individual as is the debt in the United States.

THE French newspapers are just now quite indignant that Russia and Germany are putting up the excluding bars of their protective tariffs against French manufactures. They are especially angry because the Roumanians have levied a duty of 50 per cent against French goods. The French protectionists do not consider that these nations are retaliating against French duties on their products. The inevitable tendency of retaliatory tariffs is to make the markets more difficult of access. The tendency of all high protective duties is naturally to limit international commerce. The French tariff approaches nearly to prohibition, and Frenchmen should not be surprised or indignant if they are paid back in their own pet coin.

THERE are now seven parties of Canadians imprisoned on the shores of Hudson's bay, where they were left last year for purposes of observation in furtherance of a plan for opening direct water communication between the northwest territory and the Atlantic ocean. Supplies for eighteen months were given them, with the expectation that they could easily be relieved this summer. The Arctic steamer Alert was sent for them, but got so badly jammed in the ice that she has been compelled to return to Halifax, whence her start was made, for repairs. Probably there will be another attempt to reach the adventurers before the season shall close, but if it prove a failure they will have to remain where they are a year longer, or several months beyond the period for which they were provisioned. Their experience is not likely in any event to encourage the notion that Hudson's bay can be safely depended on as a commercial route through which the products of the northwest can be forwarded to European markets.

ACCORDING to the report of the United States engineer, the jetties at the mouth of the Mississippi river are in excellent condition and serve the purpose of deepening the passes admirably. Changes in the channel since the survey in 1881 have been few. The point of least depth in the passes now is 30 feet. In the jetties proper, the least depth is now 31 1/2 feet. The New Orleans Times Democrat in speaking of this report, says that "an interesting fact brought out is the condition of the gulf beyond the outer ends of the jetties. What effect the outpour of sediment of the river would have here has long been a question of great moment and interest. Last year the vast space shoaled three and one-half feet, but this year it was scoured to a depth of one and one-fifth feet, 1,500,000 cubic yards being washed away. During the whole nine years that the jetties have been operated the deposit in the gulf here has been 9,000,000 cubic yards, covering an area of one and one-quarter square miles seven feet; but as the investigation this year shows, this deposit is decreasing rather than increasing, one-sixth of it having been washed away in the past nine months."
