Getting Rid of a Bad Bed-Fellow,

It is a question if there ever was a hero of a gulch or prairie scene who exhibited more pluck and fortitude, or more inventive genius than the hero of the following "o'er true tale." It is but a part of the story of the escape of a Caffre chief from the Zulus. It occurred on an island near South Africa, among the rocks and caves of which he was trying to hide

"A week had passed since I had procured the gun and some assagies from the place where the Zulue had ambushed the white men, and I had seen no signs of a human being; but I knew too well the enemy by whom I had been captured, not to be aware that if he intended to recapture me, he would lie concealed for many days watching for a chance of surprising me. My intention was to support life until a ship came to Natal, for I concluded that when the schooner which had escaped reached Table Bay and informed the authorities that the Zulus had overrun Natal, some steps would be taken to obtain at least information as to what had since occurred. Thus I lived in daily hopes of seeing a sail, and once more join-

'One night I had retired to my hut and had slept till the dawn began to show, when I awoke with a strange feeling of oppression and weight on my chest. My gun was close beside me, and my knife within reach of my hand. For a moment I was not aware what was the cause of the singular feeling I experienced, and I opened my eyes without otherwise moving. In the dim light I saw that which, for an instant, caused my heart to cease beating. Over my chest was the ceil of a rock snake, this coil being bigger round than my thigh. I could see that the tail of the snake was outside my small hut, and snake was outside my small full, and in consequence of my lying on the ground the huge reptile had not been able to coil completely around me. I knew I was in imminent danger, and I also at once decided on the safest and most probable means of secure. Moving my arm slowly, I escape. Moving my arm slowly, I grasped my knife, and then raising my head, saw the snake's eyes within two feet of mine. His head was on the ground and so close that I could lift my hand above it. I carried out this movement very slowly the snake remaining motionless. Then with a sudden stab, I drove my long knife through the snake just where his head joined his neck and pinned him to the ground. With a struggle I slipped from under his body, and now the fight began. So tenacious of life are these reptiles, that although I had separated his head from his body as regards the vertebrae, yet he twisted and rolled the great coils of his body so rapidly and powerfully that several times he had surrounded my legs with a loop, and it was only by a quick movement on my part that I escaped the danger of being inclosed in a vice-like embrace. I succeeded, however, in avoiding its coils and suddenly scrambled out of sion.

Cure For Piles. "Come off that platform," said s conductor on a green line street car to an old bum on the front end one cold night last week.

"Whaz mazzer wiz zu?" grumbled the burn, "I hain' hurtin' nothin'." "That's all right, but you must come in.'

"I shay I wont." "But you shall. I'll be durned if I'm going to have that nose of yours fooling all the people along the street and makin' 'em run out in the cold to catch a red car." Better than She Expected.

"Your letter received. In reply I am happy to say that Parker's Hair Balsam did much more for me than you said it would, or than I expected My hair has not only stopped falling out, but the bald spots are all covered, and all my hair grown thicker, softer and more lively than it was before my sickness a year ago.
