An Unlearned Blacksmith

A Baltimore special to the Chicago Times says: A Worcester County blacksmith named William Hiffe has fallen heir to a large fortune and an earldom. His history is a very romantic one. Many years ago Hiffe's father married in London a blacksmith's daughter, in opposition to the wishes of his father. His family dis-owned him, and the young Englishman was forced to depend on his ex-ertions for a livelihood. His wife's father taught him blacksmithing and he continued at his trade until he was forced to flee from England because of an act committed contrary to the rules of the trades-union. He left his wife and infant son William behind him. Nothing more was heard of him. Tired of waiting, Mrs. Iliffe with her child came to America and settled in New Jersey. She tried to find her husband, but could get no clew to his whereabouts. After a time young Iliffe returned to England alone, and also learned blacksmithing from his maternal grandfather. After he served his grandfather. After he served his apprenticeship he returned to Amer-ica and settled in New Jersey. About twelve years ago a Miss Mason, of Worcester County, visited Stockton, where she met young lliffe. The ac quaintance ripened into love, and the young couple were married. Iliffe, with his wife, removed to Stockton, Worcester Co., where he has since plied his trade. Being a good mechanic, he had plenty of customers, soon acquired property, and is now one of the leading men of the town. Some months ago he received a document which he was asked to sign. His mother had affixed her signature, but Iliffe, although unable to read or write, refused to append his name. It now transpires that had he complied he would have signed away a fortune of $4,000,000 and an earldom which his paternal grand-father had left him. According to the will the money and coronet were to have gone to others in England, in case the grandson could not be found. Iliffe, the Stockton blacksmith and prospective earl, is now above forty-five years old. He is being congratulated on his good fortune.

Bill Nye's Philosophy, To the young the future has a roseate hue. The roseate hue comes high, but we have to use it in this place. To the young there spreads out a glorious range of possibilities. After the youth has indorsed for an intimate friend a few times, and purchased the research the later on chased the paper at the bank later on, the horizon won't seem to Horizon so tumultuously as it did aforetime. I remember at one time of purchasing such a piece of accommodation paper at a bank, and I still have it. I didn't need it any more than a cat needs eleven tails at one and the same time. Still the bank made it an object to me, and I secured it. Such things as these harshly knock the fluff and bloom off the cheek of youth, and prompt us to turn the strawberry-box bottom side up be-fore we purchase it. Youth is gay and hopeful, age is covered with ex perience and scars where the skin has been knocked off and had to grow on again. To the young a dollar looks large and strong, but to the middle-aged and the old it is weak and insignificant. When we are in the hey-day and fizz of existence, we believe everything, but after awhile we murmur. "What's that you're givin' us?" or words of a like character. Age brings caution and a lot of shopworn experience purchased at the highest market price. Time brings vain regrets and wisdom teeth that can be left in a glass of water over

That Dirty Dandruff.

Dandruff is dirty and disagreeable in every way. It soils the clothing continually, and is accompanied by a hardly less annoying sensation of itching. The scalp is diseased. There is nothing in the world so thoroughly adapted to this trouble as Parker's Hair Balsam. It cleanses and heals the scalp, stops the falling hair and restores its original softness, gloss and color. Is not oily, highly perfumed, an elegant dressing. Very economical, as only a small occasion al application keeps the hair in perfect condition. fect condition.
