What They Said. Charlie Jackson was a young man of bibulous habits and was always saving his pocket-book at the expense of others.

Not long ago he met the gang at a saloon and with great elevation told them that he was on to a new racket and would show them how it worked.

"I say," said Charlie, coming at once to the point, "we've had a little discussion here and want your advice."

"Well, what is it?" inquired the new man. "We were arguing that more men said, 'Will you have something?' 'What will you take?' 'Now, for instance, what do you say?' 'Oh, I say, 'Will you have something?' 'Of course we will!' shouted the gang, and before the man could recover they rushed him to the counter and he paid for the drinks.

It was voted a great invention and they got ready for the next victim. He came in in a few minutes and Charlie caught him.

"I say," he began as before, "we've had a little discussion here and want your advice."

"Anything I can do for you, call on me," answered the new man politely. "Well, we were arguing that more men say 'Will you have something?' than 'What will you take?' Now, for instance, what do you say?"

"Neither," questioned Charlie, knocked crooked by the reply. "That's what I said," replied the man. "Well, what in thunder do you say?"

"I always say, 'Thanks, I don't care if I do.'"

Charles had to set 'em up for seven men, and the gag was incontinently ruled out.

Bringing Matters to a Crisis. A rich young man was courting a poor young girl, but he was slow in bringing matters to a crisis.

So one day she complained of the hardships of being poor. "Poor!" he exclaimed gallantly. "A young lady with your wealth of mind and grace of person poor? Why, such charms as you possess are worth a mint of money."

"Well, I wish I had the mint and somebody else had the charms," she said, and the crisis came.

Cure For Piles. Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs.

At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture-like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address: The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Filiga, O. Sold by J. W. Conn.
