BUTTER-MAKING.

Bill Nye Writes Learnedly on this Particularly Fine Art.
Butter is the mature fruit of the full-blown cow. It is the greatest effort of her life. The cow toils not, neither does she spin, yet I say unto you that Solomon in all his glory could not beat her on hand-made, or rather milkmaid, butter. This subtle joke I have repaired and newly upholstered for use during the winter. Butter comes from the cow in a liquid state. It is quite a trick to win her confidence so that she will yield it up to a total stranger. I once sought to woo the lactal fluid from the milk retort of a large speckled cow to whom I was a comparative stranger. She wasn't one of those blooded cows that look as though they have been cut out of a sheet of paper with a pair of scissors. She was a low cow, with coarse instincts, born in obscurity.

Her brow was low, but she wore her tail high and she was haughty, oh, so haughty. The young man who had hitherto acquired the milk from this cow desired one evening to hie him away to a neighboring village where he might trip the light fantastic toe till the wee hours of the morn'g. (Quotation from a poet who was a poor speller.) He wanted me to milk his large, speckled plebian cow, and I said I would. The movement was certainly ill-advised. I undertook to do as I had agreed, but failed. From the moment I entered her stall and made a commonplace remark to her, I knew our acquaintance would not lead to a warm attachment. Somehow I felt constrained and uneasy in her society from the moment we met until loving friends pulled me through the stable window and brought me back to consciousness. I shall never undertake to milk a strange cow again until the sign is right. So far the sign has not been right.

I might be sent on a polar expedition and get stranded on an iceberg, with no other alternative but to milk a cow or eat an old friend, but I should hate to tackle the cow unless the friend was a very old friend, indeed.

Butter is produced by expunging the juice from a rare and costly chemical known as cream. Cream is the head on the milk. Milk is known as dry and extra dry. A good milkman will always ask you whether you want your milk wet or otherwise.

An old well digger named Grady told me about going over into Southern Indiana at one time to dig a well for a man named Withum. Withum was said to be very close. He was the most contagious man in Indiana. His wife used to skim the milk on one side and then turn it over and skim the bubbles off. It was a constant struggle between Withum and his wife to see who would be the meaner.

The first day that Grady was there they had a round ball of butter about as big as a lemon and as hard as Pharaoh's heart. The butter-knife had a handle that would turn every time any one tried to get a lick at the butter, and the little round ball would flop over on the other side and smile. Now and then a hired man would reach over his own knife and make a slash at the butter, but the butter, confident of its own strength, would flip over with a dull thud, and the man would leave a sigh and give it up. Then another farm hand would make a wild dash at it, but burst into tears and quit. Finally Grady, who had watched this performance several days, jabbed his fork down through the middle of the yellow chunk, and successfully cut it in two. In the center was a small, solid wooden top. "There," says Grady, "I've found out what the blamed thing is wound on, anyhow."

Why he Didn't Fall.
Last spring an Indiana man started a bank in a town in Dakota, and about the 1st of October, having secured deposits to the extent of $23,000, a notice was one morning posted on the doors of the bank reading: "Temporarily closed—hope to pay the depositors in full in a few days." He wanted to test the temper of the public previous to a big scoop. In the course of half an hour the door was kicked in, the office gutted, the banker stepped on until he was seventeen feet long and only two inches thick, and the chap who had held a revolver to his car jocularly remarked: "Now, then, my friend, we give you just five minutes to unlock that safe and count out the slugs to depositors in full." The depositors were paid in full, and the banker has come East in search of more civil people.

Experience may be a dear teacher," remarked a clergyman, as the contribution box was returned to him empty; "but the members of this particular flock who have experienced religion have accomplished it at a very trifling cost. The choir will sing the seventy-ninth hymn, omitting the first, third and fourth verses, in order to save unnecessary wear on the organ."

The people of Barton county, Ga., are reported to be highly pleased with the condition of affairs in that place since prohibition has been adopted. Street fights now very rarely occur, while in general, to quote a Southern journal, "every thing is rolling along as smooth as a stream of oil."

Wit and Humor.

At the mouth of a Cornish mine there is this advice: "Do not fall down this shaft, as there are men at work at the bottom of it."

The people of Philadelphia appear to be pretty well protected in one particular. The water of the Schuylkill river is too muddy to mix with the milk.

President Caldwell once told his fair charges to "light their lamps of knowledge at the pure fountain of truth." He must have had in mind an oil well.

"Was Rome founded by Romeo?" inquired a pupil of the teacher. "No, my son," replied the wise man; "it was Juliet who was found dead by Romeo."

"Do you drink?" said a temperance reformer to a beggar, who had implored alms of him. "Yes, thank you, sir," returned the candid pauper; "where shall we go?"

A satisfactory servant: Lady—"You have no beaux, cousins or aunts to loiter around, I hope?" Servant (seeking a place)—"Nary a woin, num, only an owl baste of a husband!"

Important passenger: "Say, pilot, what's the boat stopped for?" Pilot: "Too much fog." I. P.: "But I can see the sky overhead." P.: "Wal, 'til the biler busts we ain't a-goin' that way."

Class in social economy: Professor—"Mr. Meninges, what would you suggest as the first step necessary to the discouragement of divorces?" Mr. Meninges—"Fewer marriages."

Brown—"Yes, I'm going to take a short trip through the South. I don't care so much about it myself. I only go to please my wife, you know." Fogg—"Ah! I see. You leave Mrs. Brown at home, then?"

Infant terrible: "Say, Mr. Snobby, can you play cards?" Snobby: "Why, no, Johnny. I can't play very well." E. T.: "Well, then you'd better look out, for na says if Emma plays her cards well she'll catch you."

A: "Look at old Pennigfuchser, the banker. How queer he walks; what long strides he takes!" B: "That's his stingingness." A: "Stingingness? Nonsense!" B: "It is nothing else. He does it to save his shoe-leather."

He wrapped his sash round his wife's pipe. Then he said: "Hear how she blows!" Morn came. The plumber cried, "My wealth is ripe." I'm pained to learn that this here thing is true.

"What amused me most at the opera," said an Arab chief, who had been taken to hear "Faust," "was one of the musicians in the orchestra seated a little higher than the rest, who performed on an invisible instrument with a stick."

A very orthodox animal—Bishop. "Doesn't shy, eh, Mr. Perkins?" Horse-dealer—"Shy? Never! Stop, my Lord. I must be honest with you. I did know him to shy once, but that was at a Salvation Army passin' by." (Bishop buys horse at once.)

The "course of true love," traced by letters in a breach of promise suit, read in this man: "Dear Mr. Smith, 'My dear John, 'My darling John, 'My own darling Jack, 'My darling John, 'Dear John, 'Dear sir, 'Sir,' and all was over.

Not the Popular Horn.

The trumpet is a universally popular musical instrument, and appears to have been known in all ages and all countries. It is said to have derived its name from turbo, a shell. It is constructed in modern times several feet in length, doubled up in a parabolic form and sounded by a mouthpiece. The trumpet has always played a prominent part in battle, as an alarm or summons; few things are more inspiring than a flourish of trumpets. The old Eastern custom of proclaiming decrees or public notices with the sound of the trumpet has bequeathed us the vulgar saying with regard to a loud, boasting person: "Is his trumpet dead?" The twin brother of the trumpet, the horn, owes its origin to the custom of blowing through the hollow horn of an animal.

Procrastination is the thief of time, is a proverb that can be illustrated in many ways. A slight aching in the limbs or joints is felt, and delay in treatment may bring about a severe attack of rheumatism. In all such cases use St. Jacobs Oil. It banishes every pain.

Are you made miserable by indigestion, Constipation, Bloating, Loss of appetite, Yellow skin? St. Jacobs' Oil is a positive cure. For sale by W. E. Demant.
