

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1925

Portland has reduced its saloon licenses to $300 per annum.

The Madrona sailed from New York for this coast on the last inst.

Bergman & Co.'s establishment looks vivid since it received that last coat of paint.

The new revenue cutter Richard Rush is receiving her machinery at San Francisco and will soon sail for the Sound.

Considerable building has been done in Astoria this season in the way of building new houses and improving old ones.

A carpenter at Cheney W. T., who was out of work started in to burn the town down or up last week, to make trade lively, and came near succeeding.

An unusual run of salmon is reported at Coquille City. One haul of a net caught 137, and a fisherman single handed took over 600 in one day recently.

Portland is shipping large quantities of Oregon dried prunes east, where a good demand exists. A car load of 22,000 pounds goes to Kansas City, Mo., this week.

Jan. Rogers got some of the first mallard ducks of the season yesterday, but he didn't keep them long, so great was the demand. From now on they will furnish an agreeable variation to the meat bill of fare.

The Seattle grand jury last Wednesday presented indictments for murder in the first degree against the five white men and two Indians who were arrested for participating in the massacre of Chinamen at Squak last month.

An Olympia correspondent of the Tacoma News takes a hopeful view of the prospective logging business, gathered from interviews with loggers in that locality, and states that it is thought that logs will be $8 by the first of the year, and that loggers will have all they can do.

Sometimes it is strawberries, other times potatoes, then again plums or pears; always the largest. This time it is hops. A bunch of hops was brought to the office yesterday, each individual hop being two and a half inches in length, the hops sticking on the vine as thick as hairs on a dog's back.

In these days of chilly mornings and occasional tardy fires it is well to remember that it is the vapor of coal oil that explodes and that an explosion of this kind can occur when the oil in the lamp is apparently some distance from the fire. If the oil can be kept about 44 feet from the fire under all circumstances there will be little danger from that source.

A boys' and girls' aid society has been permanently organized in Portland. The idea is to have a receiving home and a superintendent for juvenile delinquents who are yet young in wickedness and who might be reclaimed if given a show instead of being flung in with hardened criminals and given a shove down the steep grade of social outlinary.

H. M. Wetherbe was out duck hunting yesterday, and when about a mile this side of Knappa he found the dead body of a woman on an island in the tules. The body was badly decomposed. There were some torn clothes near the body, which had evidently lain for many weeks where found. A party got up on the Gen. Custer this morning to bring the remains down here and hold an inquest.

To-morrow's boat race promises to be an interesting contest. The following boats have entered for the race: Parole, 20ft. 3in., owned by Denny Curran and John Nelson; John L., 20 ft. 2 in., Jas. Turk; Harry Bingham, 19 ft. 8 in., W. L. McCabe; Pride of the Columbia, 20 ft. 4 in., Hugh McCormick; Brownie, 20 ft., J. W. Welch; Dave Campbell, J. Johnson. Pools were sold last night on the race, no boat appearing to be the special favorite.

C. T. Thomas and his companions yesterday launched a finely fitted up scow in which to shoot the festive duck. It has all the modern conveniences, and a duck hunt in that scow will not be attended with the usual discomforts in a camp where you get back in the rain at 5 p. m., and have to start a fire and the matches are wet and the bacon is gone and the coffee has spilled in the pepper and your dripping hat puts the fire out and the dog upsets the frying pan and the other fellow has mislaid his pocket flask.

All this brilliant sunshine and glory of the dawn and majesty of noon and holy hush of eventide and solemn stillness of the night; all the pink and purple and rosy flush and scarlet and sunset sheen shimmering in violet and tints of azure into blue and silver bathed down. Across the hill last eve came a blast from old ocean, the fog is rolling in ragged and brown and the harbor bar is moaning, and the wind and rain have turned loose and you'd better shoot that straw hat and hunt a rubber coat.

Monday forenoon a gold watch key chain with moss agate base. Finder will be liberally rewarded by returning to C. W. Lounsbury, at O. R. & N. Co.'s office.

LAUNCH OF THE GOV. MOODY.

A large number of people went to Smith's point yesterday morning to see the launch of the new pilot schooner, Gov. Moody. Those who got there by 11:30 saw the launch, though it was not high water for some time afterward. A good many were disappointed, getting there after the launch of the vessel.

There is always something interesting and exciting in the launch of a vessel. At the last moment the ways are cut simultaneously on both sides of her bow, a wedge is driven in, there is a little shiver, a slide and with a long steady glide the vessel slips off her cradle and plunges into the sea. The launch yesterday morning was in every way a success. For just the fractional part of a second she hung at the finish; the next instant she was aloft, and as she swung around the universal remark was regarding her graceful appearance. She had 37 tons of ballast aboard, and when loaded a little more to bring her stern down and drawing about nine feet forward it is thought that few sail craft on the coast will beat her in speed.

Her launch was signalled by the breaking of a bottle in the hands of a little daughter of Jno. Rutter, the builder of the vessel. Fourteen men were aboard, who, after the launch of the vessel, gave "three cheers for the Gov. Moody," which were responded to from the shore. It is thought that the rigging and finishing will take three or four days more, when the vessel will be ready for use.

ESCAPED PATIENT.

Deputy Sheriff Hawks, of Multnomah county, started up yesterday morning with C. F. McCormack, a young attorney of Portland, who had been committed to the asylum. The train slowed up at State street, and the patient and Mr. Hawks being on the platform of one of the cars, McCormack jumped off. In trying to prevent him from escaping Mr. Hawks was pulled off, and received a cut on his head and several severe bruises on his body, and the patient ran away. Mr. Hawks took a cab at the depot and hunted throughout the city for the escaped patient, but without finding him. McCormack, as soon as he got away, made a bee line for the state house, but he recognized Gov. Moody's home and went in to call on the governor. After a short time he went up the state house, and as the supreme court was in session he went up to their room and threw them into confusion by trying to argue a case before them. Henry Price, the cabman, heard where he was, and when he found him he was laying his speech off to the supreme court in a manner that would discount a stump orator about election times. Henry took charge of him and took him out to the asylum, where he was turned over to the proper authorities. -Salem Statesman, 7.

The Oregonian takes up the matter of roads and says that the present road system is a failure. That is a fact. It will continue to be a failure while the several counties fool away the large sums raised by taxation. What has Clatsop county to show for the comparatively large amounts of taxes paid? There is very little passable thoroughfare in the whole county. All that connects us with Tillamook county is a legislative enactment and a trail. But with a large proportion of the road tax paid to the men that collect it, another large portion frittered away in a manner similar to our beautiful "street improvements," and a comparatively small amount put where it will do the most good, nothing better than the present status can be expected. The Oregonian asks the press of the state what they think about it. Judging from observation THE ASTORIAN thinks that individual honesty and official activity are required to properly apply the large sums annually raised by taxing the people.

The best hand we of Astoria can take in this present Chinese agitation is to give our own race the preference and let the Chinaman alone as much and as far as possible. If there is a little job of cutting wood or of shoveling, or of anything else that a Chinaman can do and usually is on hand to do give it to one of our own race, even if it does cost two bits more. The true way to make "the Chinese go" is to refuse to employ them. If we all did that and stuck together in a continued refusal to employ them they would go fast enough. As far as laundry work is concerned it appears to be totally in the hands of the Chinese, though there are several deserving white women in the city who would be glad to get washing and ironing to do and could do it just as neatly as the Chinese laundries.

WHAT THEY SAY IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Recent reviews of the English market show that in July actual sales were made in Liverpool at 15s@16s for well known brands and for these goods 20s@20s 9d is readily realized to-day. We look for further improvement on present conditions and a sharp advance in values. A few large dealers have become impressed with the advantages of the situation and believing that canned salmon is good property, have bought quite extensively during the past few weeks. According to careful estimate of stocks at home and abroad they found the available supply totally inadequate for the demand from New York. They went into the market quietly and accepted all reasonable offers, and now the market is controlled by a salmon syndicate. Investigation shows that the "heavy salmon stock in Great Britain" was a myth, existing only in the imagination of the American Grocer. And now we have reliable information to the effect that brokers have been actively engaged in purchasing all the salmon offering here, the stock on the river and portions of the cargoes abroad for Europe and New York. That Wm. T. Coleman & Co. during the past month have purchased on their own and joint account, 70,000 cases and upward, all for export, and that they now virtually control the salmon market, as they own the bulk of the Eastern stock, and the stock afloat and in Europe.

The available stock in San Francisco market does not exceed two carloads. These are perhaps ten carloads on the Columbia river available for shipment. The local market being entirely bare, New York must supply the trade of the United States from now till next June, and we expect to see shipments from New York to Denver. Fall packing is about ended; the upput has been light, compared with other years. Eastern dealers may be able to form some idea of the future of the salmon market from the fact that foreign countries are buying Sacramento river fall pack, and paying $1.02 1/2 per dozen.

G. W. Hanne has just sold 3,000 cases of the Carquinez Packing company's goods at that price for export to Australia, which is equivalent to $1.05 for domestic shipment or $1.27 1/2 delivered east. Wm. T. Coleman & Co. sold on Monday, September 28th, 2,500 cases of Umpqua river fish, Bear brand fall pack, at $1.05 for export to Australia, equivalent to $1.07 1/2 for domestic shipment or $1.30 delivered east. This same lot of fish was offered a week ago at $1.07 1/2 delivered east, but the price did not meet the buyers' views until Australia took the lot at an advance of 22 1/2 cents per dozen or nearly $1.00 per case above American offers ten days ago.

There has also been a sale of 10,000 cases of the Flag brand for Liverpool during the week at 20s 9d c. f. L. The Thistle and other Columbia river brands brought better prices. Dealers at last have conceded the shortage in the Pacific coast pack which was so accurately foretold. The Columbia river pack showed a shortage of 131,639 cases and the fall packs generally being short will show a deficit of fully 300,000 in the pack of the coast for the present season. The Puget sound canners made arrangements for a heavy pack, but the run falling short, their expectations have not been realized. The Frazer river pack shows a shortage as well as the Skeena and other outside rivers.

Since the above was in type we have learned that Wm. T. Coleman & Co., during the last ten days have purchased 100,000 cases of Columbia river fish in addition to the large purchases made in the east and en route, and that of this amount 70,000 cases have been resold by them at an advance of from thirty-five to fifty cents per case and that the market is still on the climb. That also all the fall packs have been contracted for by the above named firm.

We also report the purchase by Wm. T. Coleman & Co., on vessel bound for New York 19,000 cases; also 15,000 cases fall pack which has been resold to Australia.

Offers of 18s have been refused for Frazer river fish to Great Britain, for which 18s was declined week before last. -Cal. Grocer and Canner, 2.

By means of a cleverly executed swindle concocted in Portland, a man calling himself H. F. Merrill, and representing himself to be the cashier of the Albany national bank, succeeded in swindling two Montana banks, one in Helena and the other in Butte, out of $3,500 each. He had some certificates of deposit and identification certificates lithographed in Portland, and made out two in the name of O. C. Whitney, for $3,500 each, and as he was possessed of the usual identification certificate blank with the Albany cashier's name forged to it, he had no difficulty in cashing the forged certificates of deposit. He is supposed to have kept on his way east. The swindle has been worked in the valley states occasionally, but it is believed to be the first instance of the class in this state.
