"Why, Edgar Allan Poe, of course." "I don't see it."
"You don't? Why, it only took a little to make a poet of Poe."

A self-confessed poet who spells Chicago with a lower case c has sent us some of his early rose poetry and at the same fell swoop applies for a situation. If he will come to us in all his virgin purity and freshness, and stand on his head in one corner and stand on his head in one corner of the room for six hours by a stop watch and allow the sadly disarranged divine afflatus which seems to be floating around in his system to fairly settles, we will allow him a fair salary. This is the only situation in which he could make himself useful to us, to himself and to the great, pulsating world.

Wise Sayings. The child of slander is never born toothless.

Nature never builded so perfect, that fashion did not try to improve the work. What people sometimes think an ocean of trouble is really but a notion of dyspeptic ideas. Many men act as if they believed the horn of plenty is nothing but a glass of whisky. Men sometimes rise so high on the wave of fame, that all the joys of earth escape them.
