TUTT'S PILLS
TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.
From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Erection of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine, TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," promoting appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA. Sold everywhere. Office 41 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of 41c. Office, 41 Murray Street, New York.

WHAT LOVE DOES.

A Man who was Father-in-Law to His Mother-in-Law.

"Oh, yes," said an attorney to whom a reporter applied for information he might possess on the subject of whimsical marriages, "I know of a case in this city where two uncles and their nephew married three sisters. Thus the nephew's wife became the niece of her sisters and her husband became the brother-in-law of his uncles. His first boy became the grand nephew of his aunts, his mother's sisters and his cousins were necessary his aunts and uncles."

Thus encouraged the reporter with a mission looked about for more whimsical marriages and learned of half a dozen in as many hours. A prominent sewing machine man who formerly lived in this city married a widow who had a young daughter. When the latter had grown up to womanhood the sewing machine man obtained a divorce from his wife and married her daughter, making his former wife his mother-in-law. The three were often seen riding out together in the same carriage. It is but a few years since a certain well-known historian and poet, after the death of his wife, married her daughter by a previous marriage, much to the disgust of his son, who found that his sister had suddenly grown into his mother-in-law.

But the queerest case of all is that of a widower who married a widow and her daughter, the son marrying the mother and the father the daughter. When the widower married the daughter he became father-in-law to the widow, who was his daughter-in-law; or, in other words, was father-in-law to his mother-in-law. His wife became the step-mother of his son-in-law, who was in fact her half brother, being the full son of her father, her husband. When the son married the widow he became the father-in-law of his own father, because his wife was his father's wife's mother. By his marriage the son became the stepfather of his step-mother, who was his stepdaughter. The widow is not only the mother of her daughter, but also her daughter-in-law and her daughter becomes her mother-in-law. The widow is likewise the daughter-in-law of her husband's father, who, it will be remembered, is her son-in-law by reason of being her daughter's husband. By marrying the widow the son became the son-in-law of his mother, the wife of his father. The son became the father of his father's wife, his half-sister, his own daughter, because she is the daughter of his own wife. The old gentleman, by his marriage with the daughter, became his son's wife's son-in-law, that lady likewise being his daughter-in-law, although being his wife's mother. The father's wife, as step-mother to his children, is therefore step-mother to her mother and step-father, the latter being the son of her husband. If the union of the son and the widow be blessed with a girl babe the little one would ordinarily be the old gentleman's grandchild. In this instance, however—the old man being son-in-law to the son—he, in addition to being his grandfather, is a half-brother to the infant and the child is half-sister to its grandmother. In case the daughter, who married the widower, should have a boy, he would at once become his grandmother's half-brother and her brother-in-law at the same time.

A Touching Incident
The following touching incident is recorded of Madame Marie Rose, during her sojourn in this country, and while on a visit to Auburn prison, New York, where she sang in the presence of nearly all of its inmates, including upwards of twelve hundred convicts. On her arrival she desired to know if all the prisoners were present, and being answered in the negative, she requested that even those in solitary confinement should, as a special privilege, be permitted to come into the chapel and join the other convicts in listening to the music which she proposed to sing. The request was acceded, and the poor fellows, some of them for the first time in many years, were permitted not only to look once more on the face of a beautiful woman, but to hear again from an accomplished artiste the sweet notes that reminded them of the innocent days of youth. The chief selections of Madame Rose were "Sweet Spirit, Hear my prayer," and "The Sweet By and By," and even the most hardened criminals were stirred to tears. After this fair cantatrice made a tour of the institution the prisoners meanwhile being retained in the chapel, and on her return she sang the old familiar air, "Comin' Thro' the Rye."
The most intelligent of the convicts prepared a testimonial of thanks, which was duly signed and presented to the lady. It closed with the following quotation:
"God sent His singers upon earth With songs of sadness and of mirth That they might touch the hearts of men And bring them back to heaven again."

A young lady whose very best young man lived over her way with his parents took a seat by the window one cloudy morning. "Why do you sit by the window such a chilly morning, Laura?" asked her mother. "I am waiting for the son to come out, ma," she replied.

The Comet.

The comet is a kind of astronomical parody on the planet. Comets look some like planets but they are thinner and do not hurt so hard when they hit anybody as a planet does. The comet was so called because it had hair on it. I believe, but late years the bald-headed comet is giving as good satisfaction everywhere.

The characteristic features of the comet are: A nucleus, a nebulous light or coma, and usually a luminous train or tail worn high. Sometimes several tails are observed on one comet, but this occurs only in flush times.

When I was young I used to think I would like to be a comet in the sky, up above the world so high, with nothing to do but loaf around and play with the little new laid planets and have a good time, but now I can see where I was wrong. Comets also have their troubles, and their perihelions, their hyperbolas and their parabolas. A little over 300 years ago Tycho Brahe discovered that comets were extraneous to our atmosphere, and since then times have improved. I can see that trade is steadier and potatoes run less to tops than they did before.

Soon after that they discovered that comets all had more or less periodicity. Nobody knows how they got it. All the astronomers had been watching them day and night and didn't know when they were exposed but there was no time to talk and argue over the question. There were two or three hundred comets all down with it at once. It was an exciting time.

Comets sometimes live to a great age. This shows that the night air is not so injurious to the health as many people would have us believe. The great comet of 1680 is supposed to have been the one that was noticed about the time of Caesar's death, 44 B. C., and still when it appeared in Newton's time, seventeen hundred years after its first grand farewell tour, he said that it was very well preserved indeed and seemed to have retained all its faculties in good shape.

Astronomers say that the tails of all comets are turned from the sun. I do not know why they do this, whether it is etiquette among them or just a mere habit.

A late writer on astronomy said that the substance of the nebulousity and the tail is of almost inconceivable tenacity. He said this and then death came to his relief.

Another writer says of the comet and its tail "that the curvature of the latter and the acceleration of the periodic time in the case of Encke's comet indicate their being affected by a resisting medium which has never been observed to have the slightest influence on the planetary periods."

I do not fully agree with the eminent authority, though he may be right. Much fear has been the result of the comet's appearance ever since the world began, and it is as good a thing to worry about as anything I know of. If we could get close to a comet without frightening it away, we would find that we could walk through it any where as we could through the glare of a torchlight procession. We should so live that we will not be ashamed to look a comet in the eye, however. Let us pay up our newspaper subscription and lead such lives that when the comet strikes we will be ready.

Some worry a good deal about the chances for a big comet to plop into the sun some dark and rainy night, and thus bust up the whole universe. I wish that was all I had to worry about. If any responsible man will agree to pay my taxes and funeral expenses, I will agree to do his worrying about the comet's crashing into the bosom of the sun and knocking its daylight out.

What He Found in His Soup.

Sunday, while John Capura was eating his dinner, he proceeded to fill his plate from a tureen of broth and stew. In doing so he lifted out a section of steer's jaw, and dropped to his seat, paralyzing the rest of the boarders with the exclamation: "Jerusalem, boys! I've struck a bonanza in the soup-bowl!" He lifted out the jaw, and it was seen that the teeth were apparently coated with gold, some very thickly, others carrying only a film. The balance of the jaw was speedily fished out, and both pieces were now on exhibition.

The animal constituting this curious freak in dentistry was a four-year-old steer, born and raised on the Lagomarsino ranch on the Tuckahoe river. It has been fed and watered exclusively at the ranch, at a pond twelve feet in diameter dug out of the hard, marly, fine sandstone, and in summer at the river banks. No traces of gold can be seen around the locality, and even were they plentiful the track would still be an anomaly.

The United States Government recently spent $100 at Roseman, M. T., to convict a man for stealing $3 worth of postage stamps.

The dentist is a good logician. He always gets at the root of the matter. So does St. Jacobs Oil when it is used for rheumatism.
