The fishing boat race as advertised in another column, will be postponed one week, until Saturday, Oct. 24, to give the boats all time to get ready, and a subscription purse of $25 in coin will be added to the first prize of a new Waltham watch and chain given by Jeff. See adv't.

Work will be continued on the Cascade division of the Northern Pacific during the coming winter. The road is complete for a distance of ninetythree miles from the Columbia river. No further contracts have been made for construction on the western side of the Cascade mountains.

In the matter of overland freights Astoria is pretty well favored, goods being laid down here at the same rates as in Portland or San Francisco. The Standard Oil Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, is reaching out hitherward in this matter, and is delivering oil in carload lots on the dock here at way down figures, they paying the freight.

Lest they should "get mad" and forget it, one of the first things the legislature might, could, would or should do after convening in special session, is to fix things so that Judge Taylor is not by law obliged to open court in Alkali and Astoria on the same day. The judge is not given to spreading himself, but even if he were the straddle is too great.

Then comes poll tax, and road tax, and property road tax. Oh, it counts up. Under the beautiful law that allows indebtedness the man that gets in debt and stays there is lots smarter than the foolish fellow that works to get out of debt and accumulate a little property. THE NEW SLAVERY

The Inevitable Degradation of White La bor Consequent upon Retention of The Chinese.

The following is copied from the San Francisco correspondence of the Cincinnati Enquirer, which has achieved the distinguished honor of being one of the first Eastern journals to denounce the new form of slavery now insidiously struggling for a foot-hold in this country: Stephen T. Gage, a native of northern Ohio, has lived in California thirty-eight years. For the past fifteen years he has years. For the past litteen years he has been connected with the Central and Southern Pacific Railroads, and is now assistant to Mr. Stanford, president of the whole Pacific system of this coast. Brought up on a farm, Mr. Gage has a good practical knowledge of agriculturgood practical knowledge of agricultural matters, and especially of farming on this coast, and is now managing a farm of 35,000 acres. His railroad duties have forced upon him a knowledge of nearly every business or industry conducted on the Pacific slope, including mining, for he was actively engaged in that for years. But, above all, Mr. Gage is an honest man, and, whether right or wrong, helieves in all things which he nature of the property of the proper advocates. Being a man of good sense, his conclusions on matters outside his callroad affairs are accepted by those The report of the petition of the petition of the who know him as sound and worthy of the Weiman regarding a missance consideration. Such a man, with his second and adopted. opinions on the Chinese question, the one subject which is of more import-ance to the people of the Pacific coast her day I drifted his talk to that sub-other day I driffed his talk to that sub-ject, when he said:

"I am opposed to Chinese immigra-tion because on an even keel the white man cannot compete with him in any of the pursuits requiring physical labor. I do not discuss him in any of the com-mercial avocations, but merely as an element of labor. I have made a com-positive study of the white and Chinese parative study of the white and Chinese working people in every avocation. Perhaps their civilization is higher than ours, for it is certainly much older, and it has taught them how to support the maximum population at the minimum i. The fact that a population of over or hundred million live upon the pro-cis of the territory embraced within a limits of the kingdom of China the limits of the kingdom of China proves this proposition. I have never seen a Chinaman who could not read and write in his own language. They are the most docide people up to a certain point in their employment, and that point is where they believe they have acquired sufficient knowledge of the business at which they were employed to carry it on themselves. They are an imitative race, but they originate nothing, as is shown by the fact that their whole civilization stands where it certainly was 1000 years ago, barring certainly was 1300 years ago, barring the innovations forced upon them by

"The degradation of white labor is herefore a natural sequence of compe-ition with this class of persons, and I tition with this class of persons, and I think any observer will soon see that the introduction of Chinese in California has established in thirty years as distinct a line of demarkation between labor and capital as slavery did in the 240 years of its existence in the old states, with the disadvantage here of the c being fewer restraints of all kinds on the aristocratic element. Less than five hundred men own fully one-half the property of this great State, and they are able to retain their vast estates because of the presence of the Chinese because of the presence of the Chinese labor, and at the same time pay less than half the taxes. The man who does not own sufficient property to allow him to employ Chinese labor and make a profit on it fails to the grade of the many white track of the South, though a profit on it fails to the grade of the "poor white trash" of the South, though he may work every day. In thirty years we have made this vast gulf between the two classes, and while the products of all the rest of the country are based upon the labor of property-consuming white men, the products of California represent the low wages of the Chinese, for every white producer who employs only his own labor must compele with them in the various markets. The enthem in the various markets. The em-ployer of Chinese labor starts with an advantage over the person whose mark etable products are the results of his own labor, "Practical illustrations of this fact are regular meeting.

The question of jarisdiction regarding control of the fire alarm came up, resulting in the referring of the mat-Britain at an advance on the above figures.

Let's see; county and state tax, 22 mills, city tax, 15 mills; school district tax, 6 mills; that's 43 mills.

The second of so much talk about it, he believed the force was no greater than one year ago; Councilman Trensite and tax and service of the horse, and the second of the horse and the second of the second of the horse and the second of the second of the horse and the second of t tables which one Chinaman carries is 250 pounds. A white man could not move this quantity of vegetables without shoeing, stable rent, and repairs to wagon and harness. To make cost, the owner of the horse and wagon must make at least $1 per day of profit. If he lives, or has any family, he must make at least $2 per day of gross profit. The Chimman can sell at a less price and make the same net profit that the white man can. If he makes but fifty cents per day profit he has at least thirty cents to lay by. I have known a China-man with only $10 of capital to carry a whole square of enstoners' accounts for a month, and at the end of that time each of them would owe him more than the whole of his original cavitat.

John Exon. of the Deep Sea Fishing company came down yesterday on the Telephone. He goes to Seat the world owe nim more than the motion being to begin active operations.

The Alden Besse sailed from Victoria for Hong Kong last Monday with 384 Chinese. The Coloma which sails from Portland next Wednesday, will take over 300. There is one thing in connection with this emigration business, says the Ocegonian, which will be a surprise to many. Any Chinaman so fortunate as to have $100 in gold can, by leaving it with Portland bankers, get a bill of exchange on Hong Kong for $114.50, payable in big Mexican dollars. If a Chinaman has $500 in gold lars. If a Chinaman has $500 i in every household. Dr Shoe, go to P. J. Goodmans, on Chenamus street, next door to L. W. Case. a consumer is also a producer. A Chinese population is not a consuming population. In other words, if the hundred thousand Chinese laborers were whites, they would consume at least three times as much as the Chinese do, and thus create a local demand for three times greater production. At least two-times greater production. At least two-times greater production.

thirds of the clothing and persona effects of the Chinese are brought from China, so that we can say that practi-cally they add nothing to the wealth of the state by their consumption, and all the wages paid them for their labor is sent out of the country. "The Asiatic civilization may be higher than ours. I don't care how they class it, but it will not amalgamate with ours, nor can people with our civ-lilization live under it. We have passed the point which the framers of the Contitution had in view when they invite stitution had in view when they invited the oppressed of all nations to seek an asylum on our shores. We are now bound to protect our own people and while we maintain free schools and teach our children to use luxuries unknown to the Asiatics we must not e peet them to compete in the race of life with a class of toilers who can subsist on what would not have ted and clothed a slave in the cotton states. If the rail-roads are to prosper they must have a onsuming and, consequently, a produ ing population, and this cannot be until we are rid of the Chinese laborers. I do not pretend to give all that Mr. Gage said on this subject, but give his main points. Considering his opportu-nities of observation, and the fact that his corporation employs thousands of these people, his opinions should carry a weight which would not attach to the saying of the mere politician.

MAKING MONEY IN ALASKA.

On great Maccatina, Alaska, where Joliet once had a sealing establish-ment, lives Samuel Goment, who, beside his family, consisting of a wife and one or two brothers, is its only inhabitant. He was born on the isl and; has lived there forty years without yearning for other habitation and has grown rich in catching sealscaught 3,000 the last spring; net profit to him of that achievement the first door, but can swing the cylsomething like $30,000, which is inder around until the cell appears in pretty well for a place where one would imagine nothing could be ex-pended. This, however, as Mr. Goment assured us, is not the case, as trading boats visit the island during the open season, laden with all sorts of seductive wares. In Mr. Goment's hospitable cellar are excellent brands officer, and it is impossible for them of Macon, Vieux and Rumart; and he lives here like an insular baron, though without retainers or retinue, getting tribute and revenue from the annually recurring seal. He is well to do, contented and happy, sees a little of the outside world, getting intermittent glimpses of it through the fortnightly visit of the government mail boat, the Otter, whose black smoke pennon we saw a day before our arrival, and through the occasional visit of fishing schooners from Newfoundland and the Magdalens such as now lie at anchor in the harbor. Mr. Goment, who is a burly, good-natured man, bearded like Barbarossa and with a sort of He bridian accent, visits us on board wants us all to accompany him to his home in order that we may be deluged with his pent up hospitalities tells us all the wild lore of the region and makes himself an immense favorite with every body on board. They Keep the Prisoners From Breaking Jail in Omaha.

Omaha, Nebraska, has just finished a new jail, built on an entirely original plan, and the Omaha Bee says it is a novelty well worth visiting. The pe-culiar feature of the jail, which marks it as different from any other, is that the cells are arranged in the form of a great iron cylinder which revolves about so that only one cell is at the opening at any one time. This cylinder is three stories high, there being ten cells on each floor. Its weight is forty-five tons, and this ponderous weight is hung from above instead of turning on a track below. The strangest part of the arrangement is that the great cylinder can be turned by a simple crank with very little force, a man with his left hand moving it readily. When it is complete it is the intention to have a little water motor in the basement, and then by simply moving a lever the cylinder will be set to rotating. It is suggested that when there are prisoners who it is feared may be trying to cut out, the cylinder can, by a motor, be easily kept moving slowly all night, so that the prisoners do not remain long enough in one place to do any mischief, or even to crawl out if they had made a partial break. It seems that prisoners have little chance for escape from this new jail. A cage of iron bars completely surrounds the cylinder in which the cells are. The entrance on each floor is guarded by two doors. The officer standing outside does not have to unlock, even the first door, but can swing the cylwhich is the desired prisoner, and then by a simple movement the inner door is opened and the prisoner can step out of his cell. Then the officer can open the other door and let the man out, but the other prisoners are way beyond any possible reach of the officer, and it is impossible for them is taking a man out or putting one in He can handle any number of men in the same way, and they cannot reach him until he chooses to let them.
