

The Daily Astorian. ASTORIA, OREGON: SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1885. EASTERN PRESS COMMENT.

The New York World, Democratic, of the 15th, says of the Ohio election: Where are we to look for the cause of this defeat? The mere prestige of success and the course of the administration in retaining seven-eighths of the Republican officeholders should have given the Democrats thousands of new votes. How is it that the Democratic party of Ohio was not as strong with the Democratic administration at Washington as without it? The World thinks the result is to be greatly regretted, because it is an expression of hostility to the Democratic administration and will be paraded by the Republicans as an indication that a reaction has already set in against the Democracy and in favor of the return of the Republicans to power.

It is announced says the Oregonian that the O. R. & N. company will extend its line as soon as possible from Starbuck, three miles south of Snake river, east to Pomeroy, a distance of thirty-one miles. The purpose of this extension is to tap Garfield county, a great grain country, already well populated. There is a large amount of wheat in the district ready for transport and it is intended to put the branch through in time to move it this season. The road has been long hoped for by the people of Garfield county, and its coming will be hailed with the greatest satisfaction. To their own enterprise is due, largely, the accomplishment of their hopes. They raised an enormous crop of grain this season, by this means showing the railroad managers the capabilities of the country, and as a special inducement offered a freight bonus, equivalent to a cash subsidy of $150,000. People who help themselves in this way deserve success.

The Sun, Democratic, in its leader says: "The Republicans have chosen their governor and have a handsome majority in the legislature. Their power over the affairs of Ohio will be complete until the next election, but ought not to have any discouraging effect upon the Democracy in New York. They have an excellent state ticket, one far superior to the Republican ticket. The Times, mugwump, insists that the result in Ohio, as also that in New York next month, will strengthen Cleveland in his work of honest reform, and independent Republicans and independent Democrats are alike engaged in overthrowing the spoils politicians. The Herald, independent, says: "The Ohio election returns are full of surprises. The total vote exceeds 700,000 the largest vote ever cast on a rainy day in an off year. Foraker's plurality reaches 20,000. The Republicans claimed only from 12,000 to 15,000 and hardly expected that. The prohibition vote is the largest ever polled by the party in the state. It was expected that the vote this year would be drawn chiefly from the Republicans. It has been drawn largely from the Democrats, a result which Gov. Hoadly considers one of the most striking features of the election. The increased prohibition vote of Tuesday is not to be taken as a corresponding advance of the cause. A great many, notably Democrats, were unwilling to vote for their own party ticket, and cast their ballots for Leonard, knowing there was no danger of his election."

UNDER the above heading the Wasco Sun very properly calls attention to a continued miscarriage of justice, which we trust will be attended to at the coming special legislative session. Our Dalles contemporary says: "Wasco, Gilliam and Crook counties, east of the mountains, and Clackamas, Washington, Columbia and Clatsop, west of the mountains, making seven counties, are placed in one district, with one court and one judge, while Multnomah county has two judges and courts. In presenting this matter to our readers we do not pretend to know what was the cause of such a distribution of justice, but it will be seen that, no matter how energetic a judge may be, and we accredit our present Judge Taylor with great earnestness and industry, yet to attempt to hold court in seven counties, and be on a continual travel to reach the seven courts at a proper time, is simply an absurdity; but to do justice with the affairs of a county is an impossibility. Many cases which for months have caused anxiety and trouble, looking for a settlement in the courts, must necessarily be put off, and the criminal or seeker for justice, are placed at unfair cost.

It is so now that many almost consider it a farce to go to court expecting justice. He who has plenty of money can afford to await justice, but the poor man cannot. Looking at it for the county's sake it is an unjust division, and this county is forced to await justice and unreasonable expense, hoping to get a case tried, for criminal or a civil offence, and there is but little chance for him during the exceeding crowding of one court, and it must lay over and costs be increased.

Such justice we call thin, and made for a purpose hard for us to understand."

JUDGE FORAKER, governor elect of Ohio, on being asked what he regarded as the leading motives that led to the result in Ohio, said: "First, the Republicans regarded it important that a decisive expression should be given at the first election after the beginning of a Democratic national administration; second, a determination to give an expression in favor of a free ballot and a fair count in all our elections; third, distrust concerning the free trade tendencies of the Democratic party, and the necessity of maintaining the Republican ascendancy in the United States senate; fourth, disgust with the Democratic state administration in Ohio, notably the election of the last senator, and the extravagance of the last legislature."

IN offering to the public a protest against the judicial division of Oregon, we thought best, says the Wasco Sun, to show how it was divided in population in this district as near as possible: Clackamas has 9,260 population; Clatsop, 7,252; Columbia, 2,042; Crook, 7,082; Wasco, 11,120—36,726 population with one judge and one district. Multnomah county, with 25,203 population, has two judicial districts and two judges. The judges in Multnomah county have 12,601 population each, and in this district 36,726, scattered over 500 miles of travel.

THE Reverend Mr. Leonard, the Prohibition candidate for governor of Ohio at last Tuesday's election, telegraphed exultantly the night before election that Hoadley, the Democratic candidate would be elected. Of course that was what he was working for, and his telegram "gave him away." But the game didn't work as well in Ohio in October '85, as it did in New York in November, '84. St. John got $30,000 for what he did in New York. Wonder what St. Leonard got for what he did in Ohio!

GEN. HOWARD has ordered the troops which have been on police duty at Rock Springs and Evans, Wyoming, back to their post. A small guard was left in each camp.

It is understood that the death sentence passed on Louis Riel, leader of the half-breed rebellion in Canada, will be commuted to lifelong servitude.
