A CREOLE MARKET.

The "Marquis" Coffee-Moa's Splendid Coon-Contagious "Dixie."

It has been much the fashion lately to remark, in a tone of intense fatigue, that the French market has been vastly overdone. It is consoling to reflect, in this connection, with one's pen poised for further perpetration, that the same languid utterance is invariably upon the lips of society when any beautiful or marvellous, or entertaining thing is under discussion, from the Mammoth Cave to the coliseum. I will spare you our emotions, but nothing else.

"First," said Theophila, "to the Marquis for coffee."

We entered the nearest broad-roofed shed and pandemonium. Absolutely the only human creatures not shouting, singing, beckoning and bargaining, were the half-dozen

STOLID CREOLETAW SQUARES

That squatted on the pavements in the sun, with their baskets of gumbo illee and other herbs. They were positively non-committal upon every subject, especially that so dear to ordinary humanity—themselves. There they sat and shook their brown old faces, half hid in great masses of black hair and said not a word at all. But for Indian taciturnity, Creole volubility made ample amends.

"Get down out of dat!" cried a Dago game dealer wildly to a dead rabbit placed conspicuously on a bar above his stall, to the vast amusement of the lookers-on. The fellow worked himself into a perfect storm of passion, and at every fresh invective the crowd around him grew larger and more appreciative. At the same stall hung two skinned animals of ghastly appearance and horrible grinning teeth. "Wild cat," said the dealer in response to my inquiry. "To eat!" in horrified amazement from Theophila. "Yah, good eatin'—fo de Chinees!" he answered, with the inevitable shrug and quick glance of impatience at our unprofitable curiosity. These game stalls and their swarthy, red-shirted proprietors make magnificent studies. Rabbits in hundreds, woodcock in festoons, Spanish snipe, blackbirds, "kill-alives," teal, "fine nice chicken turkey geese," even cranes, their great white wings and long legs dabbled in gore, are here exposed for the gastronomic temptation of the multitude.

"What's this?" I demanded of an old dame in a red sunbonnet, gingerly poking a very hairy, defunct animal with my parasol, "a rat?" "Mais, non!" she returned irately, "if ever you see de tail rat you know very well dat is no rat. Dat is coon-moo's splendid!"

The only dogs in New Orleans, to all appearances, hang about the stalls, and the red fascinators of these butchers. They are sleek, meek, insinuating brutes, and readily accept the slightest suggestion of intrusiveness. The fish market is a marvel of glancing color. Great heaps of shrimps, snappers, catfish, sheepshead, blue and brown intricacies of crab baskets, the gaslight flashing upon the scales with the most bewitching effect. And the flower stands, each with its comely proprietress, who flirts in the most undisguised manner with every buyer of a button hole adornment. Dewy violets, waxen camellias, stary jasmine and the royal magnolia are among her fragrant wares. And she is everywhere the poetry of the place. Her bent old grandmother presides over the vegetable stand near by, leaning with lettuce, spinach, parsley, a riot of greenery, Listen to the cries, beseeching, exhorting, postulating, argumentative, chanting: "Get tem for no money"—two bits—"Calas, cal—only a nickel!" "Banan' banan' la bella banan!" "Beautiful banan', only five cents de noz!" "Achetez ici au bon marche" and a long undertone of unintelligible jargon, pierced by the wailing song of a brightly turbaned little gypsy with a face of bright misery, the strains of many hand-organs and the contagious "Dixie" of a blind old negro fiddler. Stands of plaster, limburger cheese, are here with their energetic proprietors, whose faces accurately photograph the success of the morning. The sparkle and mobility of the dark-skinned Spaniard whose "banan'" have sold well is only matched by the acute despair of his unsuccessful compatriot.

THE "MARQUIS,"
When we reach him at last, is among the most radiant. Let who will dispute the title accorded him by these co-exiles of his for twenty years, I for one am entirely disposed to accord it and all the honors and dignities thereto pertaining. A portly old fellow, white-haired, straight-nosed, black-browed, clad in the most spotless linen, dark blue coat and fawn-colored trousers. And the coffee-served to us with four-and-twenty furland Northerners all in a row, a position strongly suggestive of the unhappy blackbirds of nursery fame—was unspeakable. For the sake of the experience we imbibed again, that time taking the dark brown inspiration from the wrinkled hand of another characteristic pillar of the market, an old Creole darky woman who embodied activity and crowned it with a smile. Her zig-zag mouth strayed happily across her face, an ample nose flattened down over it, but her wonderful soft dark eyes, lighted with an irrepressible gaiety, and her blue shawl and knotted turban danced with eager service, while soft Creole syllables fell thick and fast. The gas jet overhead flared across a marvelous chromo, the pride of her heart, illustrating the intrepidity of a couple of sanguinary militiamen in blue and red, conjointly dissecting an unfortunate prostrate man.

"Ah, eets ees beautiful; don't you tink?" she exclaimed rapturously, seeing me tabulate her and her surroundings, and imagining, poor soul, that I chronicled my impressions of her masterpiece.

We strolled leisurely out—I defy anybody to hurry in Louisiana—through the tinning crowd of gaily turbaned Dago women, soft-eyed, hard-mouthed Creoles, black-browed Spaniards, voluble "Gascon" butchers, oratorical bucksters of all sorts and a large mixture of fresh faced commenting Northerners, and sauntered back along the great cotton levee.

The Language of Love.
"Mister Johnsing, I want ter confide a great secret to yer."
"What is it, Pette?"
"I've got a notion ter ask Sway-back Lucy ter marry me."
"Do you tink she reciprocates your affection?"
"What did yer say she did?"
"Do you tink she loves you as much as you do her?"
"Dat's what I 'spicions."
"Did she tell you so?"
"No, but she moult jess as well hab told me so. When she was goin' ter de yard I punched her wid a pitched fork, and she said: 'G'way, yer black nigger, I doan want ter hab about me.' I tells yer, Mister Johnsing, dat when a woman tells yer to go 'way she wants yer ter stay right dar. Dey am de contrariest critters in the world."
"So you tink that is a symptom of love, do you?"
"I does, sah, for a fac'."
Shortly afterward another negro woman heard Sway-back Lucy sing away for dear life in the yard as happy as a bird.

"What's de matter wid you?"
"I'll tell yer, Aunt Sukey, I believe Pete Jackson wants ter marry me."
"Has he done tole you so?"
"No but he moult jess well hab tole me so. He punched me wid der pitched fork. I tells yer dat means sumfin."

Her Choice of the Apostles.
"And so you've named your baby, have you?"
"Oh, yes."
"What is it you call him?"
"Thomas Masecovy Martin Luther Benson."
"The poor little toad! Why did you load it down with so much name?"
"Well, it seemed as though I couldn't slight my own brother, and I insisted upon Masecovy on his account."
"But how about Martin Luther?"
"Yon wasn't under any obligations to him."
"No, but my husband was determined that he must be named after one of the apostles, and Martin was my choice of the lot."

They were having a heated argument. He said:
"Stop your quarrelling. People will think we are crazy."
"No they won't, dear," she replied. "They will think one of us is crazy."
"I'll respond," "thee's yon egoist again."

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites.
In Tubercular Troubles of the Lungs.—Dr. A. F. JOHNSON, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, says: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in Tubercular troubles, with satisfaction, both to patients and myself."

There is something wrong in Connecticut. Three men were recently convicted in that State of embezzling the funds of a bank, and sentenced to hard labor in the State's prison for four years. When the courts become so far lost to a sense of propriety as to convict rich embezzlers, it is time for the wealthy to look about them and see where they stand. If this kind of thing becomes epidemic the first thing we know it will be a million dollars as it is to flinch a loaf of bread, and have it meet with as severe punishment.
