The Chief Figure in Aztec Theogony.

A noticeable object in the new hall of the National Museum of Mexico is a feathered serpent, interesting not alone on account of the delicate carving of the plumes, but principally from its association with the most attractive figure in the Aztec theogony, the its association with the most attractive figure in the Aztec theogony, the its association with the most attractive figure in the Aztec theogony. for it is supposed to symbolize Quetzaleoata, the god of the air. The Toltec history declares that in its nation there at one time appeared a white and bearded man who was dressed in a long robe, adorned with crosses, and who preached to the people a new religion, inculcating love to labor, new religion, inculcating love to labor, respect toward what was divine, and the practice of many other virtues. His wisdom was equal to his good-ness, and he taught them to work in metals and precious stones, to perfect their agriculture and to correct their computation of time, reforming the calendar. He predicted the coming of men white and bearded like himself, who would gain possession of the country, destroying the ancient religion, and in its place introducing another like that which he taught them. This remarkable man was deified; in Tulu a splendid temple was erected to his honor; in Yucatan he was adored under the name of Kukulcan; through his intimate knowledge of astronomy he became identified with the planet, Venus, and afterward took a distinguished place in the Az-tec Olympus as god of the wind.

A Boston Woman's Business Philanthropy.

Mrs. Alice N. Lincoln is one of the most energesic, practical and busi-ness-like women in Boston. She is also one of the wealthiest. She has a magnificent home on Commonwealth avenue, and possesses an in-come of about $12,000 a year. She has always taken a great interest in sanitary matters, and since the newspapers began their crusade against filthy tenements she has been running tenement houses in the worst parts of the city. The places were about to be vacated by the Board of Health on account of their unhealthy condition, when Mrs. Lincoln rented them, made needed repairs and improvements, and let the apartments to respectable poor people. While in one sense the work is a benevolence, she conducts her houses on strict business principles, visiting them frequently and making all the rent collections herself. Thus far she has come out with a fair profit. The scheme is now a hobby with her, and she is bargaining for the notori-ous "Crystal Palace," a very ancient and filthy barracks in the South Cove, where thieves, hoodlums and debauches make their headquarters.

A Wonderful Piece of Mechanism.

Probably the most wonderful time piece ever heard of is a clock described by a Hindoo rajah as belonging to a native princess of Upper India. In front of the clock's disk was a gong, swung upon poles, and near it was a pile of artificial limbs. The pile was made of the full number of parts for twelve perfect bodies, but all lay heaped together in seem-ing confusion. Whenever the hands of the clock indicate the hour of I, out from the pile crawled just the number of parts to form the frame of one man, part joining itself to part with quick metalic click; and, when completed, the figure sprang up, seized a small mallet, and, walking to the gong, struck one the first hour. When 2 o'clock came, two men ros West Side Division,
