

The Daily Astorian, ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1885

The Colima sailed for Hong Kong yesterday. The Columbus came down yesterday, Church towing, Reed pilot. Money won't do as much for a man as some men will do for money. Astoria is the healthiest city in the northwest, physically and financially. The Clara Parker, refitted and repaired, is on hand again, ready for business. Hats are being bet in Portland that the Willamette will be frozen over this winter. Corbett & Macleay advertise the Anglo-American cannery with complete plant for sale. Since the building of the fish ladder the Willamette at Champeog is reported swarming with salmon. The British bark Norcross, 897, 69 days from Brisbane, was reported as having arrived in yesterday evening. The British bark Columbus cleared yesterday for Queenstown with 37,478 bush. wheat, worth $28,700. W. T. Parker, manager of the Empire store advertises a large variety of fancy goods, etc., at very low figures. Telegrams from San Francisco weather office indicate "increased cloudiness." It is decidedly damp in this vicinity. Thos. Flaherty who was working on a derrick when it fell with him, died at St. Vincent's hospital in Portland last Sunday. Sheriff Ross who went to San Francisco to bring back "Lone Star" Clark, will return with his prisoner on to-morrow's steamer. Jno. Hunt, of Portland, aged 20 years, accidentally shot by his brother, last Saturday, died last Monday. The brother, as usual, is "sorry." There will be a meeting of the Astoria chamber of commerce this evening at 7:30, at which several matters of importance will be considered. W. H. Reed has newly fitted up the premises next door to Jeff's restaurant and will be glad to meet those who enjoy a social glass. The Yamhill Co. Republicans have nominated R. P. Bird as a candidate on Nov. 3rd, for state senator to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of H. P. Warren. The Oregonian believes that the handsome sidewheel steamer Alaskan will make daily trips from Portland to the seashore next summer, stopping each way at Astoria. Elaborate preparations are being made for the Episcopical social at Mrs. A. W. Berry's residence to-morrow evening; a pleasant time will be assured to all those who attend. The furniture sale at the residence of C. W. Knowles and N. H. Webber begins at 10:30 this morning, rain or shine. Hacks will leave the White house corner for the convenience of intending bidders. Goodall, Perkins & Co., are talking of putting on the State of California and Queen of the Pacific between San Francisco and San Diego. The last named vessel may go on, but it is very doubtful if the State will be taken from the Columbia river. The election of Will Logan and Thos. Liville to the positions of 1st and 2d assistant engineers respectively, of the Astoria fire department, last Monday night, was a surprise to the recipients. The positions are honorable and responsible ones and are well filled. D. A. McIntosh has sold his merchant tailoring establishment to Messrs. MacDonald and McIntosh, two young gentlemen well and favorably known in the community, who will in future conduct the business. In temporarily retiring from active business Mr. McIntosh carries with him the good will and best wishes of a large circle of acquaintances and friends. Capt. Walker, of the Olive S. Southard reports that on the 16th of October two of the sailors, James Maxwell and Tom Welch, became involved in a quarrel when Maxwell drew a knife and stabbed Welch in the breast just over the heart. Welch died at eight o'clock on Sunday, the 18th inst., and was buried that day. Maxwell was placed in irons and will be turned over to the U. S. authorities. The American ship Olive S. Southard, 1133, Walker master, 198 days from New York, general merchandise, Sutton & Beebe, arrived in yesterday, drawing 21 feet 6 in. The British bark Glenishe, 849, Watt master, 49 days from Callao, and Java, 800, Witt master, 70 days from Valparaiso, also arrived in. The British bark Lord Kinnauld, 844, Garthley master, 67 days from Caldera, is outside with pilot aboard.

DIFFERENT FROM ASTORIA.
A Little Isle Far, Far Away Where Officials Don't Know What to Do with the Money.
The government makes the foreign consuls send in reports from their posts as to the manners and customs of the people with whom they temporarily sojourn. These reports are printed and sent to the newspapers. If the men in the newspaper offices had the time they could imbibe considerable information this way, for the little blue books come very often. Sometimes it is about flax raising in Ireland, then it is the gold dust trade of the Congo country, or the fish market of St. Petersburg, or the wine trade of Hungary, or the watch manufactures of Geneva, or the ale breweries of Trent, or the dye woods of Brazil. A singular account is that of the island of Malta, written by Consul Worthington. Malta and its government differs slightly from Astoria and its government. It seems there are things in Malta besides Maltese cats and Maltese crosses, though you can always make a Maltese cross by pulling her tail. (All rights reserved, all same Oregonia.) In the first place there are no taxes in Malta. How does that strike you? It is evident they don't have any elections for mayor and councilmen in Malta, and that they can discharge unnecessary policemen there without being afraid of losing any "influence" before election. It looks a little tough though to read further on that there is a surplus in the Maltese treasury and that the city council don't know what to do with it. Great Caesar! there are no streets in Malta that are "improved." Are there no useful men that can be put on as "spears" during fishing season and paid right along for months after the fishing season is over? These Maltese evidently don't understand how to make opportunities and then improve the aforesaid opportunities. That part of the yarn looks very thin. Further on we find that Malta has no fire department. Well: the Maltese miss lots of fun, that's all. Life can't be very exciting in Malta; that is public life: probably when it comes right down to mauling the ten commandments there isn't so much difference after all. Doesn't Believe in Taffy. NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—General Logan was seen by a Tribune representative while enroute to St. Johnsburv. "I will make three speeches during the campaign in New York," said he. "They will be Republican, too. This cry of bloody shirt does not appeal to me in the least. I have heard that before. It was talked of in a good many forms in my day. The south only wants to be let alone. One of the earliest forms in which it is heard are that some of the Republicans think this is the time to drop the Republican party and cover the administration with praise. All I can say about the administration is that I believe in the direction of showing its utter hypocrisy. Why, if everything charged or asserted against Blaine in the matter of letters was absolutely true, his transactions would not begin to be as infamous as this telephone matter in the department of justice. This affair is a hundred times more monstrous. I don't intend to be silent on that point, or silent on the Rouch matter, or silent on foreign mails, or any other point in which the administration has made such terrible mistakes and fatal movements. In other words, I will make a Republican speech."

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.
The city council met in regular session last evening, Mayor Hume in the chair; present, Councilmen Bergman, Cooper, Cleveland and Trencbhard. A petition from the board of fire delegates asking permission to use the council chamber for the meetings of the board: on motion of Councilman Cleveland the petition was granted. Petition of Andrew Barry asking for removal of house from Pine street in front of lot 10, blk 3, Shively's Astoria, was referred to street committee with power to act. A communication was received from the committee on rules of the Board of fire delegates presenting an ordinance relative to the management of the fire alarm telegraph, and asking for early attention on the part of the council: communication received and filed. The committee to whom was referred the police judges report for September reported the same correct report adopted. An ordinance authorizing the chief engineer of the fire department to assume control and management of the fire alarm telegraph, was read first time and referred to committee on fire and water. An ordinance for extending time for improving West Ninth street from Berry to Water streets was passed under suspension of the rules. An ordinance amending sec. one, ordinance No. 508, was passed under suspension of the rules. (The ordinance provides for the appointment of four policemen from the department to act as special police at fires, with an annual salary of one dollar.) An ordinance making appropriation out of general fund to pay claim of J. G. Hustler for $359.23 was passed under suspension of the rules. The following claims were ordered paid: R. L. Jeffrey, $28.65; Jas. Gardner, $8; Jno. Nelson, $3; J. G. Hustler, $359.23; C. G. Lamont, $5. A communication was read from the California Electrical Co., relating to claim of $96.75, for supplies furnished. On motion the auditor and clerk was instructed to write to the California Electrical Co., for a copy of original bill with seals and signatures appended thereto. The question of liquor licenses came up, it being reported that one or more saloons were and had been running without a license. The discussion was participated in by all present, the general opinion appearing to be that there should be no exceptions to the law: that each one desiring a license should be made comply with the exact provisions of the ordinance declaring the manner in which such licenses should be issued. M. of Oregon, will visit Beaver Lodge No. 33 in an official capacity on Thursday evening, October 29th, 1885, and a full attendance of the members is requested on that evening. T. S. JEWETT, Rec. Sec. Astoria, October 24th, 1885. Count Von Moltke celebrated his 85th birthday on the 27th inst. Several anti-vaccination individuals have formed a league in New York city. Henry Bergh is the president. Reports that the Servians had crossed the Bulgarian frontier are officially denied by the Servian government. A fight took place on Sunday on the frontier of Montenegro between Albanian and Montenegrin troops. Three Albanians and six Montenegrins were killed. The Independence Bells says: Austria has prohibited the transit through her territory of a number of Krupp guns recently purchased by the Bulgarian government. Efforts are being made to remove Governor Warren, of Wyoming territory for his activity in endeavoring to secure the punishment of rioters who participated in the recent massacre of Chinese at Rock Springs. It is understood that Governor Warren's action has Cleveland's approval. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the department of the Missouri, recommends the turning over of Indian territory to the military as more satisfactory to the Indians, who have been crowded into unhealthy camps; that it will save $100,000 a year to the government, and clear out the outlaws. The trial of Ferdinand Ward, the man who ruined Gen. Grant, began in New York on the 26th. Fish, the banker, who was sometime ago sentenced to ten years hard labor at Auburn state prison for complicity in the fraud, is first witness. It is expected that he will tell all he knows, which is a good deal, and that the trial of those who got the bulk of Grant's money will be made disgorge or take the consequences. The Brooklyn Eagle of the 26th printed an interview with Conkling, in which he mercilessly scored the Republican party, and denounced the Republican state ticket. The publication produced an immense sensation. The Herald now says the interview never occurred; that it is bogus, from beginning to end. That it was published to hurt Davenport and help Hill. The Herald adds: Our Washington dispatches contain Conkling's authority to pronounce this alleged interview a preposterous, wicked fabrication. "A man who would prepare and utter a forgery," says Conkling, "is worse than one who is a gambler, a rascal, and a mad dog to the streets to poison innocent people with their venom." Gen. DeCourcy, commander of the French forces in Annam has telegraphed to Paris from Ha-Noi to the war office that he has defeated the Black Flags in an engagement. Great enthusiasm exists over the official announcement of the French successes in Annam. A later dispatch, received from DeCourcy, states that the French troops gained the victory, notwithstanding the Black Flags were immensely superior in numbers, and that he inflicted great slaughter on the Black Flags. The fighting was very severe, and lasted three days. The enemy fought stubbornly, but were completely routed. Gen. DeCourcy says the enemy numbered 6,000 men, and consisted of Black Flags, Annamites and deserters from the Chinese army. Three of the chiefs were killed during the engagement and many prisoners were taken by the French forces. Gen. Jamont conducted the operations against the enemy, which resulted in the capture of the strongly fortified town of Thanmai, one of the last and most formidable held by the Black Flags. Gen. Nougere is pursuing pirates between Hanabou rapids and the canals, in the province of Tonquin. Excited Thousands. All over the land are going into ecstasy over Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their unlooked for recovery by the timely use of this great life saving remedy causes them to go nearly wild in its praise. TOLD BY THE TELEGRAPH.
The Dalles "Times Mountaineer" on Portland and the Opening of The Columbia River.
If Portland can control the trade of the northwest, by means of the O. R. & N. Co., it will be suitable to her wishes that the Columbia be completely locked to the commerce of the inland empire except by means of the boats of the monopoly which now govern transportation. If the transcontinental line should be completed to Tacoma, perhaps Portland would make an effort to improve the navigation of the Columbia river; because, by this means of cheap transportation, she could outbid her sound competitors for the trade of Eastern Oregon and Washington. Until that time we can expect no help from the chief city of Oregon for the projected improvement to navigation in this great river, and should not be disappointed if we displays a violent antagonism. As we have often said in these columns, with an open river, the products of this section could reach Astoria with nearly equal facility that they could be landed at Portland, and the former city would offer the greater inducements in saving the expense of lighterage. There has been so much evidence in regard to the attitude of the Portland and the northwest that there can be no doubt of the correctness of our position. If there is anything lacking to convince the most skeptical mind that the interests of Portland are not in harmony with those east of the Cascades, the late action of the committee appointed by the board of trade of Portland, to take into consideration holding a waterway convention, furnishes indisputable proof of the fact. Some time since the Vancouver board of trade passed resolutions calling a convention of the people of the northwest interested in opening the Columbia river to free navigation to meet at some point on the coast action in memorializing congress for liberal appropriations to that end. The board of trade of this city met and a committee of twenty was appointed to represent our section at the proposed convention. All looked to Portland to take a leading part in this important movement, and her board of trade gave evidence that she also was in earnest about the matter. It appointed a committee consisting of Hon. G. H. Williams, Hon. M. C. George, Hon. H. W. Corbett, Hon. Sol. Hirsch, and Mr. C. H. Dodd, gentlemen representing the best legislative and business ability of this section. This committee held a meeting lately and decided that a convention was unnecessary, and asked the boards of trade of Vancouver, The Dalles, Walla Walla and other towns to forward memorials to congress through the Portland board of trade. This convention was called because congressman Holman, in his recent visit to this state, said that congress would make the necessary appropriation if the matter was presented in the proper way, and taking the waterway convention recently held at St. Paul—in which the Mississippi valley was fully represented—as a model, it was thought advisable to follow that example. There is no use in mining matters any longer. Portland is not in favor of an open river, and whatever action the inland empire takes in the premises, must be taken with the expectation of antagonism from that city. The syren-like music that the metropolis plays every time she thinks the lease of the O. R. & N. Co.'s line by the Northern Pacific will not be consummated, must not be heeded. It will lead to a servile dependence upon Portland, which will retard our development and cripple our growth. We must act independently of her help and rely solely upon our own efforts. The proposed convention must be held without the Portland board of trade being represented, and if we can have a representative in congress who will enlighten that body regarding the true status of the matter, we may expect liberal aid from the government for the important enterprise of opening one of the largest rivers of the continent to free navigation. But to accomplish our purpose, we must have only one thing in view—an open river. We must pin our political creed to this single idea, and must have no party friends who are not unequivocally pledged to the support of this measure. And in this connection we must remind the members from Eastern Oregon, that the names of this committee, which has reported adversely to a united effort in favor of opening the river, constitute some probable candidates for United States senator during the coming special session of the legislature. They are either apathetic or antagonistic to this great enterprise, and their election to the senate would jeopardize the development of this section of the northwest; and no redress could be expected from the grievances which are now retarding the growth of the inland empire. We cannot limit the concentrated capital of Portland for making an effort to retain the status of that city as the trading center of the country tributary to it; neither can any blame be attached to other sections of the state if they think that their interests will be better subserved by looking to other shipping points. If Portland can maintain the railroad supremacy in Oregon, she will always grow and prosper, and the tributary sections will simply maintain a dependent existence. If the locks at the Cascades are completed and the river above The Dalles freed of obstruction, then the vast grain and wool product of the country east of the Cascades will seek the cheaper means of transportation, and other cities than the one near the mouth of the Willamette will be warts of trade. If the people of the northwest desire the perpetuation of special contract rates in favor of the present railroad terminus and also to pay the exorbitant tariff now charged for the transportation of products to Portland, let them bow to the political and corporation rings now centered there; if they earnestly wish liberation from these burdens, let them divorce themselves from political cliques and corporation influence, and act independently and bend their energies to the accomplishment of the one object of an open river. By this means, the development of this section will be assured, and we shall not have to quietly submit to whatever railroads and their terminal cities may determine. Notice. JOHN HAHN.
