At noon swept over the hill and a storm of hail danced and ratiled on the roofs and sidewalks; the fire alarm rang out, and the cry was heard, "the court house is on fire." The children from the Cedar street school were just out and came trooping down the hill; the fire department rushed headlong with the apparatus, everyone was out and on deck; the bells rang, the whistles blew, the hail fell, the wind roared and things were as lively as they usually get.

Smoke was issuing from the jail and the first in found brave Barbara Frazier had set fire to the mattress in her cell and was smothering; she was dragged out and brought back to life, the fire was put out, the hail stopped, the children went to their dinners, the apparatus was housed the wind lulled, and when 751 people from Uniontown and upper Astoria got to the court house and wanted to know where the fire was no one could Barbara ought to be sent to tell. the asylum before she does any more mischief. as last year.
