Reading of Sullivan puts us in mind of a little affair that occurred the last time he was here, and which never, we believe, got into print. After the show at the opera-house

After the show at the opera-house was ever, Sullivan went over to the St. George bar and there was introduced to a gentleman of this city, who is not only a very polite and affable man, but a fine judge of whisky. After talking awhile he suggested to John that he take a drink out of his favorite bottle. John did so, and liked it very much and, after a little more talk, he in turn suggested that they try it again. They did so.

This was kept up till they had taken eight rounds of drinks, and about the time the last one got to the right spot, a brilliant idea struck our friend.

"John," said he, "can you giveme that thousand dollars now, or would you rather wait till morning?"

you rather wait till morning?"
"What thousand?"
"The thousand dollars you owe me."

"I don't owe you a cent."
"You bet you do. You owe me thousand dollars."
"What for?" "Didn't you offer a thousand dol-lars to anybody who would stand up before you for three rounds?"

"You bet I did," said John, a scowl

"You bet I did," said John, a scowl coming to his brow.

"Well, you just bet I've stood up before you for eight rounds, and I'm feeling a d—d sight better than I did when I commenced."

They shook hands and immediately got into position for the ninth round.—[Evansville Argus.

Pessimism and the Press.

Is the existence of a spirit of cynical pessimism in this country due to "the method that newspapers take for reporting crimes?" We doubt it. We have heard it attributed some-We have heard it attributed some-times to the worldliness of the clergy, and their apparent lack of religious belief. If pessimism is due to news-paper publications why does it take such a hold on countries where the only press permitted is largely offi-cial?—[Boston Transcript.

Cure For Piles.

Cure For Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some effection of the kidneys or neighboring organs At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulency, uncusiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant.
