SWISS INDUSTRY.

Life in the Mountains Incompatible with Laziness.

Switzerland more than any other European country is working to improve the methods of manufacture as well as the quality of product, and recent cantonal and national laws are helping very much to that end. Schools and associations for the improvement and promotion of industrial enterprises have been multiplied. Much money is expended for these purposes; the benefits thereof are, however, really harvested by the purchasers or consumers of these manufactured articles. In the manufacture of embroideries and linen articles, in regard to their beauty and durability, Switzerland is unquestionably ahead of any other country in Europe. The same may be said of the silk industry. The embroideries are made mostly in the cantons of St. Gall and Appenzel, both by machines and by hand. Hand-made embroideries and laces, once of the highest value, are now giving way to the machine made, and the competition between the two is rapidly bringing prices down. The silk industry has obtained a wonderful growth. In the Canton Zurich and localities tributary to it, 33,000 silk looms are in use, of which 3,000 are driven by steam power. Sixty-one thousand Swiss are occupied in the work. The ribbon industry at Basle is said to occupy about 6,300 looms, with about 12,000 workmen.

Since 1882 the export from Switzerland to the United States of watches has suffered a steady decline. The reason thereof is not because the Swiss watches are less good now than formerly (they still maintain "a good report"), but because of the rapid development of the same branch of industry in the United States during the past eight or ten years. American watches, in their beauty and quality, successfully compete with Swiss and Jorgensen watches, not only in the United States, but also in Europe, and even in Australia. The advantage the Swiss watch manufacturer has over his American colleague is the cheapness of labor. The advantage which the latter has over the former, is that he, with his perfect tools and machinery, is able to produce a larger number of watches during a given period of time than his Swiss colleague, for the latter has much of his work done by hand labor.

In 1883 Switzerland exported $7,000,000 worth of watches to outside countries, of which $800,000 worth came to the United States.

Industrial and Business.

Connecticut has an enormous apple crop this year.

A Rose, N. Y. peppermint raiser sold the oil from one acre for $92.75.

There are more than 1,200 girls employed in making neckties in New York.

The olive crop in Italy this year is estimated to be worth about $20,000,000.

London and its suburbs support 406 wholesale and 4,238 manufacturers and dealers in boots and shoes.

Last year the United States exported to Great Britain 29,420 cwt. of wet and 4,119 cwt. of dry hides.

One hundred million pounds of honey is the American crop foretold for 1885, in spite of the July drought.

The Cleveland furnaces are experimenting on a new method of reducing iron ore which will cheapen the cost.

Five establishments are engaged in canning oysters and shrimps along the Gulf, between New Orleans and Mobile.

The net earnings of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe Railway system were $51,000 more in July, 1885, than in July, 1884.

A citizen of Barnegat, N. J., has three acres in sunflowers, which are roughly estimated to number between 50,000 and 100,000.

Texas boasts of a cattle ranch with 3,000,000 acres. It would be something worth boasting of if it were cut up into 15,000 ranches.

The money market in Canada is glutted. It is believed that the Bank of Montreal alone holds from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 of idle funds.

The New York Coffee Exchange has specimens of more than 600 varieties of coffee, and there are remote districts still to be heard from.

The Southern States will this year harvest, according to the best estimates, 50,000,000 bushels of corn, more than any previous year.

According to the Philadelphia Record, $50,000,000 of the $820,000,000 of stock and bond capital of the railroads of Pennsylvania is watered.

"It's no use," says the despondent dyspeptic. But it is of use. Your suffering can be relieved; thousands have been cured, and so can you. Broken down, desponding victims of dyspepsia and nervous debility will find in Simmons' Liver Regulator a specific which reaches the source of trouble and effects an absolute and permanent cure. It regulates the liver, dispels dyspepsia and restores health.

How He Would Do It.

Were I rich, I'd publish a new kind of newspaper, that would be both novel and do a body good to read. I'd have my correspondents, agents, writers, and reporters hunt up all the good they could find. I'd chronicle the acts of devotion and bravery that are being performed around us all the time; note the deeds of unselfishness, tell about the self-denial that is practiced by so many continually, talk about all the good men and women instead of the bad; write up the heroes and heroines that we find in huts and palaces, everywhere, and the love that wreaths itself around the unhappiness, lightens the labor, pardons unkindness and neglect, and pervades all things in its beautiful, silent way, just as a rose fills a room with fragrance you can inhale but not describe, and touches everything with its invisible hands; and instead of weeping and waiting for the awful storm to burst, my readers should take a cheerful view of life, and be thinking that in a little while the gray mists would change into the sunshine.—[Peck's Sun.

Mulattoes Dying Out.

Several articles have appeared lately in reviews and magazines, the writers of which attempt to show that amalgamation is inevitable. These writers have a theory but not the facts to sustain their theory. If it can be shown that the number of mulattoes is increasing more rapidly than the negro race is increasing, they might have something to sustain their theory. But is there any such increase of mulattoes? It is certain that the belief throughout the South is that the mulattoes are gradually disappearing. In view of the attention which this race question is exciting, the next census will be looked for with deep interest. It is safe to predict that those who hold to the amalgamation theory will suffer a great disappointment. The tendency is away from and not towards amalgamation.—[Savannah News.
