Burdette on Earthly Glory.

My dear boy, do not envy your neighbor his greatness. Do not re-pine because you are not president of the United States, standing be-tween the deep sea and the mug-wumps, with a thousand wearying cares on his heart and brain. Glory is transient, and fame doesn't last is transient, and fame doesn't last long. All is vanity, my son. "Man cometh forth like a flower and is cut down; he fleeth also as a shadow and continueth not." The joke that is new to-day, doth it not pass into the sad and dreary tomb of the circus, or the embalming hands of the end man to-morrow? "There is hope of a tree if it be cut down that it will sprout again, and that the it will sprout again, and that the tender branch thereof will not cease," but the song we all sang yesterday, and paid money to hear, and ap-plauded with loud, resounding encores, do we lift up our hands to-day and smite the man who singeth "Swt Vl*ts," or "G*bble, G*bble?" But yesterday the word of Cæsar might have stood against the world; to-day the smiling clerk looks up from the register and says cheerfully: "Sample room, Julius?"—
[Brooklyn Eagle.
