TRADE IN TERRAPIN.
GREAT INCREASE IN SALES.
Seven Months Without Food or Drink Cause Them to Increase in Weight.

"Thirty years ago, with the hardest kind of labor," said S. S. Scoggins, the game and fish dealer, "I succeeded in selling $1,000 worth of diamond-back terrapins at from $8 to $10 a dozen. In the season which closed on the 1st of April I sold over $100,000 worth, and my sales would have reached $500,000 if I could have gotten the terrapin. The Baltimore people, and for that matter the people of the whole state, did not take to terrapin at first. It was ten years before they were purchased to any great extent. My grandfather leaves it on record that he bought the best terrapin in the Annapolis market for twelve and a quarter cents each, and his slaves once rebelled because he gave them terrapin and would not give them pork. Of course, times have greatly changed since then. "Now there are $1,500,000 worth of terrapin caught out of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries every year. As the price averages fully $30 a dozen, this represents 600,000 terrapins annually. During the season over 500 men are engaged in catching them. They are caught on both sides of the bay, from Rappahannock to Spring Gardens. They are found wherever the watercourses grow, and, as you probably know, the Chesapeake Bay is the best body of water for this grass in the world. It is that which gives them their wonderful flavor. Mr. Scoggins, who knows from a long personal observation all that is worth knowing on this subject, is a firm believer in the terrapin, both as a food and as a medicine. He cited to his visitor several remarkable stories of its sustaining power. "On the 1st of last September," said he, "I selected four terrapins from my stock, weighing exactly four pounds each. I was very precise about the weight, as I wished them for a specific purpose. These I placed in a strong box, which was entirely empty. I mailed this box up securely and laid it aside. On the 1st of April I opened it for the first time since it had been closed. What do you think was the result of the seven months of total abstinence from both food and drink? "Starvation, of course."
"There is where you are mistaken. Not only were the diamond backs well and hearty, but their average weight was four pounds and one ounce each. They had gained one ounce on nothing. I have tried the same experiment before, and always with similar results. It doesn't cost much to board terrapins, does it?"
Mr. Scoggins related an instance of the recuperative powers of the terrapin. One night a healthy rat made a sizable meal off a terrapin's hind foot, and left an ugly sore. The terrapin was placed in a box by itself. Nothing was applied to the sore, and in the space of twenty-four hours the wound was completely healed. There are several methods of catching the terrapin. One is by a dredge, another by a seine, another by a net, and still another by a three-pronged stick. With the latter the catcher prods in the mud until he feels something move, and then he reaches down for the diamond back. The element of luck naturally enters largely into terrapin catching, but experience frequently shows where they most abound. Good catchers know the reptile's peculiarities, and when they discover a luxurious growth of watercress they lie low for their prey, as that is sure to prove a terrapin leading ground.—Baltimore American.

Delicate persons, and all whose systems have become debilitated, should bear in mind that Simons' Liver Regulator is not a drastic, purging medicine, does not weaken or deplete the system as other purgative medicines do, but acts gently. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but it is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtue undoubted.

A Keep street old maid who keeps four cats finds a scuttlerful of coal in her back yard every morning. By strict economy she only buys a half ton of coal a year.—Brooklyn Times.

The Malignant Iniquity of a Fiead Could scarcely devise tortures more excruciating than those to which the victim of rheumatism, in the inflammatory stage is subjected. It is also dangerous on account of its tendency toward the heart and stomach. Among the benign qualities of Hostetter's St. Catharine's Bitters, is that of expelling from the circulation those particles to which the disease is attributable. Analysis proves that in cases of rheumatism the kidneys fail to eliminate these impurities from the blood. The Bitters by stimulating these organs to activity, enables them to perform this important function and, therefore, averts the disease or remedies it at the out-set. The functions of digestion and secretion of bile by the liver, are so healthfully stimulated by the Bitters, which conquer dyspepsia and liver complaint and remove fever and ague, bilious remittent, and other ailments of maral birth. It is a so the leading tonic of the age.

The Canadian troops came home covered with scars and glory, and they deserve all the praise the people can bestow.
