Good Stories of Georgia Judges.

Judge William H. Underwood was at Oglethorpe Court when the solic-itor and his immediate predecessor were disputing over that old bone of contention, the costs made by the latter and collected by the former from fines imposed during his term. The incumbent, after a long and heated argument, closed by saying: "He was not very fastidious about it, nohow." Judge Underwood promptly replied: "I now understand the definition of that misunderstood word, fastid-i-ous, which I now learn means to hold fast and for now learn means to hold fast and for a long te-di-ous time." one occasion Judge Dooly stopped with Charter Campbell, of Madison. When his bill was presented next morning, he said:

"Well, Mr. Campbell, do you really think I owe you $3.00 for the entertainment of me and my horse Cherotainment of me and my horse Cherokee?" "Oh, yes, judge; it is a fair and usual charge." "Well, Mr.
Campbell, if the poet had stopped with you, instead of saying: 'Man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long,' he might have said: 'If man has but little here below, and stops with you, he will not have that little long.'"

Judge Thomas, of Elbert, in which Judge Thomas, of Elbert, in which county Judge Underwood once lived, meeting Judge Underwood, said the people of that county would like to see him there, and thought he could make a pleasant visit to the old place. "Yes," said the judge, "there is an honest stupidity about the peo-ple of Elbert which is amusing, and which I rather like." Some citizen which I rather like." Some citizen of the county who took the remark of the judge as offensive, meeting him afterward, rebukingly said he ought to take it back. "Well," said the judge, "I will take back part of it, and since the county voted for Buchanan, I will withdraw the word 'honest."

Judge Underwood was for a long time accused of being an old Federalist of the John Adams school, which was a term of reproach in Georgia. Having been taunted by a politician for being a Federalist, who said to him: "There have always been but two parties in the country and we class you with the Federal ists, for all know that is your place." "Yes," said the judge, "there have always been two parties, Federalists and fools, and I have never heard you accused of belonging to the Federalists."

In the long ago, in the 30's, there was a judge who presided in the western circuit whose birthplace was in one of the New England States. He was a decided Union man, and when the Nullifiers became so violent that some northern men shrank from acknowledging their nativity, meeting one too firm to deny it, Judge Tracy greeted him heartily because he was not ashamed of his birth he was not ashamed of his birthplace, and said: "That is bold and honest. If you come from h—l bring a pocketful of brimstone with you." A Georgia judge said "that the maxim that innocence was to be presumed until guilt was proved, had one exception, and that was when an Irishman was accused of an assault and battery, for then guilt assault and battery, for then guilt was to be presumed." A lawyer ad-dressing a jury on a case proved by strong circumstantial evidence, repeated often that "ninety-nine guilty men should escape rather than that one innocent man should suffer.' The judge, in charging the jury, told them "the ninety-nine guilty had long since escaped."—[Savannah
