

The Daily Astorian

ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1885

A steamship—the Idaho probably, was reported outside yesterday afternoon.

Every newspaper in the northwest is bragging about the fine weather—and with good reason.

The American ship Henry Villard, Captain Perkins, comes from Seattle with 1,500 tons of coal.

Portland's latitude is 45 degrees, 30 minutes north, and longitude 122 degrees, 37 minutes and 30 seconds west from Greenwich.

The seven-year-old son of Mr. Anderson, of Gray's river, died yesterday of diphtheria, it is said. The funeral will take place to-day.

The Singapore cleared for Maryport yesterday with 38,037 bush. wheat. The Clan McLeod crossed out. The Wm. H. Besse loads direct back from New York for Portland.

The Holladay estate cuts up pretty fat. Jos. Holladay is entitled to $239,537, and Ben who wins the suit gets about $700,000. T. N. and F. R. Strong, et al., have filed a claim for $40,000 for legal services.

A sewer or drain or pipe or something broke loose under the schoolhouse on Court street yesterday and the circumambient smell was enough to give one the nose bleed. Pity the tide stops at Gray's dock.

The tax list is now in the hands of Sheriff Ross for collection. Owing to the delay of the state board in making the levy it has been delayed longer than usual. Mr. Ross desires it borne in mind that the taxes are now due and payable.

Lieut Chamberlin will open bids at Ft. Canby this morning for the building of a hospital at that post. The building is to be two stories with accommodations for twelve beds. Work is to begin May 1st, 1886, and the building ready for use by the 30th of the following September.

To-morrow evening Cushing Post band will have a concert and grand masquerade ball at Ross' opera house and expect to see their friends. They will do their part to insure a pleasant evening. Dancing begins at nine o'clock. Every precaution will be taken to exclude objectionable characters.

The crash of breaking glass at J. W. Bottom's cigar and tobacco store at one o'clock yesterday morning attracted the attention of some passers by, who, with the assistance of an off-duty police officer, caught a young man about seventeen years of age, who was given a preliminary examination before Justice Goodell yesterday afternoon which will be continued this morning. Beyond breaking the window and show-case no damage was done.

The public installation of the officers of Temple Lodge No. 7 A. F. and A. M., took place at the Lodge room last Monday evening. The following named gentlemen were installed in their respective positions: W. M. E. A. Noyes; S. W. F. W. Newell; J. W. Wm. Clance; Treasurer, M. C. Crosby; Sec. G. W. Lounsbury; S. D. C. J. Trencard; J. D. J. F. S. F. S. P. M. B. Van Duse, installed the respective officers and P. M. E. C. Holden delivered the customary address.

The social at the residence of Mrs. W. W. Parker last evening afforded a good deal of amusement in the manner adopted of choosing partners. Upon entering the room each gentleman was requested to take a card, on each card being the name of a lady, whom the gentleman escort was expected to provide with refreshments. After the refreshments were served the ladies were weighed and their several escorts expected to pay half a cent a pound for every pound weight over 100 lbs., the novelty of the measure furnishing a good deal of fun.

Mrs. E. A. Taylor and son have gone to Oakland to spend the winter.

Capt. Phil Johnson was considerably better yesterday and he will probably be able to be out before long.

Drowned in Gray's River. A young man named Wickerson was drowned above the forks of Gray's river, Washkum Co., last Monday in a very singular manner. He had been engaged in hand logging and on his return from a visit to this city that day, went to his place about two miles above Jesse Baker's taking with him another young man named Chas. Semner. They crossed the fork of the river in a boat when Semner, jumping out, gave the boat a backward shove with his foot as he sprang. The recoil upset the boat and Wickerson falling out was drowned before the eyes of his horror-stricken companion who was powerless to aid him. All efforts to recover the body have thus far been unavailing. Wickerson was a single man, well spoken of by all his acquaintances on both sides of the river.

Remember the drawing for the five hundred dollar prize which will take place January 1st at Adler's till then every person buying goods to the amount of $2.00 will receive a ticket which gives them a chance in the drawing.

New Year's eve at 8 o'clock the raffle for that superb Zyther music box will take place at Adler's. Only a few chances left. Parties interested will please be on hand.

Notice—Astoria Musical Society. The regular meeting of the society is postponed one week to Jan. 4th, 1886. A full attendance is desired as the Cantata books have arrived and business of importance to be transacted. By order of the President J. N. GRIFFIN.

R. F. PRAEL, Secy.

A splendid assortment of New Year's calling cards just received at Adler's.

To the United States Restaurant for the best oysters. Private rooms.

FLASHED FROM AFAR.

PORTLAND, Dec. 23.—Wm. Sandstrom, the young Swede arrested last Friday for alleged complicity in the murder of Emma Merlotin, was discharged to-day, the evidence not warranting his detention.

THE "LUSH" SELECTED. SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23.—The steamer Richard Rush has been selected to go in search of the lost Arctic whaler Amethyst.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The Herald asserts that De Lesseps' Panama canal is a total failure.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 23.—The committee appointed by the house of representatives to investigate the affairs of the National Soldiers' home, have found that E. F. Butler is $220,000 in arrears.

EL PASO, N. M., Dec. 23.—A fiendish attempt was made last night to blow up the bridge across the Rio Grande at this place. As the west bound train started across the bridge it was observed that the bridge trembled, but their whole scheme failed.

VIENNA, Ind., Dec. 23.—Five years ago John Berwick mysteriously disappeared. Yesterday a female occupant of the poor house made a confession implicating her husband and four others. An officer went to arrest the husband, but he eluded the officer and fled with a gun. The woman said that Berwick was murdered; that she had put the body into a boiler and boiled it for three days and then buried the bones. The murdered man was a highly respected citizen of this place.

OMAHA, Dec. 23.—A special train from Chicago with 300 cigar makers aboard was received here to-day by 500 Knights of Labor. Fifty more join the party here. Some fears are expressed lest they meet with violence from Chicago cigar makers in San Francisco.

PARIS, Dec. 23.—In a fight with Doyas in Madagascar the French troops were routed and many killed.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—John Bright vigorously denies the report that he intends to resign from parliament.

Great distress is reported among the fishermen in Galway on the Irish coast. There was a very small catch this season and starvation is feared among the inhabitants.

NEWSPAPER GOSSIP. The Seattle Call has been enlarged. The Tacoma News is going to be enlarged. The Oregon Pacific Railroad Co. has bought the Benton Leader.

The Yaquina Mail has suspended. Lack of patronage and ink. The Corvallis Gazette has changed hands. Mr. Grist, lately from the east, is the purchaser.

The Oregonian gets out a good many double sheet editions now-a-days. Its composition bills are heavy. The News seem to be permanently enlarged to a nine column daily.

The East Portland Vindicator is as spicy and interesting as any journal in the state.

The Pendleton Tribune, one of the newest of our eastern Oregon exchanges, has finished its eighth volume.

Saidle at Sublimity. Friday last, while laboring under a temporary fit of insanity, John Blodrick, who lived near Sublimity, Marion county, committed suicide by blowing out his brains with a Winchester rifle. When found Blodrick was lying on the bed in his cabin, the barrel of the gun resting on his breast and the butt between his knees. A ramrod was lying alongside, one end in the man's hand and the other against the trigger, this showing conclusively how the work had been done. The charge entered the left eye and fairly rased the crown off of Blodrick's head. He was an unmarried man, 51 years of age, and was no doubt laboring under a fit of temporary insanity at the time the deed was committed. Blodrick was subject to spells of despondency, and had once been confined for a short time for insanity. No one knows that he has any relatives in this part of the country. He left considerable property.—Oregonian, 23.

A COMPREHENSIVE VIEW.

ASTORIA, Dec. 23, 1885.

EDITOR ASTORIAN: In your article of some days since on the Chinese, you say the average Chinaman earns a dollar a day in the fishing season. That does not express the whole truth. A day is eleven hours' work, whether performed in twenty-four hours or in a week.

The average Chinaman labor per case was about 35 cents to 40 cents last year—say 37 1/2. Last year's pack was 540,000 cases, which would make the cost of China labor, at the canneries on the Columbia river, about two hundred thousand dollars. One hundred dollars to each of your 2,000 Chinamen for April, May, June, July and part of August. This includes the can making also in March. Besides it is probable that more than two thousand Chinamen are employed in July.

If Astoria were a large city so that there were other work white laborers might supplant the Chinese at the canneries and not go into other labor work not engaged at the canneries. No white people can afford to come from a distance and return simply to obtain one hundred dollars in five months. To stop here out of the fish season would mean starvation.

Two thousand white families—one thousand families here with employment twelve months in a year would be far preferable to the two thousand Chinamen, but without some other work than fishing they would be county charges and bankrupt entirely a new tax-burdened community.

Until this community becomes densely settled and there shall be people and children seeking labor at very low prices the canneries will be obliged to employ Chinese, or close down, or invent more machinery.

But what will be the general effect of an immediate removal of the Chinese from this coast? A wave of white laborers would rush into the vacuum and overfill it, and strong competition would force wages down below what they are now, and there would be poorer white people and more of them than now.

The fact is that it would take but a few years without any agitation or legislation, to force by competition the Chinese from our midst. Legal restrictive legislation, however, will hasten the time when the Chinaman will disappear from sight. He has performed his mission here and must go, but let none suppose that his elimination will solve the labor question or bring peace to the laborers. Agitation and strikes in the older states where there are no Chinamen are larger and more frequent than the anti-Chinese movements here. A few months after the Chinese shall have withdrawn his face from this land strikes will become fashionable and the old issue between labor and capital will be directly put forth without the subterfuge of a third party.

But we do not go far enough. While envying the Chinaman bending over his saw-horse in the street we forget how good it would be to have a bench in the shoe shop close by. We walk past the shop of the man hammering at his last and go into a store and buy a pair of boots made in San Francisco by Ch—well no difference by whom—or a pair of shoes from away down east three thousand miles away. How many would find employment in Astoria if we made all our boots and shoes? Suppose we made the leather for them also, we have the hides and tanbark in our midst.

I want a piece of furniture, I don't ask whether my neighbor, who is a cabinet maker, is supporting his family well or poorly, or whether there is a cabinet maker out of employment or not, but I walk off to a store that imports from some far off strange place and choose the articles. I am particular to choose the furniture that was not made at home or out of home timber. Ash grows in Oregon, but I prefer ash that grew in Illinois or Ohio.

I do not want Oregon ash, oak, maple, alder, spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, cedar, etc., yet how many would be cutting timber, how many saw mills running and how many engaged in manufacturing furniture if we demanded and would buy no other than home made out of native woods.

We use California made matches though made out of Oregon wood. We use imported coal while wood in abundance grows at our doors. We buy ready made shoddy clothing from the east, or send to California tailors when the tailoring should all be done here and out of woollens made in Oregon. We import mackerel, cod, sardines, etc., yet fish are abundant in native waters. A long list of articles might be added, but this is enough to show that when we shall have banished the China labor we have not near begun the work of reform, the work of self protection, of home and self support.

THAT SAUSAGE.

A clergyman in a southern state was on his way to preach a funeral sermon.

As he was passing the house of a widow lady, a member of his congregation, she ran out and stopped him, saying, as they had just slaughtered their hogs, she had put up a few pounds of sausage as a present, adding that as she had put it in double paper pockets, she thought it would not soil his clothes.

He thanked her earnestly for her kindness, and rode on, having put the parcel in his pocket.

All the time he was officiating at the grave a large, half-starved hound kept snuffing around him, sometimes approaching alarmingly near, attracted by the scent of the fresh meat. As the deceased was a man of some prominence, there was a considerable crowd collected, and great mourning and lamentation came from the family group; so no one paid any attention to the movements of the animal, but all noticed with concern—for he was beloved by his congregation—the great pallor of the clergyman, and the beads of perspiration standing upon his brow, and they began to whisper to each other that Mr. H— must be ill.

After the interment they all proceeded to the church, where the funeral sermon was to be preached. Just before entering, Mr. H— turned around to ascertain the whereabouts of his tormentor, when lo! there he was, not far from him, but the crowd prevented him from approaching so closely. Just at this moment some one gave the poor creature a cruel kick, which sent him off howling. When the minister reached the pulpit—one of those old fashioned affairs ascended by a short, steep flight of steps—he breathed more freely. He was just about to commence his duties when the sexton, a good old man, came noiselessly up the steps with a slip of paper in his hand, which he wished to give to the minister, but who was unnoticed by that gentleman, though seen by all the congregation. He gently twitched his coat to attract his attention. A thrill of horror passed over the unhappy preacher at the dreadful thought that the dog had entered unseen in the crowd, and was now about to take forcible possession of the sausage before the whole assembly; so hoping to drive him away, he kicked back cautiously but vigorously, and struck the old man in the breast, who rolled down the steps, and being the look of surprise and alarm on the faces of the audience, he stammered out, with crimson face: "I must explain to you, my brethren, what must seem my intemperate conduct. A friend came out to me, as I was passing her house, with a small package of sausage for me to carry home in my pocket; but ever since I dismounted from my horse this old dog—pointing behind to the prostrate sexton, but without looking round—has been following me, and at length came into the pulpit, and has been tagging at my coat, determined to get the sausage from my pocket."

At this moment the sexton, a little stunned and a little hurt, arose from the floor, and the minister at a glance took it all in, stared wildly at him, took a drink of water, turned very pale, and sat down, overwhelmed with consternation.—Editor's Drawer, in Harper's Magazine for January.

KISSING BY MAIL.

A young postmaster of a village postoffice was hard at work when a gentle tap was heard upon the door, and in stepped a bashful maid of eighteen, with a money order, which she desired to have cashed.

She handed it with a bashful smile to the official, who, after closely examining it, handed her the money it called for. At the same time he asked her if she had read what was written on the margin of the order.

"No, I have not," she replied, "for I cannot make it out. Will you please read it for me?"

The young postmaster read it as follows: "I send you three dollars and a dozen kisses."

Glancing at the bashful girl, he said: "Now I have paid you the money and I suppose you want the kisses."

"Yes," she said, "if he has sent me any kisses, I want them, too."

It is hardly necessary to say that the balance of the order was promptly paid, and in a scientific manner at that, and eminently satisfactory to the country maiden, for she went out of the office smacking her lips as if there was a taste on them that she had not encountered before. After she arrived home she remarked to her mother:

"Oh, mother, but this postoffice system of ours is a great thing, developing more and more every year, and each new feature added seems to be the best. Jimmy sent me a dozen kisses along with the money order, and the postmaster gave me twenty. It beats the special delivery system all hollow."

Wasn't Willing to Wait. A sweet young thing went up to a telegraph center in England with a form in her hand and a diffident look on her face, and inquired:—"Can't I send just one word for less than a shilling?"

"No, miss," replied the clerk; "the rate is a shilling for one word or twenty, but if you are in no hurry, and are willing to wait until August, the rate will be cheaper."

"Wait until August, indeed! You don't know the scarcity of husbands, young man. You see," she went on confidently, "dear George has proposed to me by letter and I want to secure him, as it were, before he has time to change his mind."

But the government has not any consideration for engaged young ladies, and the sweet young thing had to secure George at an outlay of a shilling.
