County Orders. I AM AUTHORIZED TO BUY COUNTY

A traveler stopped at a toll-gate and asked the keeper if he had any good, cool water. "John," said the keeper, turning to his son, "fetch me the gun—the one loaded with buckshot." "Hold on!" said the traveler, "I "Hold on!" said the traveler, "I meant no harm." "Well, then, I'll let you off." The traveler rode on, wondering why the question had caused offense. He stopped at a house and asked a man if he could tell him why the gate keeper became wondering why the question had caused offense. He stopped at a house and asked a man if he could tell him why the gate keeper became angry. "Yes, I can tell you. He has to carry water about a mile and and a half and it's always warm by the has to carry water about a mile and a half, and it's always warm by the time he gets home with it. Every one that comes along asks if he's got good, cool water. He scarcely hears anything else from morning until night. The man who kept the gate last year went crazy, but this fellow seems to stand it better. He is rather even tempered, and, although he has kept the gate several months, he has only killed two drummers and crippled a boy. I kept that gate once," "Did the people annoy you?" "Not much. I only had to knock down one man and stab another one, but I only kept the gate a week." "Why don't the fellow dig a well?" "Now, look here, a thousand men have asked me that question. Stranger, I reckon you'd bet-ter mosey."

A venerable old tramp entered an Austin business house and said to the proprietor: "I am the most unfort-unate man in the world. Please do something for me." "I don't know who you are," replied the merchant. "You may be an impostor." "Here is a certificate from Parson Jordan, of Galveston, that I am a hard-work-ing, nonest man, who has been un-fortunate." "A certificate from Par-son Jordan, of Galveston?" asked the merchant. "Yes, sir; here it is," replied the mendicant, handing the merchant a paper. The merchant looked at the paper and said: "Par-son Jordan, of Galveston, is my brother. I know his signature on that certificate is forged." "Just as I expected," whined the mendicant. "I told you I was the most unfortunate man in the world. Just think of me coming to the brother of Parson Jordan, of all the people in the town, and showing him that forged certificate, when there is not another man in Austin who knows his signature." A Texas gentleman and a plain American were discussing the usual subject in glasses; they were nat-ually inclined to elaborate on the subject of drinking. "Did you ever," asked the plain American, "Did you ever suffer from a raging thirst?" "Did I ever? I have, sir. Riding from San Antonio to Pablo on one occasion I was so raging thirsty that occasion I was so raging thirsty that I drank a whole bottle of furniture polish all to myself." "You did? And was there no water?" "Water, sir, water? What time has a man suffering from a raging thirst to think of personal cleanliness?"-[San Francisco Funday Chronicle.
