Scientific Miscellany

During all seasons of the year, it is said, the earth at Yakutsk, Siberia, is frozen from the depth of fifty feet to that of about 1,000 feet.

The increase of suicide is scientifically ascribed to the fastness of modern life, to forced education, and to the increasing difficulty of existence.

Small-pox was accurately described by Rhazes, an Arabian physician, about 900 A. D. It is supposed to have been introduced into Europe by the Saracens, and it was spread widely among the Indians by the early explorers of America.

A remarkable specimen lately exhibited to the London Zoological Society was a Brazilian snake which had partly swallowed a live lizard.

The lizard had nearly succeeded in eating its way out, through the body of the snake, when death overtook both creatures.

The salts of sea-water, according to Prof. W. C. Williamson, F. R. S., are rendered inert by the addition of citrate of silver, an ounce of that substance converting half a pint of sea-water into a drinkable fluid.

That earthquakes exert a destructive influence on the phylloxera insect of the grape is the opinion of S. Villalogue, who has told the Paris Academy of Sciences of a vineyard near Malaga which had apparently been destroyed by the parasite, but which vigorously burst into leaf after the recent earthquakes in southern Spain.

Prof. Tromholt, in Norway, has met with partial success in photographing the aurora borealis, a feat which his many failures had led him to pronounce impossible.

Dr. C. E. Saunders, of the West Herts Medical Association in England, contends that cholera is transmitted from one locality to another by human agencies rather than climatic causes.

The seeds of the Kola tree, the highly prized stimulant of the natives of Africa, appear to possess qualities which should give them a commercial value in civilized countries.

Mr. T. Christie, an English writer on new commercial plants and drugs, asserts that chocolate made with Kola paste is ten times as nutritious as that made with cocoa, and that a laborer can work all day without fatigue on a single cup taken at breakfast time.

A living species of four-footed bird, inhabiting the island of Marajo in the Lower Amazon, was a short time ago described by Mr. E. M. Brigham. It is only during infancy that the remarkable feature of this bird is seen, the two fore-feet appearing early in the development of the embryo and continuing perfectly formed for several days after hatching, when they are gradually shed.

The zoological name of this curious creature is Opisthocomia cristata.

With the present organization of the United States Geological Survey, according to Mr. J. W. Powell, its map of the United States will be completed in about twenty-four years, about one-fifth of the country—exclusive of Alaska—having thus far been mapped.

Where the topography and geology are simple, as in the prairies and great plains, the sheets of this map are made on a scale of 1-250,000, or about four miles to the inch; farther west, where both structure and topography are more complex, special districts are made to twice this scale, and important mining districts are drawn much larger; while in the east the more thinly settled sections are given a scale of 1-125,000, and the more densely populated portions one of 1-62,500, or about one mile to the inch.

Upon this plan the whole of the United States and Alaska will require not less than 2,600 sheets, besides several hundred special maps.

Files are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, joints and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs.

At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant.

Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, O. Sold by J. W. Cunn.
