ASTORIA, OREGON:

JANUARY 23, 188 SATURDAY... PRESIDENTIAL APPOINTMENTS.

The president is reported in vesterday's dispatches as being deconsiderable backbone.

But the effort to wrest from the senate the enormous powers which it had grasped sowed dissensions in the Republican parto allow his claims. executive independence than either of his Republican predecessors. harrassing and exhausting to the to the onward flow of the wave. last degree. There is a grave question as to whether any man no matter how great may be his application and capacity for work, can make all the appointments which fall to the president, in a country so populous and wide spread as the United States.

Theoretically, an administration means, not only the president, but all the inferior branches of an ex ecutive department. The president is expected, not only to taithfully discharge his duties himself, but to give the country good collectors of customs, naval officers, district attorneys, revenue officers and postmasters. He is expected to impress his character, not only on the multitude of officials whom The appoints himself, but by a sort of political transmission on all subordinates who are appointed by the higher functionaries whom he names. So long as the presidential responsibility is as wide as that above stated, there can be no change in the system, and the president of the United States must continue to perform not only a dry and exhausting, but a wellnigh impossible labor. There is a general belief that that labor hastened the death of two presidents, and that at a time when the pressure for office was not near so

> CAPT. JOHN GILES, a practical mechanician, claims that a much higher rate of speed can be had by changing the position now given to the propeller at the stern of the ship, as well as its inclination or dip. He would put the propeller under the ship and just forward of the mizzen mast, giving it an incline of 45° with the plane of the ship's motion. With a propeller thus situated, he believes he can get forty knots an hour where now only twenty are had. The theory is based upon the manner or propulsion of animals, in which, as we know, the efforts of propelling impulse all radiate at an angle from the line

The Seattle Post-Intelligences says it is reported that the Oregor Improvement company is dallying with the Canadian Pacific people with a view of establishing new lines of steamers to China, Aus tralia and elsewhere. The Improvement company has the steam ers, and the Canadian company wants them, and between the two a very strong arrangement can be made that may prove mutually advantageous.

And now it appears, says the News, that according to the United States statutes it is unlawful to take goods seized in one collection district to be sold in another collection district, therefore the 3,-0111 pounds of opium captured at Kasson bay by the Wolcott may have to be taken by that vessel and delivered to Collector French at Sitka, Alaska. The Salem Statesman says the taxes for 1885 are being received slowly by State Treasurer Hirsch. Coos county has sent $4,000, Currv. $94.44; Douglas, $5,128.75 Josephine, $2,948.42, and Vamhill, $8,600. A good many of the counties are delinquent on their taxes of 1884 yet, and some owe back as far as 1870.
