

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: SATURDAY, JANUARY 23, 1886

Wonder if this weather will kill the fleas?

"A glory ticket," is what the Walla Walla Union calls a marriage license.

A four barrel will hold 678,000 dollars. Bring on your dollars; we've got the barrel.

Geo. F. Tribon, a Portland pioneer and well known contractor, was struck by a runaway team in that city last Thursday, receiving injuries from which he died in a few hours.

The trial of Frank Clark, charged with burglary, attracted considerable interest yesterday evening. The prisoner was ably defended by F. D. Winton. The case went to the jury at eight o'clock.

Mrs. C. B. Stearns, wife of D. H. Stearns, died at the family residence in Portland on the 21st inst. Mrs. Stearns was the daughter of Mrs. A. S. Dunaway, and was a lady greatly loved and esteemed by her acquaintances.

The election of Mr. A. C. Cleveland as president of the association at the last meeting of that body, was a deserved recognition of that gentleman's ability as a chairman. Mr. Cleveland has a thorough knowledge of parliamentary rules and can always hold his own in debate.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lord, who had been ill for several weeks, died yesterday morning. The stricken parents have the deep sympathy of their friends and acquaintances in their sad bereavement. The funeral will be from the family residence at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The Canby ministers are thoroughly appreciative of the kindly feeling evinced toward them by the citizens of Astoria, and wish to say that at any time if called upon to aid in any charitable entertainment or enterprise of kindred nature they will gladly cooperate and do all they can to aid in the entertainment.

The Tacoma Ledger, discussing the local option law just passed, says that the liquor licenses in Tacoma in 1885 aggregated $15,325, and asks if the city can afford to lose that much money experimenting. That is a question for the Tacoma folks to decide next June. It is generally a good thing to let well enough alone.

Among other laws passed at the special session of the Oregon parliament was one that provides that if a man loses money at a gambling game in this state, he can by law recover twice the amount lost. This double discount is the usual percentage in favor of the game and makes it more profitable to blow in all one's earnings than to play in luck and break the bank. The more you put down, the more you pick up—in court.

To find a dry spot yesterday was like looking for a shadow in a fog. Everything was wet, sodden and dampish, the rain melted the snow and the snow held the rain in round pools of slush, through which men and horses squashed and splashed, school children left their shoes and waded crying back to get them out, roofs leaked, half melted snow slid with a heavy slump and choked the eaves which overflowed rain every where, and one individual who as he sprawled in the street exclaimed "darn such weather," expressed the exact sentiments of nearly every one who had to be out yesterday.

Who Is It? The engagement is announced of a well-known and popular young lady of Portland to an able and much-respected judge of Astoria. —New Northwest, 21.

Mr. W. S. Austin, the newly appointed register of the Vancouver land office, took possession on the 15th inst., Dr. Fred W. Spurling retiring after an able administration of over four years. —Vancouver Independent.

TELEGRAPHIC SPARKS.

On Jan. 2, the Honolulu postoffice was robbed of $1,000.

North Yakima offers $30,000 to secure the territorial capital.

Five thousand coal miners are on a strike in the vicinity of Pittsburg.

Engineer Chas. Elks was killed by an overturned locomotive at Wallula last Thursday.

Seattle is in a ferment over local option. Governor Squires is asked to veto the bill.

The Newport Coal company has failed. Its assets in Coos county aggregate over a quarter of a million; liabilities, $220,000.

It is rumored in Madrid that a revolutionary expedition against Spain is being prepared in France, and that it will depart from Marseilles.

Twenty-seven snow slides have occurred this week in the Maroon pass, Colorado, resulting in the death of twenty persons and vast destruction of property.

The Northern Pacific directors in a meeting at New York last Thursday, discussed the question of giving out contracts for the Cascade tunnel, but took no definite action.

A big storm is reported from California. In San Francisco the wind did considerable damage. For the first time in twenty-four years San Francisco was cut off from telegraphic communication.

had failed, although every chance had been given to make it a success. Nothing, he said, could exceed the patience of the Earl of Carnarvon in carrying out his mission of peace. The disease existed in Westminster and not in Ireland, and the government must stamp it out. Words that Gladstone had declared were unanswerable for many Irish evils. Mr. Gladstone had not spoken, he said, with sufficient firmness concerning the integrity of the empire.

In the English house of commons on the 21st Gladstone said he was convinced that only gentle and conciliatory handling of the Irish question would be effectual. He had always striven to eliminate elements of wrath and passion in discussing Ireland. The exercise of candor and justice could alone afford the smallest hope of solving the difficulty. "Whatever," he continued, "it may be necessary to do for Ireland should be done promptly. In the name of heaven, let us maintain the union. We have been maintaining it for eighty-five, yes, ninety years. Let us not deviate from the path of good temper and self-command, but forgetful of prejudice, let us strive to do justice to the great, the gigantic interest committed to our charge." In the house of lords, Salisbury, the premier, said the government had refrained from renewing the crimes act because there had been a prospect of returning order in that country. The experiment, however,

The Opium Smugglers. It is very generally understood among the residents of Chinatown that the opium seized on the Idaho and at Carter bay was owned by one or two prominent Chinese firms in Victoria. Capt. Carroll and other officials only doing the dangerous work for a fat commission. Capt. Beecher is, no doubt, entitled to credit for following up the scent and bagging the game, but he probably never would have "tumbled to" the game had it not been "given away" by a party in Victoria. The cook of the Idaho, who, with the carpenter, were arrested at Port Townsend, appeared before the police court here in an assault case, which was dropped today. —Victoria Times, January 19.

Will Go to Court. The Oregon & Transcontinental company some time ago made a claim against the Northern Pacific Railroad company for a considerable balance claimed to be due on business. The Northern Pacific company after investigating the claim now asserts that the Oregon & Transcontinental company is debtor to it to the amount of at least $1,000,000. It is said that the Northern Pacific intends to establish this claim in the courts. —Railway Age.

The Use of Oil at Sea.

In an article on "The use of oil at sea," by Lieutenant John P. Holdich, R. N. R., the author says: The results I have obtained are these: Fish or coals oil only is of any good; it does not matter how dirty it is as long as it is not thick. Paraffin is too thin; paint oil too thick. Running before a gale naturally expends fuel more oil than "laying to," you have so much more water to oil. Carefully expended, one quart in three hours for running, one pint in four hours for laying to, will be sufficient. The means I used was a canvas bag (No. 6) with holes stabbed with a needle. I have heard of a bundle of oakum being saturated with oil, and then put in a coarse gunny bag, which I think would admit of a thicker oil being used for the time. The place for towing is undoubtedly forward, not aft. Whether in head-reaching oil could be used successfully I cannot say, but I doubt it. When running dead before the wind, tow from each cathead, and the ship is as safe as anything can be at sea.

The Deceased Estate.

The will of W. C. Dement, deceased, who left property valued at $26,500, has been filed for probate. Edward D. and J. D. Dement, brothers of the deceased, and W. Johnson are named in the will as executors. Property belonging to the estate valued at $18,000 is situated in this state and the remainder is in Oregon. The will leaves all the real property to the widow of deceased and provides that the children shall each receive $5,000 when they become of age.—S. E. Chronicle, 16.

The Nominal Governors of Mexico.

Mexico is nominally governed by a Congress, first called September 14, 1813, which has probably seen as many vicissitudes as any assembly on earth has ever seen in the same time. It has been chased here and there, dissolved, expelled, recalled and remodelled, until it has finally settled down into an established institution. It now consists of a Senate of about sixty members, which meets in a room in the National Palace, and a Chamber of Deputies of some 220 members, which meets in the old Theater of Hurbide, over half a mile from the National Palace. In appearance this Congress could hardly be distinguished from that of the United States. Fully nine-tenths of its members are of pure white blood, and the other tenth have no more color than fashion demands of a stylish brunette. No traces of rusticity, coarseness, ignorance or stupidity are visible, nor is there any sign of what is generally known as military costume. Both bodies are composed of eminent soldiers, scholars, lawyers, and members of other professions, with young men whose talents have attracted notice; and the members show a degree of politeness and decency that would improve any of our State Legislatures.

THE SIGNAL SERVICE STORM FLAG.

Oh, say! Can you see by the dawn's early light, What we washed and decried at the twilight's last gleaming?

That red flag, Signal of Griffin had placed on the mast, Of the Knight's Castle building, in scarlet folds streaming.

Through the fog of our dreams, The snow sailing in air, Came prow through the night that that flag was still there.

Oh, say does that action sign still flap in air, O'er the snow and the slush and the slip and the swear?

On that roof set on high by great Glassford's command, Waved that flag as a signal of storm's dire disaster.

Where the waves wildly surged on this northern strand, And the wind sweeping eastward came faster and faster, San Francisco says "Up," and that flag must be raised.

Nor may it be lowered till the signal again be hoisted, And that red damsel ensign the Chinese has dazed.

Till they think that Tacoma has ordered their way so.

At the cape dimly seen through the mists of the deep, Where friend Kairns when off duty sometimes reposes, What is that which the breeze on Cape Hancock's bold steep As it blows half conceals, half discloses?

Now it gleams through the steam of the tugs in the stream, Now reflects to the pilots the sun's fitful beam: 'Tis the storm flag that laridly floats o'er the waves, Oh long may its waving the sailors' lives save.

IT'S FUNNY WHEN YOU FEEL THAT WAY. My feet are dancing to the song, My happy heart is singing, The sand seems strewn with diamonds.

And sweetest birds are singing, The lark is trilling in the sky, And the dove coos in the grove, My very soul seems melting down in streams of lava, love.

Last night he whispered in my ear Such words of love and madness, My heart to-day is carried up To heights of glorious gladness, And oh! I can not help it.

I've seen ten thousand burning eyes, But his are brightest of them all; His tones make sweeter music far Than those celestial harps let fall. My heart is singing in response, My blush the tale is telling— With wild, delicious swelling, My very soul is ecstasy.

Last night I heard the first mad words Of love, that glowing, passion thing: My senses reel—my heart will burst, My feet will dance, my lips will sing, Because I can not help it.

And oh, such words of love he spoke— The first I'd ever heard; They charmed me as the charmer does, The reason, fluttering from the trees, The Paphian goddess never felt A love so rich and warm.

As thrilled my soul and swept my heart At loves tempestuous storm, The stars were out and all aglow— (Scene of bliss about me swirl); My heart was snatched on his breast; And he kissed me—and I kissed him; Because I could not help it.

A Relic of the Revolution.

Mr. James G. Marshall, paymaster of the Boot corporation, has in his possession a relic from the mast of the English ship William and Jane, which was captured by one of Paul Jones' cruizers. It bears the date November 27, 1778, and a dozen or more small entries of articles consigned to persons, presumably Tories, on this side of the water. The prices charged against these articles, in pounds, shillings, and pence, make one open his eyes and recollect stories about the prices which the early California miners had to pay for provisions. A few of the prices are given, reduced to United States money: Flour, $150 a barrel; pork, $100 a barrel; peas, $12 a bushel; rum, $15 a gallon; butter, $1.25 a pound. This relic is slightly discolored with age, but is remarkably well preserved. —Lowell (Mass.) Citizen.

A Great Horseback Ride.

Frank Aubry, says a writer on Western life before the days of railroads, rode from Santa Fe, N. M., to Independence, Mo., 780 miles, in less than six days, and afterwards, in 1848, rode over the same road again in eight days without having stopped to sleep the entire way. His horse gave out when half the journey was over and he had to make his way on foot, keeping guard all the time against hostile Indians, to a fort twenty miles away to get another outfit.
