TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. Random Notes.

The indisposition of Connecticut bachelors to marry is assuming startling proportions.

Beethoven's favorite violin is now in the possession of an English gentleman named Kirrmoald.

Gen. Louis Eugene Leonce Pajol who was an aide-de-camp to Napoleon III, is dead, at Paris, in his seventy-second year.

Manual labor schools for colored children are declared by the National Baptist to be the greatest present need of the race.

The largest prune orchard in the world is situated one mile from Saratoga, Cal., and contains 10,000 trees. It was recently sold for $73,000.

The birthdays of General Grant, Louis Kossuth, and Herbert Spencer occur on the same day of the year.

In appending his signature to his letters, the President writes "Yours truly," Arthur wrote "Faithfully yours," Garfield "Very truly yours," and Hayes was content to sign himself in the stereotyped "Respectfully or "Sincerely yours."

At Princeton, on Wednesday, in the First Presbyterian Church, H. Gokoth, a high-caste Brahmin, was ordained to the Christian ministry.

He will return home in a few months to engage in missionary work.

Pennsylvania has furnished eight ministers to the Russian Court: George M. Dallas, Benjamin Rush, James Buchanan, Albert Gallatin, — Welsh, of York, William Wilkins, ex-Senator Cameron, and ex-Governor Curtin.

One of the Washington correspondents reports that "The Basnet Claim," by Mr. Henry R. Elliott, has had an immense sale in Washington, and was largely instrumental in passing the French spoliation claims by Congress.

Pigs have been known to live to the age of twenty, and the rhinoceros to twenty-nine. A horse has been known to live to the age of sixty-two, but averages twenty-five to thirty.

Camels sometimes live to the age of one hundred; stags are very long lived; sheep seldom exceed the age of ten; cows live about fifteen years.

The Earl of Selkirk, whose title has become extinct by his death lately at St. Mary's Isle, Scotland, was son of the founder of Selkirk settlement in Canada. Paul Jones once dropped down on St. Mary's Isle and carried off the family plate when the Earl was away. It was recovered and the family have it today.

The Clinical Record says that after the chief engineer of the water department of Philadelphia pointed out the poor quality of the water and the glaring defects in its supply, he was requested by the authorities "to refrain from any further expression of his sentiment on the subject, no matter how great the general public interest in it."

The present Duke of Bedford, head of the house of Russell, who is held up in a rather unpleasant form just now by the London press, is a confirmed cynic. There is no member of London society that says so many biting words or who impresses one with a deeper notion of his disbelief in human nature generally.

"Swell" funerals are going out of style in the larger cities, and the tendency now is in the direction of strict simplicity and privacy. Good authority reports for New York that almost all funeral services are held from the houses of the deceased persons.

A few of the personal friends are invited, and the crowd is given to understand that it is not wanted.

The King and Queen of Saxony are now traveling incognito through Switzerland and Italy. The Queen is a florid, dark-eyed, dark-haired woman, stout and comely, and middle-aged. The King is a fine looking man, with gray hair and whiskers.

All the Katherines of England are contributing to a fund to place a memorial of brass on Queen Katherine's tomb, in Peterborough Cathedral, that poor old lady, though immortalized by William Shakespeare, never having had a suitable monument.

Miss Charlotte M. Younge, whose latest novel bears the title "The Two Sides of the Shield," is born in her sixty-third year, having been born in Otterburn, Hants, in 1823. She began to write in 1854, and has kept at it so industriously that her books of all kinds now number 120 titles, or something like four hundred volumes.

A ladies' club patterned upon the Union, is soon to be organized in New York City. Its membership will be composed of the most prominent women in the society of the metropolis. The names of Mrs. Rivers, Mrs. William Astor, Mrs. John Jacob Astor, and Mrs. Adrian Iselin have already been suggested for President, and the Misses Hewitt and Miss Marbury will almost certainly be among the governesses. It goes without saying no men are to be admitted to the club, either as members or as visitors. The servants are all to be women, and the stewardess will be a person of long experience as housekeeper. As might be expected, many of the husbands of present and prospective members do not favor the new club. Several who do not happen to be club members in particular, frown severely upon it, and say they do not see why their wives should join a club when their husbands have not done so. One bright woman is said to have given as her excuse for not joining: "I have married a husband, and therefore I cannot come."

Two for a Cent Apiece.

A young editor, bright, poor, and punsterous, had won the affections of a rich man's daughter, and they fixed a day for him to call on the father, and on that day he was promptly in the old gentleman's office.

"Good morning, sir," he said, confident, but ready to run. "I have called on you on a matter of—"

"We don't want any advertising to-day," interrupted the old gentleman, looking up over his glasses. "I am not on that business, sir. I came to ask you for your daughter."

"What do you want with her?" "Marry her."

"For better or worse." "What does the girl say?" "She says she will be my wife."

"Ugh! You haven't got a cent in the world, have you?" "Yes, sir. She gave assent, and if you will do the same, that will make two, and we can buy a postage stamp and write to you for the balance of our salary."

It was a wretched attempt, but he got the girl.

A Very Natural Mistake.
A gentleman who had just arrived from Boston last Sunday evening dropped into a church on his way to a hotel while the minister was describing the glories of Heaven.

"Must be a beautiful place," whispered a man in the same pew.

"Beautiful!" replied the Bostonian. "Beautiful is no name for it. I left there this morning."

"Left Heaven this morning?" said his amazed neighbor.

"Heaven? Is he describing Heaven?" "Certainly."

"Well, I'll be everlastingly Americanized if I didn't think he was describing Boston."

The people of DeKalb County, Tenn., drive a nice little trade in pearls gathered from mussels in the Caney Fork River. A number of valuable specimens have been found of late. A few years ago a specimen which is said to have brought $300 in New York, was found in this river near Smithville. During the low water from June to November, hundreds of men are engaged at the business of gathering mussels. It is said to be the best paying enterprise in that section of country.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites.
In Loss of Appetite and General Debility. MESSRS. RAMSEY & Co., of Sharpshurg, Pa., makes the following report: "That I recommend a friend suffering from loss of appetite and general debility, Scott's Emulsion, that after taking half a dozen, he reported, that he ate well, felt well, and is in fact a new man, and recommends it highly."

To those who remember the old grist-mill, with its single or double run of stone, its lazy wheel, and the miller who was boss and all hands, the feat of one of the great Minneapolis mills in turning out 6,200 barrels of flour in one day seems to mark as great an advance in the mechanical appliances and business enterprise as can be shown in any manufacturing.

A Wise Reform.
The habit of administering quinine in powerful doses, as an antidote to malarial miasma, was once dangerously common. Happily this practice has undergone a wide reform. Not only the public, but professional men have adopted, not wholly of course, but largely, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a safe botanic substitute for the pernicious alkaloid. The consequences of this change are most important. Now fever and ague sufferers are cured—formerly their complaints were only for the time relieved, or half cured—the remedy eventually failing to produce any appreciable effect, except the doses were increased. A course of the Bitters persistently followed, breaks up the worst attacks and prevents their return. The evidence in favor of this sterling specific and household medicine is of no ambiguous character, but positive and satisfactory, and the sources whence it proceeds are very numerous.

It appears that the sandy wastes in the interior of Long Island are to be utilized. The thrifty farmers of Suffolk County are experimenting in raising peanuts on this hitherto unprofitable soil.
