

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1887.

The British Army and North Riding came in yesterday.

There are very few vessels in the river, but plenty on the way.

There was an annular eclipse of the sun yesterday, invisible to this part of the universe.

The Pacific Postal Telegraph Co. is now sending press report direct from New York to Portland.

There was a little rain yesterday, some snow, a slight fall of hail, a gleam of sunshine; no wind.

Ice fourteen inches thick was cut on Hood river, 95 miles from Portland, during the recent cold snap.

This is the first day of Lent, a season of fasting and prayer lasting forty days and generally observed throughout the Christian world.

The testimonial of the citizens of Astoria to Messrs. Church and Harmon amounted to $300, which Sam R. L. Boyle had the pleasure of handing to them yesterday afternoon.

Flags fluttered in the breeze yesterday in honor of Washington's birthday. The vessels were also bright with bunting, the Corwin being particularly profuse in the display.

While practicing with the foils at Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last evening, Gus Christiansen sustained an injury in his right eye, which was promptly attended to with little danger of permanent injury.

The city council met in regular session yesterday evening, and it being a legal holiday, it was decided to postpone the transaction of any business till this evening, when an adjourned meeting will be held.

Last Monday thirteen days' mail from Oregon, from the 3rd to the 16th, inclusive, arrived at San Francisco, by special train, over the C. & O. This is why Astoria would like to have the ocean mail route renewed.

The East Oregonian says: The severe winds of two weeks ago blew a sea gull over the Cascade mountains that landed at Hawn & Guyer's mill, in Camas prairie, where it was killed by dogs. This is the first instance reported where a sea gull has been found east of the mountains.

Willamette valley papers say the prospects are that beef cattle will be high next spring. Montana territory has for a long time been the pasture for large herds, but latest reports indicate that this winter has been the most disastrous known in the territory and the loss of cattle unparalleled.

There was a large and interesting meeting of the Astoria building and loan association at the city hall last evening. The workings and practical operation of the scheme were fully explained to members and a number of shares aggregating 163 shares were taken in five share lots. The books of the association will, at present be at Foad & Stokes'.

At the regular meeting of the Scandinavian Benevolent Society last evening at Pythian Castle Hall, one member was admitted and the names of seven others proposed. The association tendered a vote of thanks to Judge C. H. Page, Trust Astorian and the Pythian L. & B. association. The association is now composed of seventy-five members and is in a flourishing and prosperous condition. Its object commends itself to popular favor and it bids fair to have a career of uninterrupted usefulness.

Yesterday evening, just before the calling to order of the city council, Chief of Police Twombly beckoned to Councilman Cleveland, who was seated, and upon approaching him the two engaged in some conversation inaudible to others present in the room. After a minute or so the chief of police hit Councilman Cleveland on the temple with his club, knocking him senseless. He was picked up and carried into the hall, the blood streaming from his head, and in a few moments he came to, being present and answering to his name at roll call shortly after. The affair occasioned considerable comment.

Oregon is being well advertised throughout the east, south and west, as well as across the stormy Atlantic. The desire to learn more about the resources of this state is very widespread and is constantly augmenting. Recently, says the Telegram, J. W. Morse, the general passenger agent of the Union Pacific, whose headquarters is at Omaha, wrote to the state board of immigration in regard to obtaining papers, pamphlets, etc. He asked for 10,000 copies of the pamphlet entitled "Oregon As It Is," for general distribution. Mr. Morse said his office was constantly besieged by applications made in person or by letter for information respecting the glorious commonwealth of Webfoot. These applications came from every direction. Everybody had heard Oregon talked about so much that they wished to learn some definite information regarding climate, production, etc.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Saving the Cost of a Pilot Wrecks the "W. H. Macy."

The American ship William H. Macy had a narrow escape from being totally wrecked last evening on the rocks of Fort point. About nine o'clock, while passing in with her courses set, she struck on a submerged rock directly in the life between Fort point and Limb point. The tide then was at the lowest, with only six feet of water on the rocks, and the vessel struck fast. Immediately after seeing her strike the lighthouse keeper gave the alarm, asking that tug be dispatched from this city, and a detachment of thirty soldiers from the Presidio were sent to render any assistance possible. When they reached the parapet the vessel was lying broadside to the shore, with her bow well up and all sails set. A stiff southwest gale was blowing, the surf was running high, and the ship was pounding heavily on the rocks. For awhile it seemed that she must be beaten to pieces. About half-past ten o'clock the Sea Lion reached the scene, followed soon afterward by the Monarch, Rescue and Water Witch. Aided by the tide, they succeeded in getting her off three hours later, and as she cleared the reef she settled down deep in the water, and appeared as if she was sinking. While en route to the city she narrowly escaped going on Alcatraz Island, but she was finally beached in Mission bay, with fifteen feet of water in the hold. She lies at present between Mission rock and Long wharf.

The Macy is a wooden ship of 2,092 tons burden. She is owned by Carleton, Norwood & Co., of Camden, Maine, and is worth about $100,000. The cargo consists of 2,620 tons of coal and 504 tons of steel rails, and is not damaged to any considerable extent. Captain Harkness, who commands her, has employed T. P. H. Whitlaw to pump her out so that she can be discharged and repaired.

The cause of the accident is attributed by the captain to a misinterpretation of his orders by the man at the helm. The Macy was spoken of by Farallone Island Saturday by the pilot boat Lady Mine, but the captain refused to have his ship taken in, saying he was perfectly familiar with the entrance and bar. It is thought that if the accident had occurred at high tide, nothing could have saved the vessel from total destruction.—S. F. Post, 14.
