

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1887.

Praise service at 7 and Gospel message by Rev. I. D. Driver, at 7:30 p. m. at the Methodist church to-night.

The business office of THE ASTORIAN is moved to the corner of THE ASTORIAN building, on Squemoqua and Glass streets.

Some new and finely built fishing boats have been hauled through the streets this week from the shop to the water for final finish for next season's work.

The social at Mrs. Dr. Trenchard's last Tuesday night was so well attended the occasion, one of great enjoyment to all present. The proceeds of the evening aggregated $41.

The Astorian came in yesterday, too late by five days to save her charter. The collier Umattilla also arrived in. The Oregon is due this morning from San Francisco; the State sails.

Considerable snow fell last Wednesday night and yesterday morning, and in the early hours every tree and twig and out door plant had a feathery covering. By ten o'clock the sun shone out warm and the most of the snow melted and disappeared.

Up to yesterday 353 shares of stock in the building and loan association had been taken. The stock books will be at Ford & Stoke's the remainder of this week. There will be a meeting of the stockholders and others in the police court rooms at eight o'clock to-morrow evening.

During February, says the News, the land department of the Northern Pacific has received twice the number of letters it did this month last year. These letters are mostly from Indiana, Illinois and the southern states, with Virginia and Tennessee in the lead. It is believed that there will be an exodus from those states to Oregon this year.

R. D. Hume is reported building for the Smith river a tug of novel construction. She will be 72 feet long, 15 beam and 11 feet hold. She is built on the monitor plan, everything below the deck. A shaft will run the entire length of the vessel, with a propeller at each end, and it is calculated that she will make fifteen miles an hour.

It is understood that the Astoria Gaslight company are to light 43 street lights in addition to the ten electric street lights furnished by Mayor Trullinger. Seventeen of the forty-three are to be gas lights at $3.75 per month; the other twenty-six, coal oil lamps, at $2.24 a month. This will make the cost of lighting the city $281.99 a month.

PERSONAL.

Postmaster Morehead, of Oyster-ville was in the city yesterday on his way to Portland.

Miss Marion Trenchard has resigned her position in the Court street public school. This action was necessary by nervous prostration resulting from overwork.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Dorris regret to hear of their intended removal to Eugene, which will be as soon as Mr. Dorris can wind up his legal business.

Swamp Lands in Clatsop County.

In the report of the legislative committee which recently investigated the matter of state swamp lands, is a list of applicants to purchase swamps and overgrown or tide lands under the act of October 26th, 1870, upon which the twenty per cent. was paid prior to the 17th of January, 1873.

Among others appears the following names: John Adair, Jr., 4,384.85 acres, April 14th, 1871, in T. 9, R. 7, on which $882.84 was paid; M. Seller, April 15, 71, 3,148.96 acres, T's 8 and 9, N. R. 7, W., on which $712.84 was paid February 12, 1872; A. D. Ellis, 2,003.88 acres, March 29, 71, T's 8 and 9, S. R. 8, W., on which $400.77 was paid April 18th, 1872; A. E. Wait, 626.04 acres, April 11, 71, T. 9, N., R. 7, W., on which $126.20 was paid February 13th, 1872; Henry S. Aiken, 424.71 acres, June 5, 71, T's 7 and 8, N., R. 9, W., on which $85 was paid January 22, 1872; T. H. Cann, A. D. Ellis, assignee, 1,685.19 acres T's 7 and 9, N., R's 7 and 10, W., on which $337.15 was paid September 6th, 1872; Moses Seller, 57.22 acres, T. 8, N., R. 6, W., on which $11.44 was paid February 15th, 1872.

There was comparatively little in this section of the state; the bulk being in southern and eastern Oregon. The total number of acres is 181,236.69. Amount received, $34,823.06.

Police Court.

Feb. 23. Rob't Morris, disorderly; fined $10. John Phillips, drunk; fined $5.

Feb. 24. Chas. Bush, fighting a woman; fined $20. H. Pioe, indecent act; forfeited $10.

Terrible Loss of Life by Big Earthquakes

PORTLAND, Or., Feb. 24.—This morning a man named Peter Burns, recently from Idaho, about 40 years of age, tried to commit suicide by throwing himself into the river. He was rescued by a boatman. He said he was out of employment and dependent. He was not a drinking man.

THE WARLIKE INGALLS CHOSEN. WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—In the senate caucus to-day, senator Ingalls, of Kansas, was nominated to succeed John Sherman as president of the senate, the latter's term expiring by resignation on the 26th. Twenty-eight votes were cast: Ingalls, 18, Hoar, 8, Edmunds, 1, Fry, 1. The Democrats decided to support Harris.

TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE. NICE, Feb. 24.—The most startling news comes from Genoa and the Riviera. Over fifteen hundred people were killed in that district by the great earthquake. At the village at Bayardo, situated at the top of a hill, a large number of the inhabitants took refuge in a church when the first shocks of earthquake were felt. Subsequent greater shocks demolished the church and three hundred were killed. The destruction of property in many sections of Italy is immense and widespread. The people are afraid to return to their houses or hotels. Last evening the heights back of the city were crowded with people, among whom were over 2,000 English, American and Russian visitors on the elevated ground. Six thousand persons have left the city and started for Paris.

So severe were the shocks that in some cases whole villages built on the sides of mountains, toppled over into the valley.

Three railway trains have been dispatched with food and supplies for the sufferers and a number of soldiers have also been sent to assist them. The Prince of Wales is in that region and great fears are entertained for his safety.

AN UNDECIDED CONTEST. There was a dog fight last night in the back room of "The Fallen Angels." The dogs were bull dogs. One was named Nip, and the other Tuck. A bull dog is a compact mass of tiger, mouse, ox, tidal wave, lightning, office holder and ram. The wind goes down, the office holder dies, the rain quits, the fire goes out, the leak stops, the snow melts, even the piano artist finally gives out, but the bull dog never lets go. You can argue with an ordinary dog, you can scare a bull, astonish a tiger, frighten a lion, get out of the way of an elephant, but when a bull dog turns loose, nothing walks, swims or jumps that can stand him off—but another bull dog.

There was a ring with sawdust; the sawdust was yellow and white at the start, but blood-spotted at the close.

There were several enjoying the sport of seeing the brutes tugging and biting. One prominent gentleman, whose position as a member of the militia and consequent familiarity with scenes of carnage had hardened his sensibilities, stood, gloomily, the drab of his eye in neat contrast to the gentleman who stood next him, the deep dark brown of his eye harmonizing with the deep dark brown of his paper collar. He was fresh from handling soap and leading ripe cheese to its proper owner, a deep woe upon his face and a dark polish on the shoulder of his pants.

The lamps cast silhouettes, the chimney cracked on one of them and the flame smoked, but none noticed it; all eyes centered on the dogs who bit and glared and gouted and breathed heavy and held on. In the great joy of the moment audible regrets were heard regarding absent ones who were missing the fun and reckless bets of large amount were proffered regarding Nip's ability to remove the sanguinary intestines from Tuck, and equally confident assertions were heard alleging Tuck's chance to disfigure Nip's anatomy in a similar manner.

Still the dogs fought and one man who had forgotten to light his cigar, spat upon the ground with vehemence and said he'd be blanked if it wasn't a blank good fight, and several nodded grave assent.

Then a motion to adjourn was put by the speaker of the house, and the dogs being with difficulty separated, were put each in charge of a dry nurse, a draw was declared, and in one time and two motions, three benches to the bar, the crowd moved to the front room to irrigate, one surprising his stomach by absent-mindedly swallowing the water before the gin, so much alike did they look as they moved themselves aright in their respective glasses.

FRENCH AND GERMAN ARMIES.

Relative Strength and Efficiency of the Two Forces.

[New York Sun.] Both in her land and sea forces France has a peace effective numerically superior to that of Germany. The difference is greatest in the navy, and there also it could not be made up, should a war occur at any time before 1890; yet, though it may seem a contradiction in the navy this French numerical superiority is the least important. Germany has no colonies worth attacking, and her comparatively short coast line at home, where accessible all is well provided with defenses, while France has a long coast line to guard. Above all, the tremendous vigor with which war on land would be waged between these powers would make of the decisive element, just as in 1870, when the French naval superiority was perhaps even more marked than to-day, it yet availed nothing. For this reason it is not important to compare the naval forces of the two countries.

The army peace establishment of France is the larger, but in population and potential arms-bearing resources Germany has the advantage. France has the greatest debt amount to heavy taxes to sustain, but from these taxes the Government receives the ample appropriations each year for military and naval purposes. The peace effective of the French army, according to the Reichstag bill, 223,283, comprising 31,140 officers and 192,143 enlisted men. Major Huberdung of the German War Ministry, in reporting recently to the special committee of the Reichstag on the French army, estimated the French force of enlisted men at only 471,000, possibly subtracting either the gendarmerie, numbering 25,825, or else the military schools and bureau troops, which combined amount to 31,000. The peace footing of the German Empire comprises 18,143 officers and 427,274 men, making an aggregate of 445,417. Thus in the peace effective the advantage is clearly on the side of the French. News of recent date, however, announces that 68,200 infantry and 4800 riflemen, making a total of 73,000 men of the German reserves, have been summoned to drill during the present week so that for the next fortnight the effective force with the colors will be about as great as the German main body.

Turning to the war footing, the first addition of France would be what is called the territorial army, which comprises an aggregate of 616,000 officers and men. Other additions might carry the total effective under the first call up to 1,696,000 men, including all arms and staff services. The German mobilization for a war footing, without the landsturm and special organizations, but including garrison and field reserves, would comprise 35,427 officers and 1,456,677 men, with about 27,000 more for the medical and collateral forces. Thus we see again how close the two mobilizations would come in numerical strength. When the landsturm is called out on the one side and its French equivalent on the other the Germans have an ultimate superiority of numbers, although the French nominally counterpoise the advantage of population by making a larger ratio of their people liable to a military service. Still, so far as numbers are concerned, it is France who would be much better off at the outset than in 1870. Were it possible for them, by a sudden dash, to invade Alsace and Lorraine, and neutralize the advantage in population which the Germans give to the Germans, a new face might be put upon the struggle. The German fortifications, military skill and watchfulness, however, and the probability that if the Germans should give to Germany's taking the initiative, render this contingency unlikely to occur.

The difference between the respective organizations of the two forces, is more briefly indicated by saying that France is a little stronger in infantry, about in proportion to the general strength of her peace organization. She is decidedly the stronger in artillery and especially in the number of her heavy guns. Major Huberdung declared to the Reichstag that the French batteries now contain 452 mounted field pieces more than the German. The latter having 1464 to the 1856 of France. On the other hand, the Germans are very much stronger than the French in cavalry, having fully seventy more squadrons and about one-third more total cavalry force. One of the highest authorities in France declares that the disparity in this respect at the outset would be much greater, since a large part of the French mounted force is absent in Africa, making the German available forces nearly equal to those of the French. In week or ten days, however, the absent French cavalry could be recalled, and then the respective strength in this arm would be an aggregate of about 64,000 officers and men for the Germans against 49,000 for the French.

Greatly Excited. Not a few of the citizens of Astoria have recently become greatly excited over the astounding facts, that several of their friends who had been pronounced by their physicians as incurable and beyond all hope—suffering with that dreaded monster Consumption—have been completely cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the only remedy that does positively cure all throat and lung diseases, Coughs, Colds, Asthma and Bronchitis. Trial bottles free for W. E. Dement & Co.'s Drug Store, large bottles 25 cents.

G. A. R. and W. R. C.

Last night a banquet was given at the G. A. R. hall on First and Taylor streets, by the department, in honor of their newly elected officers. The following is a complete list of them: Department commander M. J. Olmstead, of Joe Hooker post No. 20, Baker City; senior vice-commander, Z. N. Christopher, Garfield post No. 3; Portland; junior vice-commander, E. G. Hursh, of Reno post No. 23, Roseburg; medical director, J. E. Gill, of G. W. Geary post No. 7, Eugene City; chaplain, James K. Varney, of James W. Nesmith post No. 32, The Dalles; counsel of administration, E. Martin of Sumner post No. 12, East Portland; M. J. Morse, of George Wright post No. 1, of this city; C. S. Wright, of Cushing post No. 14, Astoria; F. E. Reiser, of W. Geary post No. 7, Roseburg, and J. W. Crawford, of Sedgwick post No. 10, Salem. E. B. McElroy, of Sedgwick post No. 10, Salem, and F. M. Johnson, Ellsworth post No. 19, Corvallis, were elected as delegates to the National encampment. H. E. Dosch, of Garfield post No. 3, and J. H. Hinds, of Lincoln post No. 4, both of this city, were elected as alternates.

The following staff officers were appointed by Commander Olmstead to serve the ensuing term: Assistant Adjutant general A. A. Houston, of Joe Hooker post, No. 20, A. Q. M. G. A. E. Borthwick of George Wright post No. 1, Portland; Judge advocate, J. M. Sigill of Baker post No. 8, Marshfield; Chief Mustering Officer, W. A. Bentz, of Lincoln post, No. 4, of this city; Inspector, A. B. Woodin, of McPherson post, No. 5, Albany. A number of speeches were made, interspersed with music, which made the evening pass most enjoyably.

One of the features of the evening was the presentation of a handsome gold-headed cane to Gen. F. H. Lamb, in acknowledgment of the most excellent work that that gentleman has done, while filling the office of department commander. Commander Lamb made the presentation speech, and it was in his happiest vein.

The next encampment will be held at Albany, the date to be fixed by the counsel of administration.

By the unanimous vote of the department the two little girls, Georgie Sears and Ivy Barker, were formally adopted as daughters of the department.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS. At the meeting of the department of Oregon of the Woman's Relief Corps the following ladies were elected to the several offices, to act during the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Nina M. Fry; senior vice president, Mrs. Agnes E. Dinsmore; junior vice president, Mrs. Annie Fishburn; secretary, Mrs. E. A. Crane; treasurer, Miss Stella Rowland; chaplain, Mrs. Mary H. Ellis.—Oregonian, 21.

The Science of Baldness.

It answers to an inquiry from a young unmarried man as to the cause of baldness and whether anything had been discovered to help it, Bill Nye makes the following response through the Boston Globe:

Baldness is liable to break out in the most unlooked for localities, but I think it is generally inherited. I inherited mine, but I have added to it a good deal.

You may not think you have inherited your baldness, and yet if you go back seven or eight generations and exhume your ancestors, you will find that they are, in most cases, totally bald.

I have tried several preparations in my lifetime, all of which were good for baldness and assisted it very much. These remedies for the hairless are deemed to resemble each other in two particulars, namely: they were all expensive and all sticky. Some smelled offensively when first applied, while others were more successful after awhile. For several years I dressed very plainly, Elisha, using the balance of my income on the site of my former hair.

As a result of this, my bosom alternately gave with anticipation or fell in disappointment, while my bangs remained unbung and my hat smelled like a volcanic eruption.

Various people came to me with recipes for wooing the hair out of my glossy intellectual rind. Among them came to me a gentleman from England, named Macroscopic, who claimed to have been royal taxidermist for nine years, after which he had acted as chiropodist extraordinary for several years, removing unicorn horns from the great and small. He said that he could grow a waving crop of tresses on my bleak and barren brow for five pounds.

He now has the five pounds and I still retain the broad sweep of barren brow.

I cannot tell you how you can endeavor your tail sleek forehead in rank, wind-tossed hair, Elisha, but I can tell you how you can save $500.

Take your hair invigorator money and buy a town lot in a growing town that supports its home paper and advertises and goes ahead, and you will find in twenty years that you will be well fixed, and a man who is well fixed don't care whether he has any hair or not.

I've seen men with long, rich, wavy hair, which fell in a glorious shower of diamonds on the collar of their overcoats, who were just as unhappy as you or I, Elisha. Hair alone cannot bring happiness. I once knew a man who was very successful, indeed, and was finally made postmaster of his town, and he had whiskers that he had to button inside his coat to keep them from brushing other people's eyes out, and he had hair to sell, and yet when there came a change of administration, and a new president who hadn't an alma mater to lay his hands to, this hairy man was almost the first to fall.

A wealth of hair is a good thing, but the head was not made solely as bed for the propagation of hair. Baldness is one of the penalties of civilization, Elisha. Barbarians are never bald. People who sleep in straw piles and eat their pastor always have all the hair they can manage. Those who go on bareheaded for generations and live on grasshoppers and acorns are never bald. Plug hats, late suppers and earnest thought are hard on hair.

I say this to comfort you, Elisha, for I am married and do not care.

What True Merit Will Do. The unprecedented sale of Bosche's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Croup, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of all these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price, 75cts. large bottles.
