ASTORIA, OREGON:
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9, 1887.
PASSED AWAY.

HENRY WARD BEECHER died at 7:30 yesterday morning. When such a man as Beecher dies the world halts for a moment to hear the news. Few men have left a deeper impress upon contemporary thought than he.

Born in Litchfield, Conn., June 24, 1813, he graduated at Amherst college, and being ordained in the Congregational ministry, took charge of a small church in Indianapolis, Indiana, removing from there in 1847 to Brooklyn, where, as pastor of "Plymouth church," he gained a name that was spoken wherever civilization found an echo.

He was probably the most original man in the American pulpit, and his oratorical powers being of the finest, his sermons, lectures and discourses attracted universal interest in their spoken and written form.

He was full of life, physical and spiritual; full of causality; with scant reverence for creed or dogma; interpreting all things natural and supernatural as he saw it; at first orthodox; then "liberal;" finally agnostic.

Ordinary religion he had none; self-denial was but an ideal quality to him; he lived to enjoy and his great brain forever teemed with the song of joyous nature.

To thousands throughout the Union he was a perpetual delight. He said so many things that were in the hearts and almost on the lips of many of his readers and hearers; he was so broad in his denunciation of narrowness; so caustic in his exhortation of hypocrisy; so grandly genial in his exposition of the charms of the spirit-intellectual; so lofty in eloquent enunciation of ennobling sentiments, that he compelled admiration from many who declined to agree with him.

In politics he stood foremost in the battle for freedom and the rights of man. In 1863, when Gladstone was congratulating Jefferson Davis on being "the founder of a new empire," when in the English shipyards were building vessels to sweep American commerce from the sea; when our "transatlantic cousins" were doing all they could to cripple the north, Beecher went to England and in a series of great addresses did as much as any one man could do to change public opinion, and thus aid the country in its struggle for an undivided Union.

There is in these higher states of mind of which I have been speaking, a remedy. When you bring yourself to the very atmosphere and into communion through your highest life with the life of Jesus, there is the remedy. Your sorrows are no longer sorrowful; your cares are no longer searching. Your burdens are no longer heavy, your cross is light and life itself goes singing with you into life eternal, from glory unto glory.

The Colville Miner was recently reduced in size, which was probably productive of some complaint by dissatisfied subscribers, to whom the editor talks as follows: "We have had a number of inquiries asking why we did not cut down the size of the subscription price accordingly. About all the reply we have to make to the interrogatories is, that as long as whisky is ten cents a glass, regardless of the size of the drink, we fail to see any reason why a fellow, who never lends his patronage to any journal, should make any noise about the size or price of a struggling country newspaper."

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer says, a White river farmer recently sold a quantity of hay to a Seattle produce firm at $10 per ton. The hay was not delivered, but remained in the farmer's barn. The other day the farmer noticed that the hay he had reserved for himself would not keep his stock until spring grass comes, and he came into town and paid the produce firm a bonus of $7 per ton to allow him to keep the hay. There were thirty tons of hay involved in the contract, and the produce dealers cleared $210.

Brace Up.
You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with headaches, you are indigestive, nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Brace up, but not with stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, which have for their basis very cheap, bad whiskey, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then leave you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alternative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of Liver and Kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at W. E. Dement & Co.'s Drug Store.
