Death of a Noted Outlaw.
SANTA FE, March 30.—It was reported here last night that Marina Lebaya, a notorious outlaw, desperado and leader of the gang who have terrorized central New Mexico for six months, had been killed while resisting arrest, near Antelope Springs, seventy miles south of this place. The report was confirmed to-day by the arrival of Joaquin Montero and Carlos Jacome, with his body. They were deputized by Sheriff Chavez, of Santa Fe county, to make the arrest, and met Lebaya on the mountain trail while on the look-out for him. When ordered to surrender the outlaw pulled a pistol and Montero and Jacome pulled theirs. The three shots sounded like one, and Montero got a bullet through his hat, but Lebaya fell dead at his feet, shot through the head.

Lebaya led the gang that murdered Colonel Charles Patter, stepson of Governor Van Randt of Rhode Island, in the Dolores mountains, in 1880, and buried the body after taking several hundred dollars from it. Four of the gang were captured by Sheriff Armitage, and taken to Albuquerque, where they were lynched. Lebaya, the fifth member, hid in the mountains, but came out and began operations again after all the witnesses were dead. He was afterward convicted of stealing and sent up for five years to the penitentiary. When he was discharged six months ago, he immediately returned to the flourishing mining country and organized a gang. They would shoot up to the towns and steal horses and rob travelers. The last outrage was the murder and robbery of Lackey and Tesier near Antelope Springs. These men owned 200,000 sheep. Lackey was killed in his house and his body was burned. Tesier was shot in the back while running away. Two of Lebaya's gang were arrested for the murder, and are now held for trial. A reward of $10,000 was offered for Lebaya. His death will break up the gang. Many people visited the Santa Fe jail to-day and viewed the body. The people of southern New Mexico are greatly pleased over the death of the outlaw and are thoroughly organized for the suppression of the rest of the band.

The Stomach Distills Acids.
These, if existent in a natural quantity, and unvisited by bile, play their part in the functions of digestion and assimilation. But the artificial acid resulting from the inability of the stomach to convert food received by it into sustenance, is the producer of flatulence and heartburn, which are the most distressing symptoms of dyspepsia. The best curative is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Far more effective is it than carbonate of soda, magnesia or other alkaline salts. These invariably weaken the stomach without producing permanent benefit. No man or woman chronically dyspeptic, and consequently nervous, can be in possession of the full measure of vigor allowed by nature. Therefore, invigorate and regulate the system, and by so doing protect it from malaria, rheumatism and other serious maladies.

Unger's Ugly Umbra.
NEW YORK, March 31.—Edward Unger, formerly of Ilwaco, who was sent to Sing Sing for life for the murder of August Bohl, is now in the hospital of the prison, a sufferer from nervous prostration. His physical strength before his trial was great, and his steadiness of nerve in court was surprising; but his stamina is all gone, and he has become a miserable, cowering wreck. On the first morning in the prison he told a keeper that he had been visited during the night by his dismembered victim, who had proceeded to reconstruct himself in the terrified prisoner's presence. Of this dream he could not be disabused. He seemed to believe it was reality. Every night it came to him, and at the end of a week he was much broken down. In the prison hospital it has been the same with him except when he is kept very soundly asleep under narcotic influence. He dreams that the mangled pieces of his friend are strewn about the room, where they lie awhile inanimately, as they did before he packed the body in the trunk and threw the head into the river. Then the fragments begin to quiver. Soon they move slowly toward each other, until they are a heap. Next they adjust themselves into a human form. But the head is missing. At length that, too, comes into the room, with its hair dripping with the water of the river in which it has lain. With its horrible smile on its face, it places itself on the shoulders of the figure, and menaces the murderer. Unger shrieks at this point and the apparition vanishes from his imagination. All efforts have failed to relieve him of these visions, and the prison physician advises his removal to the state asylum for lunatic criminals.
