

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:
TUESDAY, APRIL 5, 1887

THE increased freight on salmon from the Columbia river eastward will not tend to increase the canners' regard for the interstate commerce law, that beautiful instrument, which the Oregon legislature deemed so necessary that they telegraphed positive instructions to Senators Dolph and Mitchell to vote for it.

THE Seattle Post-Intelligencer asserts that S. W. Wall, the newspaper man who did the shooting in the Tacoma News office last week, shot at the editor of that paper because he had attacked the reputation and good name of Mrs. Wall. If this be so he did just right. The man who wouldn't defend his wife's honor is no man at all.

THE monarchs of Europe seem to believe that a lie well stuck to answers the purpose of a truth. For that reason official bulletins are issued from the various European courts stating that the rumor of a recent attempt to assassinate the czar of Russia was without foundation. The crowned heads unite in an effort to create the impression that his imperial highness, the ruler of all the Russias, is the darling object of adoration in the hearts of all his subjects, and that they would not suffer a hair of his head to be injured. Notwithstanding these repeated official proclamations from the royal courts, the czar himself is not made more comfortable, for he knows that attempts at assassination are being made and come very near being successful. But that is not the worst of it. The czar has discovered that there is a deep laid conspiracy throughout Europe to dethrone all the present rulers, and to establish constitutional government in its stead. This conspiracy is not confined to Russia alone. It is widespread throughout Europe and has a lodgment in every European nation under monarchical government. Nor is it confined to the reckless class of people. Its prime movers are of the upper and more intelligent classes of people. In Russia, as well as in some other countries, it extends to scions of royalty itself, and is more prevalent in the armies than was ever heretofore supposed. It is no wonder that Europe is so loth to go to war when there is not a single European ruler to-day who can confide in the loyalty of his own army. The fate of the late Emperor Napoleon is still fresh in the minds of Europe's rulers. They saw the imperial star of France set forever and the rise of the new republic on a foundation so stable that it promises to be perpetual. There is not a monarch in Europe to-day who, if called upon to lead his armies to battle against an invading foe, would not tremble with apprehension that the same fate which overtook Napoleon would be his, and that his kingdom would go to pieces in the same manner that the empire of France was shattered. This apprehension is Europe's best guard against war. But international peace does not wholly pacify the royal mind of Europe. The dread of insurrections and conspiracies and internal revolutions is omnipresent. There is no escaping the apprehension of an outburst of socialism and nihilism, which exists as a perpetual menace to monarchy. The crowned heads may proclaim peace, but there is no peace. They may issue bulletins asserting that the lives of the rulers are not in danger, and yet these same rulers live in hourly dread of dynamite.

tening to this vocal enchantress. A thorough artist in every sense of the word, not suddenly foisted into notoriety by capital, but gradually, step by step, climbing each rung of the ladder or fame—by close study to her adopted profession. And how does she stand to-day? We fail to know any prima donna that equals her in versatility. Well may it be said of her, "Adelaide Randall holds the keys to the gates of laughter and the portals of pathos." Grand or comic opera, "tis all the same to her; no effort, no strain. The poetry of motion, the rippling laugh, the winsome smile, the arch look, the coyish pout, the air of distress, the sorrowful appeal, the trembling tone, the doleful wail, the revergent stare, the hateful gaze, the pitying lamentation, the tearful exhortation, all go to make up and complete the thorough training of a prima donna, and as such Adelaide Randall stands out as fixed and brilliant as the northern star. A gentleman remarked in our hearing that it seemed to him as though there were a gold mine in every note she sang. Her kind, gentle disposition makes her hosts of friends wherever she goes, always buoyant and cheerful, and ever ready with a kind word to those who may accost her, whether at Cape May or Long Branch in the summer months, or her own beautiful villa near the banks of the Hudson, she is always engaged with a coterie of ladies and gentlemen who stand high in literature and music, and thus she gains the needful rest preparatory to her forthcoming traveling tour.

Heart Disease!!!
Read the hospital reports, read the mortuary reports, read the medicine publications, read the daily newspapers, and learn how wide-spread is heart disease, how difficult of detection it is to most people, how many and how sudden are deaths it causes. Then read Dr. Flint's Treatise on Heart Disease, and learn what it is, what causes it, what disenses it gives rise to, what its symptoms are, and how it may be attacked. If you find that you have heart disease, ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. FLINT'S HEART REMEDY. The treatise may be had on application to J. J. MACK & CO., Nos. 9 and 11 Front street, S. F.

The Face.
The care of the complexion has become an accomplishment that no lady of refined tastes can afford to ignore, and in leading society circles it claims as much thought as do the fashions. It is an acknowledged fact that the variations of our climate are very severe on the complexion, noticeable by a roughness and dryness of the skin, and to counteract this effect it becomes necessary to call in the aid of art. In the selection of this agent too much care cannot be exercised. It is well known to the chemist that many of the so-called "blooms," "balm," "creams," etc., contain lead and other poisonous substances, the long-continued use of which is dangerous. Wisdom's Robotine is guaranteed under a forfeiture of $1,000, to be absolutely free from poisonous substances. If you have not yet tried it, do so at once, and be one of the hundreds who pronounce it the most delightful toilet article ever produced. Wisdom's Robotine is sold at fifty cents per bottle. Sold by W. E. Dement & Co.
