Capt. J. H. D. Gray returned from Gray's harbor last Sunday. He reports considerable movement in that mills are cutting about 300 M a day.

In the court yesterday Chas. St. Clair was fined $5 for drunkenness, Chas Anderson, Jno. Dickinson, H. Clayton, John Cole, do., $5 each; Wm. Kegan, fighting, $20; Tom Kear-ney, vagrancy, jury trial, guilty, $20.

Zamloch had a very large audience last night and gave a most entertaining performance, many of his legerdemain being heartily applauded. After the performance he distributed a large number of presents to the lucky holders of After the performance prizes. He will give another per-formance at the same time and place this evening, and will doubtless have as large an audience.

The board of directors of the As toria loan and building association met last evening and elected officers as follows: President, J. P. Dickinson; vice president, C. S. Wright; secretary, A. S. AN INTERESTING LETTER

Views of an Astorian Traveling in Europe

VIENNA, March 28, 1887.

EDITOR ASTORIAN: I am fully aware that so insignificant an act as writing a letter has been the cause of many an eminent statesman's downfall, furnished material for innumerable divorce and breach of promise suits and caused more domestic trouble than all the hired girls in Christendom. Notwithstanding all this, everybody writes,

As an illustration of the dangers a newspaper correspondent is ever in. I refer to a late example: Mr. Blowitz, Paris correspondent for the Lon-don Standard, during the late war dred stove moulders were ordered alarm, wrote his paper of an union for offense and defense having been using St. Louis patterns; the work leading nations, stating that he obtained his information from one high in authority. The letter was pubstrike. So there is here the anomaly lished and, as will be remembered, of men striking when there is no caused quite a panic for a few hours complaint from either the men or the at once contradicted and proven to be false. I had acquired from reading my guide book a burning desire to see every old castle, abbey and street of the second s sire to see every old castle, abbey and cathedral in the country. I soon tired of gazing at these structures, paying a shilling to go through them and appearing surprised at their an-tiquity. political questions and parties here. Having a desire to know something more of Ireland's condition than could be obtained from reading I took a flying trip through a considerable portion of the land of agitators, including Ulster and Kerry coun ties. Ulster is the most prosperous portion of Ireland, and the only por tion where Gladstone and Parnel have received opposition of any im-portance. This is due to the fact that the land laws of Ulster, being granted at a different time from that of the rest of the country, is much better for the tenants. In fact is as take the medicines usually good as that existing in England and scribed. HAMBURG FIGS my trip

WOULD MAKE ME A HOME BULER If I had heard nothing of the country before. Official statistics show that while only a few years ago Ireland's population was over seven million, it now is only five millions, and out of the five millions remaining there are seven hundred thousand paupers who are supported by the government. This certainly indicates a terrible conditionof affairs. However, these facts do not worry the conservatives and during my stay in London I was surprised to see how bitterly many of them denounce Gladstone. They say he is not honest or truthful, is a demagogue, in his dotage, etc. But the "grand old man" pays no attention to these charges, keeps the Irish ques-tion before the people, has more influence and attracts more attentio to-day than the queen.
