The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

TUESDAY MAY 3, 1887 WRITING "ENGLISH."

IT is the little words that live. No man can have thoughts too great for small words to say. Our which we all learn first and forget receiving signatures. last, are made up of little words; short, sharp, terse and full of meaning. It always was so and always will be. Indeed in many schools of thought it is held that to be able to express one's thought in short words, to say what is to be said in good Anglo-Saxon, is one of the best tests of skill.

Here we give a good example. Below is the same thought put in three styles. First, the short, nervous, forceful Anglo-Saxon; then the diction chosen from more extensive fields of language; lastly, the high-flown pomposity of profound polysyllabic complexity which is in this case a good illustration of how not to do it.

Stung by the foe's twitting, our forefathers (bold wights!) drew nigh their trusty friends, and were heartily welcomed; taught by a former mishap, they began the fight on that spot, and showed themselves unaffrighted by threatening forebodings of woe.

Provoked by the enemies' abuse, our ancestors (brave creatures!) approached their faithful allies and were nobly received; instructed by a previous misfortune they com-menced the battle in that place and proved themselves undismayed Will you suffer with Dyspepsla and Liver Complaint? Shilloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. Sold by W. E. Dement & Co. by menacing predictions of misery.

Exacerbated by the antagonist's vituperation, our progenitors (audacious individuals!) approximated to their reliable auxiliaries and were ovated with impressment; Mrs. Rosama Watson, Mrs. Lillian Warren indoctrinated by a preliminary contretemps, they inaugurated hostilities in that locality and demonstrated themselves as unintimidated by minatory vaticinations of catastrophe.

Hon. Thomas Ewing at the annual dinner of the Ohio society in New York on the 21st ult., after paying a gallant tribute to the pioneer women of his native state, said: "In the year 1790 a lady made her way through an almost trackless wilderness to Obio on horseback carrying a small boy with her. That woman was my grandmother and that boy was my father." This is a simple record, but, says the Telegram, in the presence of the snorting locomotive drawing its long train of passenger coaches and palace cars through the region of the then almost trackless wilderness through which the lonely woman rode nearly a hundred years ago with her boy in her arms, it has all the weird attraction of romance.

THE origin of the expression "mending his fences," as used in modern politics, is attributed to John Sherman. While secretary of the United States treasury he visited his home at Mansfield, Ohio, and was followed by a host of correspondents, one of whom boldly asked the secretary what he was doing in Mansfield. It happened that on that day Sherman had contracted with a man to repair sonfe fences on his place, so he told the reporter that he had come to Mansfield to look after his fences. Thus originated an expression which has had wide use in political circles and has even found its way into the British house of parliament.

WHEN business men bave confidence in the town, are united Tone Up The System. upon every question that comes up for the best interest of the place, everyone else has confidence, and strangers who come in feel they have found a place they can call home. New and expensive residences are erected and everything works for one common good. This, says the Walla Walla Union, is the way cities are made. Portland prices. Chenamus street.

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris. Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with Abscess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an Incurable Consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Digeovery for Consumption, am now on my, third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jesse Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptien I would have died of Lung Troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at W. E. Dement & Co.'s Drug Store.
