If the interstate commerce law is in force when rail connection is made between California and Oregon, the doctrine of interstate protection will be illustrated with a vengeance. Between Portland and San Francisco there is a free waterway, a natural artery of commerce to which railroads must ad just themselves. That would determine the through rate between the two points, and it would be low, under natural conditions. But there is no waterway to Ashland, nor to any of the border towns on the line of the road, so to these the rates will be the value of the service, and they must be extended on to Portland, since if the railroad company accepts from Portland the low, or steamer rate, it must charge no more to Ashland or the border towns, nor as much. This rule the railroads cannot, without calamitous results to their income, adopt, and hence under a free trade administration the steamers and sailing vessels are to be protected at the expense of the development of the interior, since the ability to carry through would enlarge the capacity of the railroads for local development of the sore on my cheek, and the doctors pronoun it cancer. I have tried a number of physicians but without receiving any permanent benefit Among the number were one or two specialists. The medicine they applied was like fire to the sore, causing intense pain. I saw a statement in the papers telling what S. S. S. had done for others similarly afflicted. I procured some at once. Before I had used the second bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer was healing up. My general health had been bad for two or three years-I had a hacking cough and spit blood continually. I had a severe pain in my bresst. After taking six bottles of S. S. S. my cough left me and I grew stouter than I had been for several years. My cancer has healed over all but a little spot about the size of a half dime, and it is rapidly disappearing. I would advise every one with cancer to
