THE FLAGS REMAIN.

Congress Alone Can Authorize their Removal.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The following statement with regard to the president's action concerning the proposed return of battle flags was made at the White house tonight to a representative of the associated press:

When the question was proposed to the president by the adjutant-general, an important feature suggested was the return to loyal states of flags which had been captured by Confederates and retaken by our army at the time of the collapse of the rebellion. They, with such Confederate flags as had been captured from the enemy by our troops, had, it was represented, for a long time lain uncared for and neglected, packed away in boxes in the cellar of the war department, and had been removed to the attic as a better place for safe keeping. The disposition of the flags, which seemed to be answering no good purpose while there, was the main point and consideration. It was represented to the president that some flags had been returned to loyal states upon their request in individual cases, and the rest, if desired, might as well all be returned together.

The return of the Confederate flags, which were with the others in the department, was suggested, but there was not the slightest thought of interfering in any way with captured flags now held by any state. The fact, apparently received with favor by the country, that lately, in one or more cases, northern troops visiting their late antagonists of the south had returned to them flags which had been captured in battle from those whose hospitality they were receiving; the further fact that northern troops, within a short time, had been visiting southern battle fields, had spoken in the warmest terms of the kind and hospitable treatment they had received from former Confederate soldiers; and the fact, too, that soldiers from the north and south were just gathering at Washington, to meet in friendly competition at the national drill, seemed to indicate that if the Union flags were returned to the loyal states which had lost them in battle, it would not be consistent with the fraternal sentiment, which seemed to be prevalent, not to offer at the same time to the governors of the states formerly in rebellion the return of flags which had been taken from their soldiers.

The right of the department to make these returns being questioned by the president, such right was distinctly asserted and precedents alleged, and thereupon his oral assent was given to this proposed action. The matter was dismissed from his mind until comment thereon within the last day or two brought it again to his attention, when, upon personally examining the law and considering the subject more carefully, he satisfied himself that no disposition of these flags could be made without congressional action, whereupon he directed suspension of operations, by the letter made public this evening.

LIVING ON THE REPUTATION OF OTHERS.
"Take everything that I have but my good name; leave me that and I am content." So said the philosopher. So say all manufacturers of genuine articles to that horde of imitators which thrives upon the reputation of others. The good name of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER has induced many adventurers to put in the market imitations that are not only lacking in the best elements of the genuine article, but are often harmful in their effects. This is not only theft, but might well be called malpractice. Such a thing ought not to be. The public should be warned against these frauds, and, when an external remedy is needed, be sure to insist upon having ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER.

JOHN HAHN,

Rebellion Feared in Honolulu.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—News from Honolulu, brought here by steamer Australia, shows that the government there has been searching for and detaining arms, on the ground of public safety. It is claimed that the people have become exasperated at the king's action in fortifying the palace walls and taking in supplies of ammunition there, and that the American and British residents have appealed to their respective governments for protection, and asked that a man-of-war be ordered to Honolulu. It is even rumored that a revolution had begun.

J. D. Spreckels, president of the Oceanic Steamship company, and who has not been on friendly terms with the Hawaiian government, owing to business conflicts, said: "Affairs are almost in a revolutionary stage on the islands. The extravagance and mismanagement of King Kalakaua have created a feeling of great dissatisfaction among the foreign residents, and I would not be surprised at some vessel bringing in news of such a state of affairs."

The palace, he says, has been barricaded and supplied with arms and ammunition, and citizens of other countries had gone so far as to call on their home governments to send men-of-war for their protection. As instances of the extravagance of the king, Spreckels stated that $40,000 were expended on the funeral of his sister, and $80,000 in fitting out a man-of-war, a tub of a steamer which had been originally purchased for $20,000, the remaining $60,000 being expended on her equipment. In response to enquiries, Spreckels said the roads on the islands were in bad condition; that the harbor needed dredging; none of which necessary improvements were receiving attention. He said in case of a revolution a republic would probably be set up.
