The Fourth of July committee meets at C. W. Fulton's office at 8 o'clock this evening.

Valley newspaper men are talking of organizing a press association and the state press is to be invited to meet at Yaquina City on the 30th of next month. There a good many reasons why such an association should be formed and maintained, but all attempts so far have been futile.

An agreement was signed yesterday by Peter Grant and Ed. Rea to run a 200-yard foot race on the afternoon of the 18th of next month for $500 a side. Two hundred dollars forfeit money was deposited with J. F. Haloran yesterday afternoon, the other $800 to be put up before the race comes off.

The programme of the state teacher's association is received. The meeting will be at Salem on July 6, 7 and 8. The leading teachers of the state will be present. Prof. W. E. Johnson, of this city, will lecture on "County Institute Work." County Superintendent Page will deliver an address on "Health of Teachers." An excellent programme has been arranged.

Mlle. Rhea and a very excellent company gave a very pleasing representation of the strange legend of "Pygmalion and Galatea" at Ross's opera house last evening. The circumstance on which the whole play hinges is a fanciful one and of so shadowy and peculiar a nature as to demand in its exponent a high order of talent and the position of unusual histrionic gifts, demands that in this instance were fully met.

Last Thursday, the 23d, Jno. Larsen and P. F. Peterson, fishing for George & Barker, were upset at the mouth of the river and both men drowned. On Sunday afternoon the body of Peterson was found on the beach at Sand Island, and brought to the city yesterday. He was a native of Denmark and in the 30th year of his age. The funeral will be by the Columbia River Fishermen's Protective Union, at 8 o'clock this morning.

DROWNING OF C. COLVIN.

The Testimony at the Coroner's Jury.

Coroner Ross went to Westport yesterday morning to hold an inquest on the body of C. Colvin, a logger, aged 26, who was drowned off a whisky scow in the slough near there last Friday night, and his body recovered the next day.

He impaneled a jury consisting of S. M. Coffinbury, Wm. Ross, Wm. McFarland, J. Beaten, Jas. Van and Chas. Root. Chas. Eaton, who runs the scow, was the first witness. He said Colvin went to his place Friday afternoon. During the afternoon Colvin and a man named James Ruby quarreled. About 2 o'clock he refused to give Colvin any more liquor; Colvin struck at him. He took a knife and told Colvin to keep off, or he would certainly hurt him. He asked J. L. Morgan to put Colvin out. Then he took a shotgun and told Colvin and Ruby that if they didn't keep their hands off him (Eaton) he would certainly protect himself. Morgan trying to separate them about 6 o'clock Morgan told him Colvin had fallen overboard. He jumped into a skiff, watched for him to come up; when he came to the top of the water he went down again; then another man jumped over and tried to save him, but couldn't. That was the last Eaton saw of him till he was taken out of the water by Chas. Forrest the next day. After it was all over there was a cartridge in his (Eaton's) shotgun, and he couldn't get it out; so he fired it off. Morgan was on the end of the scow with Colvin when he went overboard.

J. L. Morgan was the next witness. Knew deceased for 16 years. Went to Eaton's scow at 2 p. m., Friday; he, Colvin, Graham and two others took a drink at the bar; then wrangling began; Colvin and a half-breed were both drunk; they had two fights. Colvin struck at Eaton. Eaton took a knife from under the bar and told him if he didn't get out of there he would trim him down. Then Eaton put the knife away and got a shotgun, and said he would protect himself and scow. Morgan got Colvin outside and told him he was foolish to go in and run against a shotgun. Eaton told him to keep Colvin out as he would hurt him if he got in again. He was between Colvin and the door; Colvin was trying to get in; he said: "Jake, old man, get out of the way; I can take care of myself." Then he made a spring or stagger and went off the upper end of the scow; Morgan shot "Eaton is overboard," and stood quite a while and waited for him to come up. Then two men, Eaton and a man thought to be Jim Ruby, the man that he had been fighting with, jumped into a boat, but didn't get him. Then witness left the scow.

Andrew Anderson and R. B. Graham testified substantially the same. Colvin had been at Reynolds' and had been drinking before he went to Eaton's. Eaton wanted to bet $10 that he could get a man who could whip Colvin, and Morgan wanted to bet $20 that he could find a man who could whip him. The bets were not made. He, Graham, was overcome and went to sleep. When he woke, Morgan said Colvin was overboard. Went out and saw Colvin about ten feet from the scow, apparently swimming. Heard him say: "I'll be even with the sons of — yet!" Eaton and Ruby's boat puller were in a skiff below the poles reaching for him.

Further examination and a verdict were postponed. There is considerable feeling reported in the vicinity and a suspicion of foul play. The verdict will be given on Thursday and Coroner Ross will go up the next day.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them, that is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

The English Salmon Market.

The London Grocer of June 4th says of the market in that city: It may be noted that the receipts of salmon during the month were considerably heavier than those in the previous May, and the total for the five months was not far short of that in the preceding year. The total receipts of salmon in the United Kingdom in May were 56,470 cases, making a total since January 1st, 1887, of 244,254 cases, against 202,192 cases for the previous corresponding period.

The Grocer refers as follows to the Liverpool market: Business in salmon is almost stagnant, and there will be no improvement until the holiday season has expired. If fair weather should follow, then there is every likelihood of a steadily increasing business during the summer. Grocers are not holding large stocks, and it will be fully four months before new fish can arrive. We quote—25s 6d@26s for Columbia river, and 23s 6d@24s for outside rivers.

The London Grocer's Gazette of June 4th says: "A quiet tone pervades the salmon market, but values are fully maintained, and should any strong demand set in, higher rates are inevitable. There is nothing of importance to report as to the Liverpool market since our last, for, as usual, there is never much doing during Whitsun week, but the market remains very firm at full market rates."
