Smoking in America and England.

"One of the features of American street life that strikes an Englishman on first arriving here most forcibly," said a young Londoner, whose acquaintance I made at the Palmer House an evening or two ago, "is the abundance of cigars. I was simply astounded to observe, on my arrival bere, teamsters, porters, cabmen, aye, even peddlers with hand carts, smoking eigars. In England, you know, where cigars cost just as much as they do here, a man who never smokes anything on the street but a cigar is looked upon as an epicure, and, if he is not a gentleman of landed property, is regarded as a very extravagant fellow. What do we smoke? Why, pipes, of course. I know fellows-London fellows, toowho are worth all the way from £100 to £1,000 a year, who are inveterate smokers, and who yet regard eigars with about as much reverence as you do diamonds, no doubt. The most extravagant of them smoke two cigars at 3d, or 6c, apiece per day. No; I must say that the princely extravagance of the American smoker, who, though he may be too poor to buy himself a warm overcoat when the cold winds com, will scorn to smoke a pipe on the street, floors me. In London, if a costermonger or a cabman appeared among his comrades with a lighted cigar in his mouth, he would be hooted from one end of the street to the other for endeavoring to assume the luxury his circumstances in life did not entitle him to."-Chicago Journal.

sore on my cheek, and the doctors p it cancer. I have tried a number of play but without receiving any permanent bet Among the number were one or two spe The medicine they applied was like fire to the sore, causing intense pain. I saw a statement in the papers telling what S. S. S. had done for others similarly afflicted. I procured some as once. Before I had used the second bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer was healing up. My general health had been bad for two or three years-I had a hacking cough and spit blood continually. I had a see pain in my breast. After taking six bottles of S. S. S. my cough left me and I grew sk than I had been for several years. My car has healed over all but a little spot about the size of a half dime, and it is rapidly diss ing. I would advise every one with on
