MARTIN OLSEN.

The Oregon Pacific Railroad.

CORVALLIS, July 10.—The Gazette says: Bids were opened yesterday for the building of the Oregon Pacific extension. Contractor Nelson Bennet, of the Northern Pacific, secured the contract for the construction of forty miles of the new road. It is expected that the work of construction will commence at the east bank of the Santiam river, follow the line of the permanent location to and across the crossing of the North Santiam to a point constituting a distance of thirty miles. Then starting from a point in the Cascade mountains, in the pass known as Hogg pass, and thence westward along the line of permanent location for a distance of ten miles, including such additional work as shall be designated by the general manager within thirty days from date of contract, eastward from the end of the first thirty miles.

They Lynched Hong Di.

COLUSA, Cal., July 10.—At 9:20 o'clock this morning the jury gave a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree with imprisonment for life in the case of Hong Di, the murderer of Mrs. Billiou. When the reading of the verdict was finished pistols were drawn in court, and it was only with the greatest care that Hong Di was removed to jail. An immense mob gathered about the place, and all was excitement and uproar. They finally dispersed, with the probable intention of putting an end to Hong Di's life after dark. 9 P. M.—The people are pouring into the city from all directions, all with the avowed intention of taking part in the convicted Chinaman's hanging. It is stated that the latter has been removed from jail and is now in hiding. 12:40 A. M., July 11.—Hong Di was taken from the jail and hanged by the mob.
