OPPOSITION ON THE COLUMBIA.

It seems to us that it is an easier undertaking to put an opposition line on the Columbia than the Oregonian says it is. Its plan is to build a railroad on the Washington side from navigable water below the Cascades to navigable water above The Dalles, a distance of sixty miles, at an estimated cost of $40,000 a mile, with boats above and below the road, the whole expense being lumped at $3,000,000.

If we are not at fault the stretch of river between The Dalles and the Cascades, about fifty miles is, as far as navigability is concerned, a long and deep lake, without impediment, which can be navigated by the largest kind of boats, at all seasons, save a few days in winter.

Why not utilize big ferry boats carrying trains of cars on the middle river? Is there anything to prevent using boats as large or even larger than the big ferry boat used by the Northern Pacific in crossing the Columbia at Kalama, a boat that can carry twenty-four cars at a load?

It seems to us that by the construction of a portage road around The Dalles, on the Washington side, a road that need not be over ten miles long, and another road five miles long around the Cascades, and the employment of monster ferry boats on the middle river, an opposition that would pay its owners could be put on the Columbia. Forty thousand a mile will build the road and the inclines. Fifteen miles of road would cost $600,000. We are reliably informed that the big ferry boat, Kalama, can be duplicated for less than $200,000. Two boats would be ample for the work. Another $100,000 would put boats on the upper and lower river, in addition to those which would be put on by others. By this plan $1,100,000 would put a profitable opposition line on the Columbia. Portland ought to organize the company and put up the money to carry out the scheme in ten days after this article is read in that city. When the opposition is ready Walla Walla and other interior points will find ways to reach the river with their freight.—Walla Walla Union.

Deady's Delightful Decision.

Judge Deady, of Oregon, has made away with the objectionable features of the interstate commerce law so far as they concern the Pacific Coast. The much debated long and short haul clause had no difficulties for him. The light and airy way in which he makes away with it is really a study and delight. He decides that when it provided that less might be charged for a long haul than a short one, if by reason of competition by water it was necessary so to do in order to obtain or retain or regain business, the section was made inapplicable to nearly all the conditions that exist on the Pacific Coast. The Oregon road from this city has to meet water competition; so have all the transcontinental roads. The San Francisco News-Letter says this is also true of the Southern Pacific's connections down the coast to Los Angeles and San Diego. Take away all these exemptions from the operation of the clause, and what is left of railroads that this coast is interested in? But the effect of Judge Deady's decision will reach far beyond the railroads this section of the country is directly concerned about. The Erie canal, the great lakes, the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, and the ocean route to such places as New Orleans and Galveston, will render the much dreaded clause almost as applicable to the eastern as it is the western side of the continent. It is well that it should be so. There never was any sense in the hard fast rule which the clause sought to set up. It was impossible to charge alike from all points. Differences as to grades, competition, amount of business offered, etc., should naturally and properly be reckoned with. The laws of legislative bodies have not, so far, had much success in dealing with matters that are far better left to the operations of the laws of trade. We think that all parties will welcome Judge Deady's decision as a happy escape out of what threatened to be an annoying difficulty.

The real throne of Great Britain is a chair that stands on a slightly raised dais at the south end of the house of lords in Westminster palace. It is an exact copy of the coronation chair, save that it is larger and has an iron instead of a wood framework. It is solidly gilded and is set with innumerable topazes, garnets, amethysts and smoke crystals. The seat is an upholstered cushion of scarlet velvet. The arms and back are not upholstered, but the latter bears the crest of the house of Hanover. Before the throne is a small footstool, gilded and upholstered in scarlet to match the chair.

When senator Ben Wade was a circuit judge in Ohio, one of his decisions was reversed by the supreme court of the state and the case came back to him on mandate. He disregarded the mandate and followed the first decision. "But, your honor," exclaimed the beaten counsel, "the supreme court reversed your former judgment." "Yes, so I have heard," was the reply. "I will give them a chance to get right." The decision was again reviewed, this time with Judge Wade's written opinion, and the upper court decided that Wade was right.

Some wag started the story in England that the queen would present six guineas and a silver cradle to every child born on Jubilee day. Already over 400 applicants have been made to her majesty to fulfill her promise.

Heroes and Heroines.
There are a few who endure bodily troubles without complaint. Did you ever meet among the heroes or heroines of your acquaintance—if any such there have been—with a yellowish cast of countenance and that jaundiced aspect generally, which the most unpracticed eye recognizes as the product of a disordered liver, who did not complain, and peevishly too, of the soreness of the recalcitrant organ, of pains beneath the right shoulder blade, of dyspeptic symptoms, constipation and headache? Of course you never did, and of course the individual was not using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, or he would not so have looked—so have complained. To purify the blood when contaminated with bile, and conduct the secretion into its proper channel, to re-establish regularity of the bowels, banish bilious headache and remove impediments to complete digestion, nothing can approach in efficacy this peerless alternative and tonic. Malarial complaints, always involving the liver and kidney and bladder inactivity, are remedied by it. It is a capital appetizer.

It is complained that the Missouri river water used in Omaha is fit for nothing but mud pies. Instead of drinking it the unfortunate people chew it, and even then it raises an internal sand bar that has to be kept covered with Milwaukee beer.
