AN AROUSED COMMUNITY.

The Unusual Stir Caused in Kingston, New York.
Special Correspondence Boston Globe.
The letter I recently wrote the Globe describing a remarkable occurrence which took place here has had the effect of thoroughly awakening this community. The facts, as described, were that Jerome Smith, son of Cornelius B. Smith of the State Insurance Department, after passing through an agonizing ordeal, and having been abandoned by his friends, had been most wonderfully rescued. His experience was, in its beginning at least, almost the same as that of hundreds of other men and women in every city and town. He had gone along thoughtlessly, noticing only occasional inconveniences, and had suddenly been awakened to the fact that death was staring him in the face. He had overlooked little passing troubles without realizing that they are often "the beginning of the end." He had neglected interests that concerned his very life, just as thousands of others do, simply because they come in a quiet and often unnoticed way. And it is cause for gratitude that his experience is having so good and arousing an effect on others who were drifting in the same dangerous direction.

REIGNING OF THE END.

I was in the office of the Kingston Freeman, one of the best interior papers of the State, the other day, and had a talk with W. H. Winton, its popular manager. Quite naturally the conversation drifted to Mr. Smith's case, and the stimulating effect it was having on the people. Mr. Winton said: "I can specially sympathize with Mr. Smith for I have been through a much similar experience in my own family. My wife became troubled and weakened, as so many women do, and from small symptoms and beginnings grew worse until she finally began to bleed terribly. She had been attended by physicians, some times with temporary success, usually without. We finally determined to try the same means which Mr. Smith employed so successfully, and my wife is not in her grave, but in the enjoyment of health wholly because Hunt's Remedy rescued her. This is a grand medicine and a large suffering world, too often ignorant or skeptical of its life saving, healthy giving qualities, needs it."

"It is certainly receiving wonderful endorsements," I remarked. "Do you think it merits them?"
"Every one of them. Why, when my wife began using the remedy she discovered the same medicine had been given her by a physician some time ago without her knowing the name of the medicine given at the time. I can also prove that bushel basketful of empty bottles of Hunt's Remedy were taken out of a doctor's office after his death. No one supposes for a moment that the bottles were used for desk ornaments or bric-a-brac, but the contents had undoubtedly been given to patients in small quantities at high prices. The medical profession evidently knows no better or more valuable remedy."

Mr. Cornelius B. Smith, the father of Jerome Smith, confirmed all the son had said and added: "I have not words strong enough to give Hunt's Remedy the praise it merits, and there are hundreds of others in this city who feel the same way."
Mr. Edwin H. Fassett said that the facts above given had been the "town talk" of Kingston, and his assertion was confirmed by William D. Bremner.

Messrs. Cooper and Winchell, who are popular druggists, declare that not only are all the facts above stated true, but the demand for the remedy is something remarkable. It has become a household necessity here, as it undoubtedly deserves to be everywhere.

AMUSEMENTS AT OLD OREEK.

On the up trip of the steamer from Astoria to-day, says the News of the 27th, there arrived in this city a young man, well known here, named Robert Hamin. He, in connection with a large number of men who gain a livelihood along the shore, left here a few months ago, going to Oak Point there to engage in salmon fishing during the season. As is customary at this season of the year, all along the lower river, at convenient distances, there are anchored a class of boats familiarly called whisky scows. This place, in this respect, was no exception to the rule. Near by the cannery, on a small stream called Cold creek, Pete Hansen, a middle aged Swede, kept his scow, and as an additional attraction had in his employ a number of half breeds from this city. To this place the fishermen for miles around repaired each night to barter off their fish receipts for a supply of their vile liquor, and to enjoy a whirl or two in a shundig, over which Hansen presided. Last night Hamin went there, and he and an Indian, named Jim Ruby, soon became involved in a quarrel, in which the latter came out second best. This victory had a tendency to make Hamin a little overbearing, and to such an extent did he carry on his antics that the women flew in terror from him. Proceeding to the sleeping scow in pursuit of one of the frightened frail ones, he rapped loudly for admittance, which was denied him. At this juncture Hansen appeared, armed with a 44 calibre Colt's revolver, and ordered him to desist or he would shoot. To this command Hamin paid no heed, but rather dared him to shoot, which he did in short order. One of the balls struck Hamin in the left breast, about two inches below the nipple, and ranging across and upward came out near the center of the body, indicating from its passage that it was fired from behind, and at a time when his left side was partially towards Hansen. The other ball struck him square in the muscles of the left shoulder, and as there appeared to be no outlet, Dr. Keyes, the attending physician, is of the opinion that it is lodged under the left shoulder blade. Even thus injured, Hamin showed no disposition to quit, for he made for Hansen and dealt him a violent blow under the chin that caused him to drop his weapon and flee for safety. Yesterday as the mail boat passed, the injured man was brought to the city and taken to his lodgings on C street, where a reporter of the News interviewed him. In answer to an inquiry from the scribe as to whether he intended to prosecute or not, he remarked: "What for? He sent me here, telling me to hire a doctor, and he would pay all bills, and what better do I want?"

The old sidewheel steamer Orizaba is being broken up at San Francisco. Her machinery has been removed, her houses taken off, and her hull will be converted into an immense barge for the transportation of wheat and potatoes. She is the last of the fleet of steamers that brought to California the innumerable hosts of 1849 and 1850, the others being the Pacific and the Oregon, both like the Orizaba, being exceedingly familiar to the trade of Puget sound, British Columbia, Oregon, California, Mexico and Central America. The Orizaba was not only the longest lived of the fleet, but was the freest from disaster, and promises, in her new capacity, to continue serviceable a good while longer.

A difference of four quarts of milk per day, at the low price of two cents per quart, makes for 300 days $24, which is the interest on $400 a year. This does not represent the entire difference in value, as the progeny of superior milkers will be worth many times as much to raise as will the progeny of the inferior animal. No farmer is rich enough to keep poor cows.

It is a curious fact that the only men who know just how a newspaper should be conducted are generally engaged in some other business.

Selecting Potatoes For Seed.

It is remarked that "the time to select potato seed is when digging the crop. That like produces like all admit; and it is only reasonable to infer that those hills which are the fullest of desirable potatoes are the ones to save. When the right hill is found, save every tuber that is large enough for seed. This method gives the best chance for not only keeping up but improving the quality of the crop. Breeding from the best is a much more reasonable and promising method than a random selection from the pile at sorting time. The best hills are discovered only at harvest time, and then is the only proper time they can be selected for seed."

The French mode of killing poultry, causing instant death and perfect bleeding, is accomplished by opening the beak of the fowl, and, with a sharp-pointed and narrow-bladed knife, making an incision at the back of the roof of the mouth, which will divide the vertebrae and cause instant death, after which the fowls are hung up by the legs until bled. They are then picked when warm. In this way the skin presents a natural appearance.

During the present quarter, ending October 1st, it is safe to estimate the cut on Gray's Harbor as follows: Hoquiam, 5,200,000; Weatherwax, 4,500,000; West, 2,000,000; Emery, Mack & Wood, 2,500,000; Cosmopolis, 3,000,000; Laidlaw, 1,200,000; Montesano, 500,000. Total, 10,500,000. These figures are large, but we do not consider them exaggerated. For the above shipping list we are indebted to Capt. Lawson, of the tug Traveler.—Aberdeen Herald.

A pointer for insurance men; The United States owns $150,000,000 worth of public buildings and has not a cent of insurance. Uncle Sam has a button hole; go for it.

Changes of temperature are apt to cause dangerous sickness; in the full-blooded apoplexy is to be feared. When you have a pain in the head, feel dizzy, feverish, rheumatic or sick at the stomach, take at once three to ten of BRANDRETH'S PILLS. Such slight affections are only the harbingers of disease or sudden prostration, and the thing to do is to master the trouble at once. Never let a little sickness get the better of you. Drive it out of doors immediately. Let there be no compromise, always have with you a box of BRANDRETH'S PILLS and you are prepared to fight the worst form of sickness in its incipency.

No One Needs Remain A Dyspeptic.

"I have been suffering for over two years with Dyspepsia. For the last year I could not take a drink of cold water nor eat any meat without vomiting it up. My life was a misery. I had had recommended Simmons Liver Regulator, of which I am now taking the second bottle, and the fact is that words cannot express the relief I feel. My appetite is very good, and I digest everything thoroughly. I sleep well now, and I used to be very restless. I am fleshing up fast; good strong food and Simmons Liver Regulator have done it all. I write this in hopes of benefiting some one who has suffered as I did, and would take oath to these statements if desired."
