SADLY MISTAKEN WOMEN.

The Great Cause of Female Unhappiness and Loss of Attractiveness Explained.

(Mothers' Magazine.)
The question is often asked, why are the women of to-day so delicate, so feeble? Why do they fade so quickly, lose their color, and become prematurely old? Why do they suffer such pains and endure so much silent agony? There are, doubtless, many reasons, but they are all combined in the single word—Weakness.

When we stop to calmly think of the amount of misery that is endured by the women of America at this very moment it is simply appalling. This is no idle assertion—it is the terrible truth. We will cite a case in point:

Mrs. Alexander L. Nicholas, residing at Phenix, R. I., is a lineal descendant of the gallant General, Nathaniel Greene. Blessed with a good constitution, she hardly knew what sickness or pain were until a few years ago. Her duties called her up and down stairs (that bane of woman-kind) very frequently, and she began to notice that her breath was growing shorter. This was followed by pains in the back, tired feeling, a sense of bearing down and frequent faintness. But Mrs. Nicholas had the plucky blood of her ancestor in her veins and would not give up. There came a day, however, when she was forced to do so. We give the rest in her own words. In conversing with the writer she said:

"I cannot describe how sick I was, I had sharp pains shooting through my chest; it was almost impossible to draw a single breath, and my limbs were swollen almost to bursting. I consulted three doctors, two of whom admitted that they could not cure me, while the third pronounced my case dropsey. My limbs continued to swell; the water filled my lungs, and I never for a moment thought of ever recovering. For eight months I was unable to lie down, and could only sleep in my chair."

When I was in this hopeless condition, my son, Lafayette G. Nicholas, of Providence, came to see me. Several years before he had been sick, but under the direction of Dr. George D. Wilcox, of Providence, he had recovered. He insisted that I should employ the same means he had used so successfully, and as a last resort I consented to do so. In a short time I began to grow better; the swelling decreased, and finally disappeared; I regained my breath, then my health, then my strength, and I owe my life to-day to that grand medicine, Hunt's Remedy, which alone was able to save me. This was the medicine which, administered by Dr. Wilcox, restored my son and rescued me from the grave. I know it is pure, simple and good, and I believe it is the only remedy that will certainly regulate and cure the many troubles of women and restore them to health, beauty and attractiveness.

"I have thought a great deal about the health of women since I regained my health, and I wish I had the power to induce those who are suffering, and so many are to-day, to use the means I so successfully employed. If women were well and strong it would be a grand thing for the nation, and save untold suffering which is now being endured so patiently. The trouble is, many women do not know what ails them. They take cold and have unpleasant symptoms, but think that they will soon pass away but they do not. These are followed by more serious troubles, annoying, weakening and life-destroying, but still they take no steps to check them. How can women be so blind? Do they not know that such things are the beginning of the end unless taken in time?"

The experience of Mrs. Nicholas, who is now in her eighty-fifth year, should be a warning to all who read her earnest words not to delay, but to use the best of all known means for preserving or restoring health before it is too late.

INDIAN UPRISING FEARED.

Danger Apprehended on the Klamath River.

We learn from the Record that quite an excitement was created among the settlers along the Klamath last week by threats and the warlike attitude of the Indians residing on said river, in some instances having scared women who were unprotected from their homes. John Bombhoff has secured the right from the government to establish a fishery on the Klamath river, with a proviso that the Indians were to do the fishing and he (Bombhoff) to pay them a stipulated price for the fish. The Indians signed, or made their mark to the agreement, and all seemed well pleased with the arrangement. Mr. Bombhoff built fishing boats, suitable houses, etc., near the mouth of the river and procured all the necessary equipments to commence fishing as soon as the run began. The Klamath river runs through the so called Klamath Indian reservation, but the river has been declared by our legislature to be a navigable stream, and it is claimed that anyone has a right to use the stream and fish therein so that he does not trespass upon the land.

Taking this view of the matter, R. D. Hume—who has a fishery at Ellensburg, at the mouth of Rogue river—has built and taken down and up the river fishing boats, a large flatboat fitted up as a hotel, store, sleeping rooms, etc., which fleet is anchored in the center of the river, where he proposes to fish, having nothing to do whatever with the shore of the so called reservation. Mr. Hume has built a tug, the Thistle, with which he proposes to transport the fish caught in the Klamath river to his cannery at Ellensburg, there to be canned. Now the Indians, who are all, so far as we can learn, in favor of the Bombhoff fishery—as they are to receive good pay for catching fish for him—look upon Mr. Hume as an opposition company and are dissatisfied, and have made threats of killing his men if they attempt to fish. Anyone who is familiar with the Indian character knows that it makes but little difference who is killed, whether it is the man who does the imaginary wrong or his friend, hence the fear of the settlers along the river. A large quantity of ammunition has been taken down to the Klamath within the last week for the settlers, and the Indians have also been trying to procure cartridges, which looks as though there were grounds for fear. Mr. Hume's crew have also prepared themselves for an emergency, and we are told they are satisfied that they can protect themselves.

There are but very few Indians along the lower Klamath, but they say that if trouble commences the Indians from "away up" will join them. About all they can do will be to pick off men from an ambush and then retreat to their hiding places in the mountains, but by so doing they can keep up a warfare for a long time.—Humboldt Times, July 21.

Young Scandinavian engineers from the polytechnic schools of Europe are crowding young American engineers aside in many quarters of the west. There are thirty of the former engaged in the railroad shops at St. Paul and Minneapolis, and many important city improvements have been completed under their supervision.

Some of the Mexican newspapers are grumbling at what they call "Yankee aggression." They want to have the country and its business all to themselves, and seem to be a little bit jealous of the wide-awake American who goes down there and stirs things up generally.

A project is on foot in New Mexico for the admission of that territory as a state in the union. The idea is to take in a part of Texas, with the latter's consent.

Mutiny at Sea.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—The Chilean bark Euella, Captain Giannoni, arrived here this morning sixty-seven days out from Pisagua, Chili. The captain reports a serious mutiny lasting nearly the whole trip. The crew was composed of Chilians, Spaniards and negroes, and led on by the boatswain, persisted in refusing to obey the orders of the captain and the mates. The boatswain was put in irons when about ten days out, but was released by the crew. He was again put in irons a few days ago, but escaped, and the crew armed themselves with knives and prepared to make an attack on the captain's quarters. The captain took two revolvers and a blunderbuss, went on deck alone and defied the men. The sailors declared the captain should never reach port alive, but by prompt action and great personal courage he succeeded in keeping the men under control until the arrival here. The vessel is now in quarantine and the sailors are now quiet. The government has no jurisdiction in the case.

Seattle Reaching for Wheat Shipments.

SEATTLE, July 23.—By the new freight schedule of the Northern Pacific railroad, shippers of wheat from eastern Washington are obliged to pay fifty cents more to Seattle than to Tacoma. In order to meet this discrimination and enable the shippers to lay down their wheat as cheaply at Seattle as at Tacoma, the citizens of Seattle are raising a fund to cover the excess of railroad charge, with the conviction that if the two cities are placed on an equality the bulk of this year's crop will be handled at Seattle.
