ASTORIA, OREGON:
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1887
THE CONVENTION.

To-day delegates from various communities, composing the Columbia waterway convention, will meet in the interests of an open river. An open river is what is needed, and it is to further it as much as possible that the convention is held. There are men of experience from various parts of the state and territory to be heard from in that convention, and whatever suggestions are made or action adopted, will be of a practical nature. Astoria, at the gateway of our great river, welcomes the visitors, and hopes that their stay will be a matter of personal pleasure and mutual benefit.

HENRY WATTERSON, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, devotes two columns to an outline of the future policy of the Democratic party. The substance of it all is, that the renomination of Mr. Cleveland is a foregone conclusion, and that in all human probability Mr. Blaine will be pitted against him. There will then be but one live issue, and that is the tariff.

The gross increase of the receipts of thirteen of the largest postoffices in this country for the last quarter over the same quarter of last year was $351,138. At this rate the gross receipts of the entire service for the last quarter of the fiscal year just closed will be about $12,000,000.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial thinks he has discovered a plot on the part of the Standard Oil company to capture the New York delegation for the president and then run him out of the convention in order to nominate secretary Whitney for president.

During the past six months 261 saw and planing mills have been started in the south, which will work up 500,000,000 feet of lumber. The increase is going on. Lumbermen think too rapid progress is being made. Lumber is a trifle higher all around in the west.

A PENNSYLVANIA nail maker, who turns out 1,000 kegs a week, expects to remove to Toledo, where he can save $1.50 per ton on ore, making a saving on fuel by using natural gas and save nine cents per keg freight to his market.

BUILDERS of late years have been giving up lath and plastered ceilings in large buildings, as well as light floor timbers, for heavy timbers and thick, closely laid 3-inch floors. The decreased insurance makes it pay.

ORDINANCE NO. 959.
An Ordinance Regulating the Storage of Combustible Materials Within the City of Astoria.

The city of Astoria does ordain as follows:
Section 1. No person or persons shall keep or offer for sale any gunpowder, giant powder, gun cotton or any other explosive substance having an explosive power equal to ordinary gunpowder, in quantities greater than fifty pounds, in any one place, in the city of Astoria, and which shall be kept in an air-tight metallic vessel, marked with the name of the substance, in plain Roman letters not less than three inches in height, and in proportionate width, and such vessel shall be kept at all times conspicuously in view near the entrance of the premises where kept and convenient for removal therefrom.

Sec. 2. No steamship, vessel or other water craft shall enter the city of Astoria while having on board any blasting powder, gunpowder, dynamite, or other explosive compounds used for blasting purposes; provided, that this section shall not apply to steamships, vessels, or other water craft passing up or down the Columbia river to points outside of the city limits, and no vessel shall not be anchored or moored within said city, or remain within said city longer than is actually necessary in transit.

Sec. 3. No person shall convey or assist in conveying in any vehicle any gunpowder, unless the same shall be securely packed in close packages, nor unless such packages shall be securely covered while in the vehicle.
Sec. 4. No person or persons, firm or corporation shall keep, store or permit to be stored in their or its premises, any lacquer in quantities of more than one hundred gallons, in any store, warehouse, cannery or other place within the corporate limits of the city of Astoria, and such lacquer shall be enclosed in a metallic tank, with an air-tight cap and faucet, and shall be one hundred feet away from all fire, soldering pots, solder and boiler furnaces, stoves and all other receptacles for fire, and the contents of such tank shall be marked with the name of the same in plain Roman letters at least three inches in height and of proportionate width.

Sec. 5. No person, persons, firm or corporation shall store, permit the storage of, or keep turpentine, varnish, crude petroleum or any refined or reformed product of petroleum or any hydro-carbon liquid emitting an inflammable vapor, in any building or place, in larger quantities than one hundred gallons within the city of Astoria, within the following limits: North of the south side of Pine street; north of the south side of Wall street, or north of the south side of Court street east of the west line of Main street, or north of the south side of Astor street between the west side of Main street and the west side of Washington streets, and outside of said limits such substances shall not be kept or stored nearer than two hundred feet to any other building.

Sec. 6. No person shall use or cause to be used any house for the purpose of curing bacon, ham, sausages or meats of any kind within the corporate limits of the city of Astoria.
Sec. 7. No water craft shall be permitted to remain at the wharf longer than twelve hours after receiving gunpowder, blasting powder or other explosives on board, and all gunpowder, blasting powder, dynamite or other explosive substances deposited on the wharf for shipment shall be immediately passed on board the vessel which is to receive the same.

Sec. 8. The chief engineer of the fire department is required to see that the provisions of this ordinance are enforced, and to make complaint to the police court for violations thereof.

Sec. 9. A violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine of not less than five or more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the city jail not less than three nor more than twenty days, or both at the discretion of the court, and the continuance or maintaining of such violation shall be deemed a new offense for each day on which the same is so continued or maintained, and shall be punished accordingly.

Passed the common council July 26, 1887.
Approved August 1, 1887.
J. C. TRULLINGER, Mayor.

A COMPLIMENTARY SERENADE
Last Evening to the Governors of Oregon and Washington.

Gov. Sylvester Penoyer, of Oregon, and Gov. Eugene Semple, of Washington, are in the city, the guests of Judge C. H. Page. These gentlemen are here to attend the sessions of the Columbia Waterway convention and evince by their action the warm personal interest they feel in the welfare of their sister commonwealths.

Last evening Co. "H." O. N. G., preceded by the Western Amateur band, marched to the residence of Judge Page, where the governors were the recipients of a handsome serenade.

After sundry melodies, Gov. Penoyer was introduced by Judge Page. The governor said that he thanked the citizens of Astoria for this kindly greeting of welcome. It was unexpected, and yet it would not have been had he remembered the courtesy of the Astorians. During his canvas last year, although well received elsewhere, he remembered especially the warm greeting he received in this goodly city. He said he now visited the town for two purposes: one was to attend the waterway convention to be held to-morrow and the other was to consult with the president of the fish commission. There was no subject of greater interest to Astoria than the opening up of the Columbia river to free navigation. When that should be effected Astoria would then begin to develop her future greatness as a commercial city. The fishing interest was also an important one to Astoria. Last winter a bill passed the legislature providing for a fish commission to the president of which was delegated the prerogative that under the constitution belongs to the executive. He was enjoined to see that the laws relating to the propagation and protection of salmon were enforced. Hoping that a person whose sole business it was to attend to the matter, and was paid well for it, would attend well to it, he signed the bill. The legislature elected the commission, and he supposed that it would enforce the law. But he now feared that he had trusted to a broken reed. He last week addressed a letter to the president of the commission, calling his attention to the law and to his sworn duty under it. He now came here only to find that he was up in Clackamas county supervising an artificial hatchery when he should be here enforcing the law and aiding the hatchery created by the Almighty, by allowing the salmon during the month of August to ascend the river.

He found here an unfortunate state of affairs. The president of the commission, so far as he could learn, had given no notice that he would enforce the law. Some canneries had obeyed the law, while others were disobeying it. It was most unjust and unfair to allow those who break the law to derive a profit which those who obey the law are deprived of. He said that he should make a hunt for the missing president of the fish commission and instruct him to give notice that for all fishing done after next Saturday, the canneries would be prosecuted according to law. He hoped, however, all the canneries would cheerfully comply with the law. Both representatives of the canning and fishing interests had implored him to enforce the law. The governor thanked Co. "H." O. N. G., for the honor of their visit and complimented them on their soldierly bearing. He said that a well-regulated militia is sometimes a needed safeguard of a free people. Great interest was being manifested by the young men throughout the state in the organization of a militia, and he hoped, when the state reorganization was held next year, that the Astoria company would stand abreast the best of them.

Gov. Semple, after being introduced, said, in substance, that he was pleased at the welcome that was extended to him. He has many warm friends in Astoria to greet whom was always a pleasure to him. He first visited Astoria twenty-five years ago when a young man after about a month's trip on the water. He with some other young men, came ashore here and finding the town quite dull they proceeded to make it lively, and he was glad to say that it had been lively ever since.

After an interchange of congratulations, etc., the company returned to the armory, the band playing lively tunes along the route.
