WOMEN RULING A CITY.
I have just returned from a trip on the Santa Fe road, west. Syracuse, sixteen miles from the Colorado line, was the Mecca of my pilgrimage, because here, April 4th, they elected a city council of women, and I was beat on seeing the town that had made this innovation, and the women who were filling the council chairs. I wanted to ask the people how it came about and how it was working. The first of these ladies introduced to me was Mrs. E. B. Barbour, a fair-faced, gentle-mannered woman, with an unmistakable air of business about her. I found this accounted for by the fact that she is a business woman. Her husband does a large and complicated business. The books are entirely in her charge. Mrs. H. D. Nott is a business woman, too. She is chairman of the Syracuse aldermanic force. Mrs. M. M. Riggles is a quiet little woman, a careful and conscientious mother and housewife. She has a way of making up her mind for herself, and standing firmly by her convictions. She has a reputation among Syracuse male citizens for being a person of excellent judgment. Mrs. S. N. Coe is a woman of excellent ability, with enough conservatism to keep her enthusiasm in proper check. Mrs. L. M. Swartwood, the fifth member I did not see, although I made an effort to do so. She was confined to her home by sickness; but I am told that she is a woman of ability, and by no means behind her sisters in any requisite for her position. My short acquaintance with these women convinced me that sitting in council chairs and wrestling with questions of city policy have had no effect to unsex them—whatever that may be—for these were as womanly women as I have ever seen. I looked in vain for masculine tendencies. There was not a hint of it in dress or manner. Meeting them on the streets or in the cars, you would never guess that they were city officials. From conversation with them I learned that they were exceedingly anxious to make their administration a just one—one that would advance the best interests of the city; and when they spoke of advancing the interests of their city they betrayed the fact that they had in mind the city's moral as well as temporal prosperity. It is said of them that they are doing better work than the body of men who composed the previous council. Their townspeople say they were elected because "somebody proposed it and everybody was pleased with the idea;" because "it was believed they would make excellent officers;" because "the temperate people thought women wouldn't be afraid to enforce the prohibitory law;" because "we wanted to advertise our town"—this fact from a member of a real estate firm; because "women would take time to do the work well and thoughtfully." Altogether, I was pleased with my first sight of a woman council. This is the only one in the United States.—Salina, Kan., Letter to Memphis Appeal.

In Love With His Wife.
One of the president's Buffalo friends returned from the White House the other evening. He said that he had been having "a good time with Grover," and he looked it. He leaned up against one of the pillars at Willard's and remarked casually to the crowd: "Yes, he is the same old Grover and no mistake. Last year when I was here I kinder made up my mind that Grover was getting stuck up, but I guess I was mistaken. He likes to talk over old times, but you can't ring in any politics on him. He draws the line on politics, but otherwise he is just as friendly as ever. His wife was away when I saw him, but he isn't troubled much for lack of company, I can tell you. I wonder if Grover has changed his habits since he got married. I didn't see any cheese over to the White House. Grover used to be a holy terror for cheese. When he was in Buffalo he would go into a beer saloon, call for a glass and then begin on the cheese and crackers. Great Scott! what an appetite he did have in those days! At first the German proprietor was inclined to be rather facetious in his remarks, but it turned out to be a good thing for the place, for men got in the habit of dropping in just to see Grover eat, and it drew custom. If his wife had induced him to stop eating cheese and crackers he is in love with her sure enough.—Boston Traveler Washington Letter.

Mrs. Brown—"You told me that if I left my table-cloth out all last night the fruit stains would disappear. Well, I put it out last night." Mrs. Jones—"Of course, the stains were gone in the morning?" Mrs. Brown—"Yes; so was the table-cloth."—Harper's Bazar.
