

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON, FRIDAY, AUGUST 12, 1887

Mistletoe Social club at Pythian hall to-night.

On the Columbia yesterday went 762 cases salmon.

The Kacorie is again running on the Westport route.

Concomly street, between Main and Benton, is getting a coating of gravel.

Large numbers of returning fishermen have left on the last two California steamers.

Tuesday's Presbyterian Sunday school picnic will be to Kuappa and not to the Klaskanine.

Overland salmon shipments still continue in large quantities, averaging ten car loads daily.

The Court street and Cedar street schoolhouses have received new coats of paint, and look fine.

There have been few mornings and evenings this season in which a fire did not feel comfortable.

The boys that saved their dimes for the circus will, apparently, have no chance to spend them this year.

An order for $163.65, payable to Wm. Korin, was picked up on the street yesterday; it can be had on application at the New York Novelty Store.

Yesterday's Oregonian has a well-written article on the salmon industry of the Columbia river, by Alfred Holman. It is conservative in tone and practical in discussion from an impartial point of view.

The ladies of the Episcopal church will give their basket picnic to-day. The steamer Electric will leave Wilson and Fisher's wharf for the Klaskanine at 9:30 A. M., sharp. Tickets 50 cents; children 25 cents. The party will return at 5 P. M.

Geo. T. Myers, tells the Seattle Press that this was the first year since he had been on the sound in which the haddo salmon had not put in an appearance, and whenever they failed, the run of silver salmon was always light, and he thought that the business would not be very heavy this year.

Captain Thomas Wilson, of the O. R. & N. steamer North Pacific, dropped dead on the deck of that vessel last Wednesday morning from apoplexy, while on the way to Port Townsend. Captain Wilson was aged about 46, had been in the O. R. & N. employ for many years, and was one of the most popular men in the service.

The August salmon caught on the Washington territory side are said to be of full size and flavor. The Oregon canneries have shut down and are observing the law. If the California papers that have said so much about Oregon canneries "defying the law" will please make a note of this fact they will do as they would be done by.

There are now six prisoners in the county jail, four awaiting the action of the grand jury, and two doing time. Every attention is paid these guests, fresh flowers are daily brought to adorn their cells, food is specially cooked for them, and carried to their rooms, they are supplied with newspapers, the most menial offices are performed for them, and sheriff Ross has just bought two pairs of boots for them of a peculiar and satisfactory pattern and extraordinary solidity of construction.

Sheriff Ross is in receipt of four "Oregon boots," in the shape of patent shackles, each weighing fifteen pounds, and appropriately arranged to fasten on the limbs of prisoners in the county dungeon. They are ornamental as well as useful, being nickel-plated and polished like a mirror. They are calculated to discourage attempts at breaking jail and look as though they would be a success. It is certainly more economical to buy them than to repair the jail to an extent sufficient to prevent inmates from breaking out, something these shackles will surely do.

The state board of education at Salem has finished a canvas of the vote of the superintendents of the different counties of the state, ordered to be taken by the last legislature, for the purpose of choosing primary text books on hygiene and philosophy to be used in the public schools after August 9, 1887. Out of twenty-nine votes twenty-six were for the Smith series, published by Irison, Balesman, Taylor & Co., of New York. These are the books recommended at the late session of the department of superintendents of the State Teachers' association.

In case it rains the excursion to Kama's farm on the Electric will be postponed to some future day. All holding tickets will be duly notified.

The season for them is at hand; and we have just received a large consignment of New Orleans Molasses, which we will sell by the case or can at very low figures. D. L. Beck & Sons.

You cannot blame anybody but yourself if you don't go in time to secure some of the bargains at the Crystal Palace.

Griffin & Reed will sell you goods as low as the lowest. It is to your interest to patronize them.

PRESENTING THE MEDALS.

Messrs. Smith and Barnstead went to Fort Canby yesterday and on behalf of the C. R. F. P. U. presented to the members of the life crew the handsome testimonials that had been procured in recognition of their brave services in rescuing life.

H. A. Smith said: Most esteemed friends and comrades—On behalf of the C. R. F. P. U. we have been selected to in a manner show you our appreciation of the meritorious and courageous services you have rendered us during the past season, wherein you have repeatedly risked your lives to succor many of our brothers and comrades in distress.

We cannot in words express the gratitude we feel toward you, one and all, and can only again repeat the expression "thank you," which we can assure you is from the bottom of our hearts. As a slight token of respect and to show our appreciation of your services, we, as the representatives of the C. R. F. P. U., hereby beg of you to accept these mementos which you have so well earned and which you so well deserve to guide your future heroic conduct.

To you, Captain Walker, allow us to present you with these field and marine glasses, knowing that you will make good use of them, and trusting that they may be of service to you.

And to you, friends Dunlap, Fry, Brown, Marden, Church, Stuart, Erp, allow us to present each of you with a gold medal, which you will find suitably and appropriately engraved, and which, we have no doubt, you will always wear with honor; and now, comrades, may you always in the future be as willing and ready to assist your fellow men in distress, as you have ever been in the past, and in the name of the C. R. F. P. U. we again thank you.

The recipients were greatly pleased and prominently pinning the gold medals on their coats, returned hearty thanks to the givers for the splendid recognition of their services.

Complimentary Resolutions.

ASTORIA, Or., Aug. 10, 1887.

WHEREAS, The occupation of a fisherman on the Columbia river is fraught with constant peril and hardship, the loss of property and life of frequent occurrence, and men striving for an honest livelihood, buffeted by wind and wave and wrestling with the tempest, find untimely graves, and

WHEREAS, The members of the crew of the United States Life Saving Station at Fort Canby, W. T., composed of Captain J. Walker, C. D. Stuart, J. N. Erp, A. C. Brown, J. Q. Church, J. W. Dunlap, F. C. Marden and W. H. Fry, rendered valuable assistance in saving property and rescuing lives of members of the C. R. F. P. U. and

WHEREAS, Said acts were generously performed, said crew often imperiling their own lives, and recognizing that rescuing life is among the noblest deeds of man, therefore,

Resolved, That we, the members of the Columbia River Fishermen's Protective Union, shall ever feel grateful for the brave deeds of said crew.

Resolved, That we appreciate the able and efficient manner in which Major Blakely has organized said crew, and heartily commend his selection of John Walker as captain of the crew.

Resolved, That we account the deeds of said crew brave, generous and courageous, and said crew generous, courageous and brave men.

Resolved, That the members of Columbia River Fishermen's Protective Union tender this testimonial and humble mementos herewith presented as tokens of gratitude, esteem and everlasting friendship.

Resolved, That the secretary present a copy of these resolutions to each of the members of said crew, and a copy to Major Blakely.

By order of the executive board C. R. F. P. Union.

A. SNAFIELD, Pres't, A. SUTTON, Sec'y, H. A. SMITH, Treas.

In the Justice Court.

The arrival of an American ship at this port generally inspires a suit in the justice court. This time it is on complaint of a sailor named Richardson, who had captain Glover and mate Hodgkin, of the Merom arrested yesterday morning.

His story is that he went aboard and asked the captain when and where he would be paid off. The captain told him to remove from his mouth the cigar he was smoking, which he refused to do, alleging that the voyage being ended and he having gone ashore he was no longer in the employ of the vessel or the captain and could smoke or not, just as he felt like it. This difference of opinion led to a clinch and fall in which Richardson had the advantage, and the mate came to his captain's aid and made it very tropical for Richardson.

The case comes up at 3:30 this afternoon.

MURDER ON THE KLASKANINE.

One Man Killed: A Woman Dangerously Wounded.

The story of the shooting down the Columbia river opposite Oak Point last Saturday night sounds like criminal news from Texas and Arizona. A logging camp on the Klaskanine, not far from Bradbury's Landing, was the scene of the bloody occurrence. About 6 o'clock in the evening, George Upton entered the dwelling of Wm. C. Sattler and announced that he intended to kill the entire household and then kill himself. Then he began shooting. There were present Wm. De Journette and wife, and Sattler's wife, Mrs. Sattler, but he got a divorce from her, and married De Journette. The second husband and his spouse were living with Sattler. Both men worked in a shingle mill. Sattler is 53 years old, and De Journette about 56. The family were just about to seat themselves at the supper table when Upton came in and spoiled the meal.

No sooner had he uttered his threat than he began shooting with a .38-calibre revolver. The first shot struck De Journette in the side, and the staggered back. The next shot was leveled at Sattler, the bullet entering his right cheek and glancing downward. The third shot struck Sattler in the right shoulder, shattering the joint and passing out of the back. Two more shots were then aimed, with good effect, at De Journette, the last one striking him near the temple and producing death almost instantly. This emptied the revolver, Upton, who had brought a supply of ammunition, then refilled his weapon with the intention of killing Mrs. De Journette, but when he pulled the trigger the hammer did not work, the spring evidently having been broken with the last shot. He beat the woman over the head with the revolver, threw her to the floor and kicked her until she was covered with bruises from head to foot. He then left the house and made his escape in a small boat. It is supposed that he pulled to his brother's place, about twenty miles down the river. He failed to fulfill his promise to make a clean job of it by killing himself.

Sattler is now at St. Vincent's hospital, having been brought here from St. Helens. He was so close to Upton at the time of the shooting that the right side of his face is thickly specked with powder. He cannot locate the bullet in his neck, and the physicians were unable to find it by probing. The wound in his shoulder is very dangerous, and the chances are about even that he will die of blood poisoning. His condition last night was a slight improvement over the night before. He is entirely unconscious and said to an Oregonian reporter that Upton's motive for the deed was revenge. Upton wanted Mrs. De Journette to desert her husband and come to live with him, which she declined to do, and her husband upheld her in this action.

So far as learned no effort has been made to apprehend the murderer. His record is bad. He belongs to eastern Oregon, and his "folks" now reside somewhere in that section of the state. He has frequently been in jail, but never in the penitentiary. About thirteen years ago he and his brother stole a number of horses from their stepfather and sold them in Portland. They then made tracks for Astoria, followed by policeman Branman, who captured and brought them back. On this charge they escaped punishment because their relatives were disinclined to prosecute. Some two months ago Geo. Upton came to Portland and went to live with the De Journette family, who temporarily resided here. A few days subsequently he was arrested for assault with a dangerous weapon on Mr. De Journette, jealousy of some underclothing and lewd cohabitation with a daughter, Annie De Journette. He was held to answer before the grand jury, which body ignored the bills, and Upton was discharged from custody. When arrested that time he said he came from down the river, where he intended returning. He is somewhere about 40 years of age, dark moustache, weighs about 160 pounds, square built, and features, large eyes and a somewhat sallow complexion. He is a ready talker and easy to engage in conversation.—Oregonian, 11.

Don't Experiment.

You cannot afford to waste time in experimenting when you are in danger. Consumption always seems at first, only a cold. Do not permit any dealer to impose upon you with some cheap imitation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, but be sure you get the genuine. Because he can make more profit he may tell you he has something just as good, or just the same. Don't be deceived, but insist upon getting Dr. King's New Discovery, which is guaranteed to give relief in all Throat, Lung and Chest affection.

SALMON IN THE HUDSON.

From a Letter of Fish Commissioner Mather.

I made the first plant of about 200,000 in the spring of 1883 by order of Professor S. F. Baird, United States commissioner of fish and fisheries, and have kept it up every year since. Last year, just three years after the first planting, we had accounts of about fifty salmon being taken, mainly below the Troy dam, and a few others were taken at different points down the river, even as low as Gravesend bay. There is little doubt that many were captured which never were reported to us. This year the number has been much greater, but we have not the reports all in. Many gentlemen interested in angling are enthusiastic over the fact that there are salmon in the Hudson to-day. I have seen Hudson river salmon in Fulton market and tried hard to realize that those ten or twelve pounders were some of the little "babies" we planted three or four years ago. The fish culturist is not entirely satisfied with his work unless he can get substantial evidence of success, and also knows that his labors are appreciated by others. That the Hudson can be made a salmon river has been proved, and it now only needs a proper system of fishways, which will allow fish to pass up to their spawning beds, in order that we may in the future be able to get our supply of eggs from fish in this river, instead of being dependent upon the salmon of the Penobscot for our stock.

In Brief, And to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

A Sound Legal Opinion.

E. Bainbridge Munday Esq., County Atty., Clay Co., Tex. says: "Have used Electric Bitters with most happy results. My brother also was cured with Malarial Fever and Jaundice, but was cured by timely use of this medicine. Am satisfied Electric Bitters saved his life."

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., adds a like testimony, saying: "He positively believes he would have died, had it not been for Electric Bitters. This great remedy will ward off, as well as cure all Malarial Diseases, and for all Kidney, Liver and Stomach Disorders stands unequalled. Price 50c. and $1. at W. E. Dement & Co's."
