Our Lumber Market.

The mills of Oregon and Washington sell their product in four different markets. The local demand is large, a still larger supply goes to California, there is a considerable foreign trade to South America, Australia, the Sandwich islands and China, and a new trade has just sprung up in the western states. It is now less than three years since the first carload of Oregon lumber was shipped east as an experiment, and less than two years since the business was begun practically. Our timber finds favor in the markets wherever introduced, and readily brings better prices than the northern pine. It is a fact well known that the timber supply in Michigan and other northern states is nearly exhausted, and it is believed that the western states must soon draw their main supply from the Pacific coast. If this should come about (and it now seems almost a certainty) the timber interest at and about Astoria must grow to be of prodigious value. Railroads would soon put it on an even keel with Portland, and even now it is in a position to compete for eastern business. The product of the Oak Point mill, which is in the Astoria district, now goes east, and the proprietor, who also owns and operates a mill at Portland, finds quite as much profit in his Oak Point mill as in his Portland mill. In two years the eastern lumber business has developed from an experimental state to the monthly shipment of 5,000,000 feet, and it gives promise of multiplying many times in the next few years.

A great business at this time is the coastwise and foreign trade. Rapidly as production grows, the demand grows with it. Within the past four years thirty-five merchant mills have been built between the California line and British Columbia, making altogether nearly one hundred mills. Not one of these is idle, and some of them are running day and night. Four-fifths of their whole product goes by sea, and, be it remembered, Astoria is better situated for the ocean business than any port on the whole Pacific coast. Ships sailing from Puget sound have a longer voyage than ships sailing from Astoria. While those points equally near with Astoria to San Francisco, cannot make use of large ships, but must employ schooners, which are very much more expensive.

There is no more favorable situation for ship building and other industries using large quantities of timber than Astoria. Besides the timber supply, there is the advantage of tidal variation, with proximity to general machine shops, etc. Astoria is certainly destined to be not only a very important seat of lumber manufacture, but as well of general manufacture in the lines which make a large use of wood.—"*A. TRIED IN THE CRUCIBLE.

TRADE S.S.S.

About twenty years ago I discovered a little sore on my cheek, and the doctors pronounced it cancer. I have tried a number of physicians, but without receiving any permanent benefit. Among the number were one or two specialists. The medicine they applied was like fire to the sore, causing intense pain. I saw a statement in the papers telling what S. S. S. had done for others similarly afflicted. I procured some at once. Before I had used the second bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer was healing up. My general health had been bad for two or three years—I had a hacking cough and spit blood continually. I had a severe pain in my breast. After taking six bottles of S. S. S. my cough left me and I grew stouter than I had been for several years. My cancer has healed over all but a little spot about the size of a half dime, and it is rapidly disappearing. I would advise every one with cancer to give S. S. S. a fair trial.
