AN AROUSED COMMUNITY.

The Unusual Stir Caused in Kingston, New York.

Special Correspondence Boston Globe.
The letter I recently wrote the Globe describing a remarkable occurrence which took place here has had the effect of thoroughly awakening this community. The facts, as described, were that Jere Smith, son of Corneus B. Smith of the State Insurance Department, after passing through an agonizing ordeal, and having been abandoned by his friends, had been most wonderfully rescued. His experience was, in its beginning at least, almost the same as that of hundreds of other men and women in every city and town. He had gone along thoughtlessly, noticing only occasional inconveniences, and had suddenly been awakened to the fact that death was staring him in the face. He had overlooked little passing troubles without realizing that they are often "the beginning of the end." He had neglected interests that concerned his very life, just as thousands of others do, simply because they come in a quiet and often unnoticed way. And it is cause for gratitude that his experience is having so good and arousing an effect on others who were drifting in the same dangerous direction.

I was in the office of the Kingston Freeman, one of the best interior papers of the State, the other day, and had a talk with W. H. Winton, its popular manager. Quite naturally the conversation drifted to Mr. Smith's case, and the stimulating effect it was having on the people. Mr. Winton said: "I can specially sympathize with Mr. Smith for I have been through a much similar experience in my own family. My wife became troubled and weakened, as so many women do, and from small symptoms and beginnings grew worse until she finally began to sicken terribly. She had been attended by physicians, sometimes with temporary success, usually without. We finally determined to try the same means which Mr. Smith employed so successfully, and my wife is not in her grave, but in the enjoyment of health wholly because Hunt's Remedy rescued her. This is a grand medicine and a large suffering world, too often ignorant or skeptical of its life saving, healthy giving qualities, needs it."

"It is certainly receiving wonderful endorsements" I remarked. "Do you think it merits them?"
"Every one of them. Why, when my wife began using the remedy she discovered the same medicine had been given her by a physician some time ago without her knowing the name of the medicine given at the time. I can also prove that bushel basketful of empty bottles of Hunt's Remedy were taken out of a doctor's office after his death. No one supposes for a moment that the bottles were used for desk ornaments or bric-a-brac, but the contents had undoubtedly been given to patients in small quantities at high prices. The medical profession evidently knows no better or more valuable remedy."

Mr. Cornelius B. Smith, the father of Jere Smith, confirmed all the son had said and added: "I have not words strong enough to give Hunt's Remedy the praise it merits, and there are hundreds of others in this city who feel the same way."
Mr. Edwin H. Fassett said that the facts above given had been the "town talk" of Kingston, and his assertion was confirmed by William D. Brenner.

Messrs. Cooper and Winchell, who are popular druggists, declare that not only are all the facts above stated true, but the demand for the remedy is something remarkable. It has become a household necessity here, as it undoubtedly deserves to be everywhere.

VILLARD IN WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Henry Villard is becoming a power in Wall street. Yesterday, it is stated, he completed the purchase of $6,000,000 worth of securities owned by the Oregon Transcontinental company of the German syndicate which he represents. It is understood this sale carries with it an agreement that Villard shall have a seat in the Oregon Transcontinental directory, and many people predict he will soon again be the president of the companies from which he resigned.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—A New York special to the Examiner says: Henry Villard's reappearance on Wall street as a conspicuous figure was a prominent subject of conversation yesterday. The eventual history of this remarkable man is a favorite theme on the street, and he is pointed out as a striking illustration of the recuperative power of some men of energetic natures. It is believed that he will mostly enter into the directories of the Oregon & Transcontinental and Oregon Railway & Navigation, and probably of the Northern Pacific, and it is not impossible that he may resume his position as president of the companies. Villard represents German capital amounting to millions of dollars, and a prominent broker said yesterday that he probably had larger command of ready capital than any other man on the street.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—A local paper to-morrow will say: Villard's Oregon & Transcontinental deal is looked upon by local railroad authorities as simply an effort to boom Northern Pacific stock. It is proposed by the Oregon & Transcontinental people, who control a large block of stock of the Northern Pacific, to inaugurate a "reform movement" in the company, by which its chances for revenue making will be greatly improved. Elijah Smith is also interesting himself in the deal, and if the party succeeds there will probably be a good demand for shares in Northern Pacific this fall. The opposition to the movement is led by the directors, who do not wish to be ousted at the coming election.

The Georgian and His Melon.

The true Georgia epicurean never approaches a watermelon until he has turned his back upon the effete civilization of the city. The slaughter of the melon represents a sacrifice which is as much out of place at a dinner table as a dish of deviled crabs at a Satyr's feast. It is an idyl of the fields that becomes a very dreary thing, indeed, robbed of its surroundings. The preparations for the simple ceremony are few. One must go into the patch at early dawn, when the dew on the grass is heavy enough to wet his trousers nearly to the knee, and stealthily, even though committing no trespass—but if it be a trespass, so much the better—remove a melon to the pellucid bottom of a spring. At about 11 o'clock, when the sun is high and the heat is trembling along the surface of the field, he should quietly carry his prize over to a snake fence under the shade of a persimmon tree, and, having drawn a jack-knife's blade only rind deep longitudinally around the melon, thump the latter upon the top rail until the inner structure is ruptured. A pious man will lift his soul in prayer when the luscious red interior, full of black eyes, is exposed, but this is not usually considered necessary. The officiating priest then seats himself flat on the ground and prepares for the final ceremony. Never in his life does a man feel the need of company less than at such a moment. A melon invariably divides with a hollow in one half and a great bulging cliff of meat in the other. If there be company present, the struggle that ensues between appetite and politeness scars the soul beyond repair. No man living ever tendered the fat of the melon to another and reserved for himself the hollow delusion but felt his existence embittered. No, absolute solitude at this critical moment is the greatest boon that can be conferred; in fact, it is necessary to the harmony of the idyl. If he be alone, the epicure, as our

Boston friend would call him, prys out hunks of red meat with his knife and uses his fingers after the primitive manner of the true child of the soil to convey them to his mouth, and as he eats, being skilled, the black seeds drop from the corner of his mouth upon the bosom of the grand old mother earth, and the mocking bird, balanced upon the topmost branch far above him, furnishes the hidden music for the feast.—Macon, Ga., Telegraph.

It is charged that many thousands of dollars have been expended out of the funds of the fish commission, ostensibly for the benefit of the government, but really for the benefit of Major Ferguson, who has succeeded in being substantially accommodated by the government in the manner of filling up low, marshy grounds and leasing a worn-out steam yacht.

The conduct of C. C. Frost, special timber agent, in shutting down the sawmills near Tacoma, W. T., is severely criticized at Washington. Frost was appointed to his present position about two months ago and seems to be unacquainted in regulations made by secretary Lamar that timber in moderate quantities for all purposes may be cut on government mineral lands.

The cannery is running steadily and has packed so far some 2,000 cases. The price of fish is 30 and 50 cents, the former price for silver sides. But very few of the latter are running yet and will not begin much before next week.—Bay Center Corr. Pacific Journal.

TRULY A HOUSEHOLD REMEDY.
240 BEDFORD AV., BROOKLYN, N. Y., Mar. 12, 1884.
I have used ALCOCK'S PONSUS PLASTER for the last twenty years. They are truly a household remedy. If one of my children has a cold and wheezes, I put an ALCOCK'S PONSUS PLASTER on the chest and one between the shoulder blades. If any of the children have croupy coughs, or coughs of any kind, I place the plaster close up around the throat; the soothing effect is apparent almost always in two hours. If they have a disordered stomach, a plaster placed just below the chest bones makes digestion perfect in half a day. If there is any looseness of the bowels, accompanied by coldness of the skin, two ALCOCK'S PONSUS PLASTERS applied over the stomach cure in from two to five hours. I notice particularly that these Plasters never abrade the skin or cause the slightest irritation. From my own experience I know they never fail for rheumatism, pains in the back or lumbago.
