

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:
FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1887

The recent action of the land department has added the area of a state to the national domain. The amount of railroad indemnity with drawings revoked are equal in extent to the state of Indiana.

DR. ALFRED, of Ocala, Fla., has a copy of the Baltimore Advertiser and Journal of 1773, in which George Washington advertises 30,000 acres of "the finest and richest land in the world" for sale. Mr. Washington had never seen any of Clatsop county's soil.

The United States land office has received new rules to govern the making of entry and proving up of claims on public lands. Under the new rules each settler will have to make affidavit that the land and lumber is not only for his own use, but that he actually resides on the claim.

Fourth of July Committee.

At a meeting of the Fourth of July committee held in the office of the county clerk last evening there were present J. H. D. Gray, president, and C. J. Trenchard, secretary; called in T. G. Boelling as witness. (The rest of the committee supposed to be either at railroad meeting or temperance meeting or elsewhere.) The committee allowed the bills presented since last meeting of the committee according to the judgment of the committee present. A statement of receipts and disbursements and all bills are at the office of the ASTORIAN for inspection of any who desire to see the same.

Total collections and receipts from all sources $1,411.40
Prizes, bills and all expenses 1,341.40

Balance on hand $70.00
The treasurer was instructed to place the said balance on interest subject to the use of future 4th of July celebrations in Astoria, and the committee adjourned.
J. H. D. GRAY, President.
C. J. TRENCHARD, Secretary.

The committee present desire to apologize for the seemingly unnecessary delay in making this report. It was all on account of the powder. Uncle Sam used extra powder for our celebration and the committee had to almost have the same made to order.

More About the "Queen of the Bay."

AL Zetterman, who came up from the mouth of the Nehalem yesterday, was on board the Queen of the Bay when she went ashore Saturday night, and says they went in on high water, almost inside, but the ebb, though there were no breakers, made a surge that broke the windlass and then the chain, losing their largest anchor: three others were put out, but they did not hold and after several endeavors to save her from beaching she went on the main shore. The cargo was all saved except some salt, sugar and one fish tank. The vessel leaks, is imbedded about two feet in the sand, and while the weather stays fine is in no danger and can be got off. Coming up he ran across five buck elk between Buchanan's place and the mouth of the Necanicum, and says if anyone wants elk hunting he can get plenty of it in that vicinity.

Max Earhart to V. Boelling, east 1/2 blk 22, Olney's Addition; $1,100.
John M. Shively to the Sisters of Charity, House of Providence, lots 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, blk 67, Shively's Addition; $2,500.

The Latest Craze.

It has caught on in Astoria. If you should observe a red-headed girl on the street and at the same time should see a number of young men rush to the curbstone and gaze expectantly up and down the street, you may safely stake your last dollar that those young men have caught on to the latest craze. They are looking for a white horse. The theory is that whenever and wherever a girl with red hair appears on the street there is a white horse visible, also. Try it, remembering the theory classes as white horses anything from iron-gray to pure white.

THE N. P. RAILROAD ELECTION.

Henry Villard in the Board of Directors.
The U. S. Constitution Centennial Parade.

New York, Sept. 15.—The stockholders of the Northern Pacific railroad met this afternoon and voted for a new board of directors for the ensuing year. The meeting adjourned after the vote until to-morrow, pending the official count. Following was the only ticket in the field and is undoubtedly elected: August Belmont, Frederick Billings, J. V. Brookman, Ben. P. Cheney, John Harris, Brantley Ives, Thomas F. Oakes, Chas. E. Wright, Henry Villard, Edward H. Abbott, Charles L. Colby, Colgate Hoyt and John B. Tregar. Many of the heavy stockholders were present: prominent among them being Henry Villard, who voted on 380,000 shares of stock. The vote cast is believed to be the largest in the history of the company. Reports of president Harris' early retirement are confirmed, but it is said that he will retain his position until the Cascade division and Stampede Pass tunnel are completed, and will be succeeded by vice-president Oakes.

DON'T WANT M'GARRIGLE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—It is announced to-day that the department of state declines to ask for McGarrigle's extradition. Secretary Bayard's reason is that he could discover no proper ground upon which to demand the extradition. Dr. St. John, a British subject, who planned the escape, is within the jurisdiction of the United States, and should be held answerable, but that does not help the extradition of McGarrigle. Neither does the British ownership of the vessel upon which McGarrigle escaped cut any figure.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

New York, Sept. 15.—Stocks opened quiet but firm this morning the general list showing advances from 1/8 to 1/2 cent.

COULDN'T STAND IT.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Inspector Roughan, of the Kilkeny police, has resigned his office as a protest against the action of the police in shooting down the people in Mitchellstown last Friday.

STARTS IN WITH $25,000.

PORTLAND, Sept. 15.—W. S. Ladd starts the subscription for the hotel bonus with a pledge of $25,000. One-tenth of the whole amount is thus assured, and this means that the rest will follow.

A NEW MINING CO.

To-day the Keystone Mining Co. property which is located in Salmon district, filed articles of incorporation. Capital stock $1,000,000, divided into one hundred thousand shares. The trustees are Jonathan Bourne, Jr., C. W. Knowles, H. W. Monastie, J. E. Smith, and C. R. Holcomb; and the officers are Jonathan Bourne, Jr., president; C. R. Knowles, vice president; H. W. Monastie, treasurer and C. R. Holcomb, secretary.

THE CELEBRATION.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—The great centennial opened this morning; the day is beautiful, and the city literally thronged with visitors and alive with patriotism. The hotels are crowded to overflowing; a monster civic and industrial pageant started soon after ten o'clock and marched a distance of nearly five miles and then counter-marched to the starting point, passing through a continuous line of stands gaily decorated with the flags of all nations. There were in line three hundred floats, each bearing a representation of some particular branch of industry, 12,000 men, 3,000 horses and 150 bands of music.

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with Abscess of Lung, and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable Consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and in a few days my lungs began to clear, and I was able to resume my work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Have the following to say of Wisdom's Robotine, the great beautifier and preserver of the complexion:
To Mr. W. M. Wisdom—Dear Sir:—I have tried your Robotine, it is excellent, and I shall be pleased to recommend it to all my lady friends. Believe me, yours truly,
RHEA.

PORTLAND, Dec. 1885.

To Mr. W. M. Wisdom—The Robotine you so kindly sent me is excellent. It is the finest preparation I have ever used, and is a decided acquisition to every lady's toilet. Yours truly,
JEANETTE WINSTON.

PORTLAND, Or., April 6, 1887.

Dear Mr. Wisdom—I have tried your "Robotine," and it gives me much pleasure to say that it is excellent for the complexion, being one of the best articles of the kind I have ever used. Believe me, yours sincerely,
Z. TERRELL.

A NORWEGIAN PILOT.

"Did you ever come across a Norwegian pilot?" I asked, eliciting a sailor's veneration for the indomitable courage of these Northern sea-dogs. "Did I?" he returned with warmth; "I should think so. Why only last year, bound for Christiansand, I came here in a dense fog that had lasted nearly all the way across. Knowing I ought to be pretty close ashore, I stopped her engines and blew the whistle; but not a yard ahead could I see, and as night set in, I don't deny, I didn't like it. Suddenly I heard a voice, 'Do you want a pilot, sir?' and, looking over the side, there, sure enough, was a pilot-boat. 'Well, the fog was as thick as a wall; but no sooner was the fellow on board, than—'Full speed! Star-board her helm!' and away we went for the rocks. After steaming ahead for about half an hour the roar of the breakers became deafening, and I could see absolutely nothing—nothing but the fog. 'Hard a-port!' the pilot sang out, and hard a-port it was. Close to us the surf thundered among the rocks; but a moment later we were in smooth water, and were brought to an anchor as handy as if it had been clear daylight." The captain here walked away a few paces to get a better look at something forward. When returning, he added, "Sir, you may see absolutely nothing—nothing but the fog. 'Hard a-port!' the pilot sang out, and hard a-port it was. Close to us the surf thundered among the rocks; but a moment later we were in smooth water, and were brought to an anchor as handy as if it had been clear daylight." This waru encomium recalled a reminiscence of my youth, which at the time made a vivid impression upon me, and which, though it has absolutely nothing to do with the present visit to Sweden, I can not refrain mentioning. Imagine a stormy winter's day, with a pale blue sky, a dark blue sea, and a ship with close reefed topsails. The gale howled in the rigging, ballooning the narrow strips of canvas and rapping the running gear against the spars with wearisome monotony. Under our lee as far as the eye could reach, stretched the iron-bound coast of old Norway, where the waves, leaping unceasingly against the black rocks, hurled jets of white foam high into the air. From out among these granite boulders a small craft appears; showing at first only a spitsail with a red stripe down the middle; but when it draws nearer we can see that the boat is covered with a deck, is broad of beam, clinker-built, and pointed fore and aft—shaped, in fact, like a gull. There are but two hands on board. The pilot—yellow-bearded, broad-shouldered, with a son's vest on his head—stands by the mast; his son, a mere lad, has hold of the tiller. Our ship has been kept close hauled, laboring heavily in the rough sea, and presently the boat is to windward a short distance off. With his hand firmly on the tiller the boy is keenly watching his chance, and the next moment runs us dangerously near; then a rope is thrown; it is deftly caught by the pilot, who ties it round his waist, and the boat again draws off. This is a moment's suspense; a big wave approaches; as it rises it lifts the small craft on its crest to a level with our rigging; in that instant the pilot jumps, and lands safely in our main cabin. The lad meantime has promptly luffed, and alone in his nutshell, now lost to sight, now heaved aloft, he makes his way steadily towards shore; but on board the frigate we know that "all's well"—Magazine.

Takes an Interest in Henry.

Henry Villard, who had a big financial failure two or three years ago, seems to be on his feet again in New York; at least it is fair to judge so when seeing that within a week he has purchased $6,000,000 worth of the Oregon Navigation securities.
