What Not to Say.
"Stopping," for staying. As, "He is stopping with us," for "He is staying with us."
"Right away," for immediately.
"Come right away" should be "come at once," or immediately.
"Some," for about or probably.
"It is some five miles to town," should be, "it is about five miles," etc.
"Storms," for rains or snows. Storm is an atmospheric disturbance and has reference to air and wind.
"Nice," for pretty, good. "That is nice, he is a nice boy, isn't she nice?" etc. Something nice is delicate, exact, as a nice point in a discussion.
"Try and come, do write," etc., for try to come, to do so, to write, etc. "I shall try and come to see you soon," should be "I shall try to come," etc.
"Posted," for informed. As "he is not posted on that matter; post him on the subject." Post means to put up a sign or to drop a letter in the postoffice.
"Guess," for suppose or think. "I guess this is right," should be "I think," etc. Guess means to "hit at random, as 'I can't guess how many cents you have.'"
"Party," for person. Party is a gathering of people, not an individual. "Who is that party?" when one is meant, should be, "who is that person or individual?"
"Funny," for odd or strange. As, "it seems very funny to me that he does not come," should be, "it seems very strange," etc. Funny is something amusing, full of fun.

The Youngest Senator.
The new senator from West Virginia, Mr. Faulkner, is the youngest man in the body, being six months the junior of his colleague, Mr. Kennen, and nine months younger than Mr. Spooner of Wisconsin. He will be forty years old in March. The youngest man ever admitted to the senate was Stephen W. Dorsey, who was thirty-six years old when he was sworn in. There have been a number of senators who were less than forty-one when they were sworn in, but the average age in that body was never so low as now. Mr. Frye, of Maine, is the youngest looking man in the senate, although he is nearly sixty, and is the grandfather of nine healthy youngsters. He has not a gray hair on his head. His complexion is as fresh as it was forty years ago, and he does not look more than thirty-five. The oldest looking man is Mr. Edmunds, who would be taken for a hundred at least. Mr. Everts is a bundle of wrinkles, and Mr. Morrill, the man who carries the greatest number of years, looks fully as old as he is—seventy-eight.—Washington Special.

"Papa," she said as the old man came in late, "young Mr. Sampson offered himself to me to-night and I refused him. And oh, papa, I am afraid his heart is broken."
"He told me about it," said the old man. "Then you met him."
"Yes; he is down at the Eagle playing billiards."—N. Y. Sun.

A Remedy For The Condemned.
Wretched men and women long condemned to suffer the tortures of dyspepsia, are filled with new hope after a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This budding hope blossoms into the fruition of certainty, if the Bitters is persisted in. It brings a relief to all dyspepsia who seek its aid. Flatulence, heartburn, sinking at the pit of the stomach between meals, the nervous tremors and insomnia of which chronic indigestion is the parent, disappear with their hateful progenitor. Most beneficially in its behavior, it requires a graphic pen to describe the torments of dyspepsia, but in many of the testimonials received by the proprietors of the Bitters, these are portrayed with vivid truthfulness. Constipation, biliousness, muscular debility, malaria, fevers and rheumatism are relieved by it.

Ayer's Hair Vigor prevents the hair from falling, and restores gray hair to its original color. Ayer's Almanac, at your druggist's.
It is said that the monkey will smoke cigars and pipes, but cannot be induced to touch cigarettes. The monkey knows more than he has been given credit for.
The blood cleansing qualities of Ayer's Sarsaparilla render it invaluable in skin disorders.
—Hackmetack's a lasting and fragrant perfume. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by W. E. Dement.

He Was Like the Moon.
A plain spoken country preacher in Texas as called upon to make a few remarks at the grave of a man who was somewhat unpopular, and who during his life was much addicted to drink. The preacher fulfilled his task in the following words: "With what shall I compare the deceased remains? Shall I compare him with the sun? No, never. The sun blinds people with its brilliancy. The deceased never blinded anybody with his brilliancy. Shall I compare him with the stars? No not with the stars that can only be seen by night. Our late friend could be seen both day and night at the saloons. I think, on the whole, we had better compare him with the moon. The moon gets full every once in a while, and so did the deceased. I've heard that the moon borrows its light, and so did the remains, for he smoked a great deal and was always letting his cigar go out. Peace to his ashes."

A very natural mistake.—Uncle Mose, entering the house of judge Peunyunker, was astounded at hearing a parrot exclaim: "Take off your hat!" He complied at once, ejaculating with chattering teeth: "Scuse me, boss; fore God, I mistook ye for a bird. I did, suah."—Texas Siftings.

The further a man gets away from a dollar the bigger it looks.
