"I unhesitatingly add my testimony to the great benefits to be derived from Simmons Liver Regulator. I was afflicted for several years with disordered Liver, which resulted in a severe attack of Jaundice. I had good medical attendance, but it failed to restore me to the enjoyment of my former health. I then tried the most renowned physicians of Louisville, Ky., but all to no purpose, whereupon I was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator. I found immediate benefit from its use, and it ultimately restored me to the full enjoyment of health."—A. H. SHIRLEY, Richmond, Ky. Fire! Fire!
Is one of the greatest blessings when you have it under control. If you build your fire in one of those Macee Ranges or one of those Accors or Argovads at John A. Montgomery's, you will find it a pleasure to prepare a meal, or if you get one of those Heaters you will find them to be clean and economical and an ornament to your parlor. If you intend getting a range or a heater don't fail to look at his stock. You should call in see his beautiful Ornamental Coal Vases.
THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. W. W. AVER & SON, our authorized agents.

ALLEGED WIT.

A Mr. Moran married a Miss Moore. Moran Moore will be the motto of that firm.
Why is an old maid like a dried orange? Because neither of them are worth a good squeeze.
The lion and the lamb may lie down together, but they can't hold a candle to a couple of lawyers.
"After pleasure follows payin," sighed the old-timer as he laid down fifteen cents for a drink.
A Connecticut man by the name of Peach overfed his children with watermelon, and it is feared that the peach crop is ruined.
"I'll teach you how to tear your pants!" said an irate parent, swinging a strap; "I'll teach you." "Don't hit me, pa; I know how already. Just look at 'em!"
"Pa," said a little boy, "what is an absolute monarchy?" "I can't explain it, my son, so that you can comprehend it. Wait until you get married, my son, and then you'll know."

The foolish virgin in the Scriptures came with no oil in her lamp. Now she cometh with a four-gallon can of kerosene to pour on the kitchen fire, and her funeral expenses are added to the loss of the oil.
"Sacred to his memory," said Fogg, reading the legend on the tombstone of his friend Hawkins. "Why, Hawkins never had any memory. He never could remember anything for five minutes in his life."

"Are you going to have a picnic this year?" inquired a youngster of his Sunday-school teacher. "Why, what do you want of a picnic?" "Nothing much, but I can get six new scholars in a hurry if you are going to have one."
An Iowa youth was holding his girl in his lap during a thunder-storm. The lightning struck and killed the youth, while the girl was left unharmed. We hope this will teach the young women that the safest place during a thunder-storm is in a fellow's lap.

There was something peculiar in the arrangement of a programme of a young ladies' Bible class reunion recently at Manchester, England. One of the numbers appeared as follows: "No. 4. 'Pat Me in My Little Bed'—Miss Abby Faushawe (accompanied by the curate)."
"What are you trying to see, Jack?" asked Merritt in an elevated train. "I'd like to get a glimpse of that girl's face who has her back turned to us." "Oh, come away! She is as homely as sin." "How do you know?" said Jack. "Because she's allowed to stand up," replied Merritt.

"When she returned she found the money gone," is a sentence which is stirring up all the good and bad grammar of Chicago. "If it was gone how did she find it?" is the query asked by one side, and, "if she hadn't found it gone, wasn't it there?" inquired the other. Why not let the matter drop and hunt for the thief?
"Was your husband on the stand yesterday?" asked the lawyer of a woman in a case in which husband and wife were witnesses. "No," she answered with a snap, "he wasn't on the stand. He was on the set. That's the kind of a man he is, whenever there is anything to set on—from a satin sofa to the top rail of a worm fence."

"Say," said Berkey to his wife yesterday at dinner, "you didn't say anything to any one about what I was telling you night before last, did you? That's a secret." "A secret? Why, I didn't know it was a secret," she replied, kind of regretfully. "Well, did you tell it? I want to know." "Why, no, I never thought of it since. I didn't know it was a secret."

The state of Sonora, Mexico, levies a tax of $2 on every baby born within its limits, and charges the farmer 5 cents for every chicken he raises and 50 cents for every sheep.
A Clear Complexion.
How can you expect a clear complexion when the blood is full of impurities and the stomach clogged? The blood becomes impure because the liver does not act properly and work off the poison from the system, and the certain results are blotches, pimples and eruptions. Purify the blood with Simmons Liver Regulator, and regulate the liver, stomach and bowels, and then the skin will become clear.

Railroad Movements.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—By some persons it is thought the Southern Pacific company's plan for the construction of a railroad from Montague, on the California & Oregon line, into Nevada, and through to Kelton, Utah, where it will connect with the Central Pacific, is for the purpose of discouraging the Chicago & Northwestern in its efforts to reach this city, and also to cut off the Union Pacific railroad from securing the extensive stock shipments which it obtains from that part of its territory. The construction of such a line would assure the Southern Pacific company of a share of Oregon and Washington Territory trade now going by the Oregon short line and the Northern Pacific.

In commenting upon the report of this intention of the Southern Pacific company, a well informed man remarked to-day, "Having covered its own territory pretty thoroughly in the building of branch lines here and there, the Southern Pacific now contemplates the construction of several strategic lines, which are intended to secure it against invasion. I don't say these roads will actually be built, but they will be surveyed with a flourish of trumpets that means to warn invading hosts that they are treading on dangerous ground. Surveys will be run and passes held against new comers where ever possible. The company has a strong and well equipped force of engineers on its road, for which it now has but little use except to employ in this way. The new line from Montague to Kelton may be built in the course of time but if it is only surveyed, and there is great noise about it, it will have nearly the same effect upon outside lines seeking entrance here, as if the road were actually constructed and in operation."

Curious Story of an Inventor.

They tell a curious story of old Christopher Meyer, who was more or less with lives. Many years ago he was a workman in a factory where rubber shoes were made. He received the fabulous sum of $125 per day. At night he worked out the details of an invention for economizing in the number of men employed in the factory. One day he finished his machine, carried it to the shop and showed his boss how well it would do the work of a dozen or twenty men. The boss was thunder-struck; but before he could examine the invention Meyer seized a big hammer and knocked its delicate machinery into chaos.
"But I want that," protested the boss.
"I know you do," answered the workman, quietly.
"Come and see me to-morrow noon," continued the head of the firm pompously, "and we will make some arrangements."
"If you want to talk business with me," remarked the workman coolly, "you can come to my lodgings at 7 o'clock to-night. Better not be late."

The millionaire was there at 7. Meyer was taken into the firm, and in a short time he was at the head of the business. He lives in New Brunswick, N. J., in a pretentious house, and his sons are all well married. A short time ago the old man—he is more than 70 years of age—took it into his head to marry again, picked out a beautiful 19 year old girl and prepared for the wedding. Immense opposition was expected from the whole family, as old Meyer is worth ten or twelve millions; but to the amazement and chagrin of society and the sensational press, all of the old manufacturer's friends, family and connections backed him up heartily, and sent him off on his bridal tour, looking and feeling like a major.—New York Letter.
