The Tillsmook Indians.

The secretary of the interior has sent a letter to the senate in reply to the senate resolution asking information as to when and what circumstances, and by what authority, the Tillamook Indians claim lands in Tillamook county, Oregon. The secretary encloses a letter from the commissioner of Indian affairs, who says that in 1851 a treaty was made with the Tillamooks by agent Hart and forwarded to the senate in 1853 for ratifieation. No trace of any action on this treaty can be found. Superintendent Palmer negotiated a treaty in 1855, but only an empty wrapper and a memorandum saying the treaty had been renewed could be found. Commissioner Atkins says, as to the extent of the claim, the fact treaties had been negotiated with the Tillamooks shows that the United States had recognized their title, and, under rulings of the supreme court, they posseesed all the original rights to the land in question.

Making Fine Butter.

When the cream is taken from the milk in a sweet state, it should stand in the cream pot to ripenthat is, to allow a thorough oxidization to take place. If left untouched, this would take such a long time than the cream would become rancid, or at least a portion of it would. The process of ripening may be hastened by frequent stirring of the cream. When this is done, 24 hours are long enough for it to stand. By this time it will also have become a little acid; it will make a prime article of butter, and keep better than if churned perfectly sweet. The sweet cream butter has a creamy taste, and does not have the rich aroma that it does when the cream is slightly sour. The formation of the acidity seems to develop the aroma. All of this DR. SPINNEY delicate flavor can be spoiled by foreign substances, and those not calculated to preserve the purity and perfection of the cream and the butter.

There is an abundance of talk among free-traders about the tariff a ding the building up of "Trus's," and thereby forcing an artificial price in various commodities. To show how absurd that statement is let them consider the price of is let them consider the price of tin. There is no tin trust in America, yet its price has gone up within the last five years from 16 cents per pound to 35 cents. There had been no advance in the tariff on tin and yet its price this spring has been regulated by a great French trust or combination that off that article as it is a foreign production entirely.
