A Queer Marriage Fee.

"When I was living in Middle-town, Ky.," said Dr. Morrison, "I was called upon to marry a young couple, which I did. After the ceremony the groom said nothing about a fee. A few days later I met him on the street, and calling me off to one side he asked me if I would be willing to take my fee in something beside money. I told him that would be all right, and he left me, promising that I should not be forgotten. The next day he kept his word. He sent me a load of wheat straw, a stack of hay and a jug of molasses."--Atlanta Journal.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Puget Sound Loggers' Association held at Seattle last Saturday evening, it was decided to curtail one-third of the output of logs from now until the end of the year. There was no opposition to the adoption of this measure, as it was generally believed that too many logs were being put into the water to keep prices at living rates. The action will make a difference of 80,000,000 feet in the output of the members of the Association alone for the balance of the year, and it is understood that many loggers who are not mem bers will also curtail their output
